Reward for petunia
pluckersBENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The last thing Mary Adams expected when she spent several thousand dollars on improvements to Van Pelt Alley was vandalism.

But, sometime late on July 14 or early on July 15, an unknown number of people decided to rip petunias from their pots and strew them about the alley.

"I am offering a $500 reward for any information that leads to the apprehension or arrest of who did this," she said.

Adams alerted local police as soon as she discovered the scene.

"It's malicious destruction of property," said Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan. "This time of year, if (people) see unusual behavior, please pick up the phone and call."

Doan added, "I would assume this instance happened after 3 a.m. because I have officers down there on foot."

Adams, fearful that someone may next attack the benches and tables she placed in the alley, is taking further precaution.

"We're having three very inconspicuous cameras installed in the alley," she said.

Adams is spending the $2,000 on the surveillance system to protect the nearly $3,600 she spent on flowers, pots, benches and tables to "spruce up" Van Pelt Alley.

Adams owns Consign Design, an upscale consignment store at 100 Van Pelt Alley.

"What are my choices? Take everything out of the alley and leave it empty, or invest more money to protect our investment," she said. "You feel violated and it feels like you don't want to believe this kind of thing goes on in Charlevoix, but I guess people with low self-esteem act out this way."

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said protecting the sizable investment made by volunteers each year to fund the petunia planting is an important job.

"It's probably a great thing for the community to self-police the petunias," he said. "The more eyes on the situation is a good thing."

Adams has spent $1,500 on three benches, $1,600 on four chairs and $100 for each pot of flowers in the Alley.

"I think there is a misconception that these things are funny little kid pranks, and I don't think the parents and kids take this very seriously."

He wasn't looking for limelight

Special honor for Mr. Venetian

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

He wasn't looking for the limelight, but it found him.

When Dan Barron was told by Charlevoix's Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. that he had been chosen as the 2009 Venetian Festival's Grand Marshal, Barron humbly declined citing other more deserving individuals.

"He refuses to be recognized for all the time he puts into Venetian, but he's done it for over 10 years as president of Venetian (board of directors)," Carlson said. "He (Barron) thought we should get someone more worthy and I couldn't think of anyone more worthy than he is."

After some verbal nudging by Carlson, Barron accepted the honor to ride in the grand marshal's car in the Venetian Parade on Saturday, July 25.

"The day after Venetian ends, he's already thinking about how to make the festival better," Carlson said. "He's taken it from what it was 11 years ago and made it into a great festival."

Barron said he was honored to be named the grand marshal.

"The true credit goes to my friends and family for their sacrifices for the festival," he said.

According to Barron, his planning for the following year begins well before the end of Venetian.

"The planning process for the 2010 Venetian Festival has already started," he said. "We have ideas well in advance and we use the current festival to visualize some of the things we wish to do in 2010."

Barron added, "We're close to two years out in terms of many musical performers and performances."

Some of Barron's duties include organizing the nearly two dozen committees which oversee games, the carnival, concessions, the Tiki tent bar and stage and more.

"If Dan Barron weren't involved in Venetian, I think the thing might fall apart," said Venetian Board member John Winn. "I don't think the community appreciates the hours and hours he puts into it — Dan really leads the charge."

He also acts as liaison to the local governmental entities which support Venetian financially; the law enforcement which acts as security; and the fireworks company and performers.

"I participate in selecting and booking musical acts and confirming and obtaining permits for various matters such as fireworks and establishing our security arrangements," Barron said. "I also have a primary role in organizing our volunteer committees which work on fundraising activities, kid's day, merchandise and food vendors."

He added that the job could not be done without the countless committee chairmen who "grab the bull by the horns."

Carlson said "Mr. Venetian" Dan Barron's list of duties is nearly endless.

"There are times throughout the year where he goes away to other festivals to learn how other towns do their events to make Venetian better," he said. "I can't even begin to tell you how much he puts into this festival — he's right on top of everything."

Barron has never actually counted, but he said he easily spends hundreds of hours each year working on the festival.

"Generally I am chief cook and bottle washer, but there are between 400 and 500 people who participate as volunteers in one manner or another," he said. "(That) is actually a phenomenal statement as to the level of volunteerism that's found in Charlevoix."

With festival planning being a year-round effort, does Mr. Venetian get the chance to take time to enjoy the result of his work?

"I relax after the last fireworks shell breaks on Saturday night," Barron said. "The quiet on Sunday morning in East Park (following Venetian) is a beautiful contrast to the prior week's activities."

Barron closed by saying he loves Charlevoix and people in it.

"This festival brings joy to so many, especially the heartwarming number of family and class reunions," he said.

Venetian Festival thrives due to volunteers and monetary donations. To support the festival send monetary donations to Charlevoix Venetian Festival Inc., P.O. Box 120, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or e-mail info@venetianfestival.com.

'Dip' in the ocean

"Wow! Look at her duck!" the freckled kid was reputed to have hollered.

Since I was underwater, fighting for my life, I have to take my cousin's word for it. But she said that he seemed genuinely impressed.

The summer before I turned 9, my family went to visit relatives on Long Island. The grown-up-packed sufficient supplies for a week in the Mojave and we set out to spend a day at Jones Beach.

The crashing surf of the Atlantic was a far cry from the placid beaches at home, and buoyed ropes formed a rectangle around the designated swimming area. I turned to bolt toward the water, but my mom grabbed my arm and smeared a gob of zinc oxide on my nose. "Wait a minute," she said. "The ocean is a lot more dangerous than the lake. I want you to wear this." She produced an inflated child's inner tube with a horse's head blooming from the front.

"Mom, nooooo. That's for babies." Unmoved by my protest, she wedged the thing around my middle. It was so tight that she had to lube me up with Coppertone to get it in place. She was determined to render me buoyant.

My cousin, Mary Alice, stood wreathed in a similar flotation device. Hers was shaped like a turtle and it fit her six-year-old frame the way it was meant to. She had to hang on to keep it from sliding off.

We planted our feet in the water watching the swimmers bob and disappear behind the rolling whitecaps. A freckled kid emerged from the surf in front of us and gave me a critical once-over.

"Ha, ya big dip. How come you gotta wear a baby tube? Can'tcha swim?"

How dare he speak to me that way? How dare he speak to me, period? Muttering something like "Hamumph," I waded in.

I walked until my feet could no longer touch. The horse's head poked me in the face when I bent forward, scooping at the water in a strangled attempt to swim, so I leaned to one side; my nose nearly skimming the surface while I paddled. I didn't even see the wave before it hit and launched me into a spin cycle. My face grazed the sandy bottom before I bobbed back to the surface, upside-down.

I kicked my legs wildly in the air in an attempt to right myself. My arms flailed underwater, too far from the bottom to push myself upright. Although I'd never heard of irony, it was at this point in my life that I understood the concept. The grinning horse head was acting like a rudder, keeping me submerged. "Geezo-Pete," I thought — my mother's favorite swear.

Before I had the opportunity to panic, I felt hands grip and hoist me up into the air.

"Gotta. You're okay," the man attached to the hands told me. He held me aloft and waded into shore, setting me down on the dry sand. "Where are your folks?"

I pointed to the bivouac of blankets and coolers set up underneath the striped umbrella and he led me by the hand to where the grownups were stretched out in a row, shining like sardines packed in oil. They lay on their backs, oblivious, their eyes screwed tight against the brilliance of the sun, counting the pre-cancerous lesions that would need to be attended to in their later years.

"This little girl got into a lot of trouble out there," he announced. That got their attention and they sat up fast. "She could've drowned."

"Oh my Gawd!" Aunt Jean said. "Sweetheart, ah yew awl-right?"

My mother launched herself off of her towel and nabbed me, crushing my sand-scratched face into the brocade corset of her bathing suit, hugging me hard.

The lifeguard — for he was indeed the lifeguard — synopsised my ordeal and delivered a lecture, emphasizing tube removal, before returning to his vigilant watch.

My mom tried to wiggle the tube down, and then up, with little success. "Geezo-Pete," she said, uncorking the air valve and allowing the thing to deflate. "Phil, have you got your pocketknife?"

Later, as I stood again at the water's edge, girdled in an angry ring of reddened flesh, the freckled kid approached. "That was cool," he said.

"Yeah," I replied without deigning to even glance in his direction. My focus was locked on the line where the sky and the ocean fused — impossibly far, unbearably lonely, wild and unrelenting. I was busy thinking.

You're only young once

Parns Halverson
Charlevoix

Editor:
I'm confused about the Fountain?

Since one of the selling points of our new interactive fountain was to give children a place to play. Why has the City Council setting times for them to play?

Haven't we have enough regulations to deal with without restricting children's play?

You're only young once. Apparently these individuals who complain about the noise, laughter of children have forgotten they were children once.

Since we already have a curfew in place, why add more restrictions?

Kids don't always wear a wristwatch.

Light the way

Editor:
Do you ever wonder if your child is okay crossing Bridge Street? I know we need a light there.

Many people could die by careless drivers today. So I think we (Charlevoix) should get a stoplight at the top of Bridge Street.

Many people could die in this situation. If there were a crash today, and the stoplight wasn't there, the driver would have to deal with all the guilt.

Now, if the stoplight was there, I bet it would possibly stop collisions or crashes from happening.

Not only deaths could happen, but injuries and the pedestrian could sue the driver.

Next, a crosswalk could make parents worry less. I know whenever I walk from the middle school to the library, my mother always worries about me. If we don't get a stoplight there it could keep giving parents the thought of their child not coming home.

Also, it could warn drivers before coming into town. Telling drivers to slow down for citizens. It will also slow drivers down, just in general.

Also, cops could find speeders much more easily.

Now, I hope you see how I feel about this problem.

I always fear to see someone's picture in the paper because they died at that spot, because there wasn't a stoplight or crosswalk there.

Thank-you for taking your time to read my paper.

Well maintained

Editor:
In the July 1, issue of the Courier was printed a letter from S. J. Krehak expressing displeasure with the appearance of Brookside Cemetery at Charlevoix.

Weather conditions have something to do with the cemetery's appearance. This spring and early summer it has been much colder and dryer than in past years causing conditions to be different. In our opinion Brookside is very well maintained.

We normally would not be aware of the ground conditions at Brookside Cemetery except we attended a memorial and dedication service for a new Civil War style head stone there on June 20 for our great-grandfather. This service was a replicate of one provided to a veteran Civil War Soldier. Nineteen members of the Robert Finch Encampment #14 Sons of Civil War Veterans from Traverse City, Michigan performed the service.

These members presented the service complete in Union Civil War attire and black powder muskets. Many of them spoke very complementary of the cemetery's condition compared to others they have done this type of service at this Spring.

These members came from Manistee to Pellston.

The service was attended by over seventy of our family and friends. Many of them expressed complements for the very neat maintenance of the Brookside Cemetery. The service was held in the GAR section.

Two of the members of the Robert Finch Encampment #14 previewed the cemetery the first week in May. They were making arrangement for the memorial and dedication service.

They both spoke very com-

plementary to the appearance of Brookside at that time.

We have found it very easy to criticize others but, we have also found, as we get older, that we should walk in the other persons shoes first. Many times there are reasons for conditions being what they are and/or controlled by others that we are not aware of. Perhaps this is true at Charlevoix.

If there are reasons creating the cause to make S. J. Krehak feel as they expressed themselves in the Courier have they made any inquiry to determine the cause or found out the reasons to support their complaints?

We would like to compliment the maintenance crew, by saying "Thank-you" for providing such a beautiful cemetery for the service on June 20 for our family and friends to honor our great-grandfather.

Summertime in Charlevoix the Beautiful

"Farmers Market is here today!" were the words I heard bellowing in the front door.

It's time to purchase grass fed chicken, pork and lamb and a variety of organic vegetables.

I'll finish it off with a few meli in your mouth scenes and I'm good to go.

Whoops, one more stop to purchase a cascade of flowers and who's counting calories, tart cherry pie has room in my cart as well.

I only wish our warmer weather remained for another six months because the farmers market is such a delight.

Sprints run high as everyone arrives early for the delightful goods they will carry home.

For a moment in time looking around at the sparkling sunlit water, pristine white boats in the harbor and wisps of clouds in the sky I am whisked away to a vision of the open air markets in Europe.

I appreciate beautiful days like this.

Now there are decisions to be made regarding the family reunion.

Whether it's a family reunion or family rebellion, this can be a wonderful as well as stressful event.

The majority of time we all get along because we remind ourselves of the saying, "Fish and family begin to smell after three days."

These family gatherings are a time to catch up on who married whom and review what the Detroit Tigers are or are not doing.

We sit in awe watching grandkids who possess energy that's endless leaving us wondering when nap time will occur for all age groups.

Family members move in, out and around the house and yard the likes of musical chairs.

Infants in tow are passed from grandma to aunt to mother, needing just as much care as the elderly in their walkers or wheelchairs.

It's especially nice to see the younger children turn into teenagers and teenagers becoming young adults.

The continuum goes on. Relatives comment on how well they sleep when they are in Northern Michigan.

They claim the air is a little fresher and the sounds of rolling waves coming in from Lake Michigan lulls them into a somber much different than the sirens and commotion resounding off of brick buildings.

One of our favorite activities is watching everyone race to the beach for the next spectacular sunset.

It's similar to watching cars line up to watch a drive in movie.

We sit in rows watching the sun play hide and seek between the clouds until it kisses the water and dips below the horizon.

For some of the visiting crew it is the first time they have viewed a star lit sky not marred by the harsh city lights.

I am usually too busy to take part in all the family festivities as I am planning the next meal and don't always stop to take it all in.

But today I did stop and took notice and enjoyed what everyone else was soaking in.

I stopped what errand I felt was so important to do and grabbed a metal skewer and took on the task of making the perfect toasted marshmallow.

I listened to the waves and the laughter coming from all generations as they shared memories of their lives and current adventures.

Life is too short not to do this.

As family members pack up for their trip south its time to prepare for yet another reunion, the Venetian Festival.

Only in a small town such as ours could you run a 5 K in the morning, walk in the parade at noon and work in a booth in the evening.

Soon to follow will be the exquisite, best of Michigan Waterfront Art Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Butterfield of Midvale, Utah, are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharlet, to Jeremy Rafacz, both of Reno, Nevada.

His father is Edward Rafacz of Seattle, Wash., and mother Stephanie Carey (stepfather Tim Carey) of Charlevoix.

The wedding is planned for Sept. 5, 2009 at St. Helena, Calif. in the Napa Valley.

The bride is originally from Midvale, Utah, went to Utah State University for undergraduate work and the University of Nevada, Reno, for graduate school. She works as a Behavior Analyst to train parents and schools to work with individuals with challenging behavior.

The groom graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1999, then went to Western Michigan University for undergraduate work and the University of Nevada, Reno, for graduate school.

He works as a behavior analyst for individuals with developmental disabilities in Reno, Nevada.

Re-'Kindle' love of reading

The library invites its patrons to the library to try out the new Amazon Kindle DX. The Kindle DX is available for a one-hour checkout at the Information Services Desk, for in-library use only.

The Charlevoix Lion's Club recently purchased an Amazon Kindle 2 and a Kindle DX for the library's collection.

The Kindles are e-book readers and allow a reading experience "like printed words on paper because the screen works using real ink and doesn't use a backlight, eliminating the eyestrain and glare associated with other electronic displays."

Books, newspapers and other printed documents can be one-touch downloaded to the Kindle through a wireless connection to Amazon Kindles are especially helpful for those with low vision issues.

They allow readers to enlarge the text up to slightly larger than a standard large print book.

They also have a "text to speech" function that when activated, reads the content to the listener.

The Kindle 2 is currently checked out for an extended period to a Lion's Club member with low-vision.

OBITUARIES

Eugene A. Dziedzic: July 31, 1928 - July 15, 2009

Eugene A. "Gene" Dziedzic, 80, of Charlevoix, died peacefully Wednesday evening, July 15, 2009, at his home in Charlevoix surrounded by his family.

A Rite of Christian Burial was noon, Saturday, July 19, at Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Charlevoix. The Reverend Jerry Hunko will officiate and burial will be in Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Gene was born July 31, 1928, in Detroit to Joseph E. and Anna M. (Wozny) Dziedzic.

He was a 1946 graduate of Chassey High School in Detroit.

Gene served in the U.S. Navy from 1948 until 1952. On Oct. 25, 1952, he married Monnie Vreeland at St. Mary's Church in Rockwood, Mich.

Gene was employed by Consumer's Power Company for 33 years, retiring in 1987. He moved to Charlevoix in 1962 with the start-up crew for the Big Rock Nuclear Plant.

In 1969, he moved to South Haven where he worked with the start-up crew at the Palisades Nuclear Plant, returning to Charlevoix after retiring.

Gene was a member of Saint Mary's Church in Charlevoix, the Pierre de Charlevoix Council of the Knights of Columbus, and the B.P.O.E.

He loved to sing and was a member of the Charlevoix Men's Glee Club, the East Jordan Chorus, and Saint Mary's Church Choir.

Gene was an avid golfer. He is survived by his wife Monnie; daughters Susan (Robert) Wilcox of Flagstaff, Ariz.; Lee Ann Overhiser of Ada; Laura (David) Taylor of Charlevoix; sons Neil (Susan) Dziedzic of Dundee; Eric Dziedzic of Copenhagen, Denmark; eleven grandchildren Sarah, Leah, Matthew, Andrew, Christopher, Emily, Heather, Megan, Anna, Caitlin and Jackson; seven great-grandchildren Malorie, Xandir, Annika, Anistin, James, Benjamin and Caleb; sister Kay Lewinski of Vero Beach, Fla.; brother Henry (Ger) Dziedzic of Riverview.

Gene's brothers Joseph and Wally and sisters, Dorothy and Rita preceded him in death.

Visitation was from 6 p.m. 8 p.m., Friday at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where the Rosary was recited at 7 p.m.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Saint Mary's Building Fund or to the Saint Mary's School Endowment Fund.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HALALAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorses' legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism whereby one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more. ARTH ARREST is available in convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-1301. Now at CENTRAL REXALL 301 Bridge St. • 547-2424

Martha Guth to perform at three Baroque on Beaver concerts

BY ELAINE WEST,
NORTHERN ISLANDER NEWSPAPER
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

If you've ever heard her sing you'll never forget the experience. Many still talk of the "Music on the Porch" concert several years ago when Martha Guth's clear and warm soprano voice embraced the lyrics and music in a stunning rendition of "Summertime."

This summer all will have the chance to hear her again as she will sing at three Baroque on Beaver Island concerts, July 30 and Aug. 1 and 2.

Guth grew up in Vancouver, British Columbia and has been a Beaver Island regular for as long as she can remember, visiting her grandmother and eventually spending a year living on the island. "It was then I really began to build the good friendships that I continue to cherish," said Guth.

Guth and her good friend

Deb Harwood worked together at the Old Rectory Restaurant and Deerwood Lodge.

They lent their talents as a singer and a chef (Harwood was trained the Culinary Institute of America) to creating two summer solstice concerts with "high tea" as benefits for the Beaver Island Health Center.

Those who attended remember well the tables of delicate and delicious foods and the delightful concerts of classical music.

Guth holds an undergraduate degree from Oberlin Conservatory of Music and a Master in Music from Cincinnati College and Conservatory of Music.

Currently she is teaching and performing at the Vancouver International Song Institute.

Married just one year ago to fellow professional singer Ricardo Lugo, Guth says they live very happily together in their "shoebox" apartment in Manhattan.

Along with a love of poetry and language, and communicating those passions through performing and teaching, Guth is also a hiker, part time runner and thoroughly enjoys any activities that take her outdoors.

"Especially if they involve a bon fire," said Guth.

Guth's featured performances during this year's Baroque on Beaver concerts: 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, July 30, at CMU; 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 1, at Holy Cross Hall; and 2 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 2, at Holy Cross Hall.

A fourth Baroque Concert will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center on Friday, July 31.

And for encores? Perhaps Martha will consent to singing "Summertime" again, a perfect song to celebrate her voice and the season on Beaver Island.

Your Dominant Ear

Dr. Alfred A. Tomatis was a French ear-nose-and-throat doctor who spent decades studying the cause of hearing difficulties. His work led to a number of discoveries about unknown functions of the ear and the therapeutic effects of sound. One of his many discoveries was that we all have a "dominant" ear, much as the majority of us have a dominant hand. According to Tomatis, people who are right-ear dominant learn more easily than those who are left-ear dominant. This is due to the fact that the right ear is directly connected to the left brain, which is the part that processes language. This finding shows the complexities and importance of hearing well. Good hearing leads to greater fulfillment.

P.S. Tomatis also maintained that right-ear dominance also leads to better speech control.

Man mad over maple massacre

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

For nearly 30 years, Bill Dreyer said, his 100-year-old maple trees off Nettleton Street in Charlevoix coexisted peacefully with nearby power lines.

But, last week a tree trimming company hired by the city did more than the usual pruning of minor branches near the lines.

"It's not trimming, it's traumatizing these trees," Dreyer said. "They look like a 'V' now—there's nothing in the middle."

Charlevoix City Councilman Lyle Gennett agreed with Dreyer's assessment.

"If that's the industry standard, I feel bad for the industry," he said. "It's just terrible."

Dreyer called city hall while crews were cutting the trees located on the city right-of-way on his property to have the action stopped.

"I want a public apology from the city manager because he had the power to stop this," Dreyer said. "I went to the city and asked them why they had not notified me and his (city manager Rob Straebel's) secretary told me she was drafting my letter. I said, 'It's too late, that's after the fact.'"

During their regularly scheduled Monday, July 20 meeting, Charlevoix City Council members discussed a tree trimming policy which had already been in the works prior to the incident at Dreyer's home.

According to Shade Tree Commissioner John Campbell, there has not been proper maintenance on the city's several thousand trees for nearly 30 years. This, he said, has caused a problem of trees growing too close to power lines and large limbs falling off trees which could pose a health risk.

The tree trimming, pruning and removal policy states, "To better educate residents regarding this issue, staff will be sending out letters to all property owners where tree maintenance may occur informing them of possible tree trimming, pruning and removal."

During the meeting, Dreyer demanded to know why he was not informed ahead of time.

Straebel said the letters will be sent in the future due to the large number of complaints the city has received on the matter.

He also said he realizes now the city should have alerted people to the matter before the city began the project.

"I certainly understand your anger and love of trees," Straebel said. "One thing that is not getting mentioned here is the safety of the journeymen linemen. I understand the aesthetics issue, but my allegiance has got to be with the safety of the (electrical workers)."

City electrical head Don Swem said an electrical line too close to a tree can actually cause electricity to jump to the tree which could electrocute a person on the ground near the tree.

The city's ordinance on distances of wires from trees is 10 feet for the primary electrical line and five feet for the secondary lines.

Swem said the distances are needed because both equipment and the trees can sway in heavy winds, creating a dangerous situation.

Council also discussed removal of 31 trees from Dixon avenue.

Some audience members were concerned when Swem said, "Dixon is unique. It has a great canopy and we are going to affect it drastically."

Council was asked if they could postpone the tree removal of what the shade tree commission called unhealthy trees to make time to get an agreement of all homeowners down the street to have them pay to have power lines relocated underground.

"If you do it for Dixon, then you have to do it for all streets," Straebel said.

He said it would take six to eight months just to try to get everyone together, and even then every homeowner may not agree.

"It would negate all tree trimming efforts," Straebel said.

Council unanimously approved the ordinance as presented.

Flower care

Editor:
(Response to S. J. Krbhak Letter published July 1)

I have been tending flowers for customers and relatives in Brookside and St. Mary's Cemeteries for well over 10 years.

Since both these properties are cemeteries, the ground is often uneven.

The City's hiring of Bob McGhee as the sexton with his assistant Marc Cross and other city cemetery workers has been a plus.

All are courteous, paying attention to their duties. The commercial grade sprinklers are going throughout the grounds of both cemeteries close to daily and many old dead trees have been disposed.

The City of Charlevoix takes care of both Brookside Cemetery and St. Mary's Cemetery. Copies of City of Charlevoix Cemetery rules are free for the asking at Bob McGhee's sexton office in Brookside Cemetery or at the Charlevoix City Hall.

The only thing wrong with Brookside is its newer front gate, M-66.

Northwest Academy hitting the bricks

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Northwest Academy of Charlevoix officials know you're going to walk all over their latest fundraising effort — and they're OK with that.

Hoping to raise $30,000 to help fund capital improvements such as equipment, building upgrades and educational field trips, Northwest officials are now selling personalized paver bricks.

"We're going to put in a new entry and create a paver brick approach to the school," said Northwest music and marketing director Gary Stutzman. It will be 8 feet by 8 feet and the entire structure is going to be built in a way that it can be lifted and moved to another location when we have a new entrance or new building."

The bricks cost a minimum of $100 each and can be engraved with family names.

"We're asking for a minimum donation of $100 each, but if you can afford more, we ask that you give," Stutzman said. "We don't get millage money or bonds to help pay for classroom supplies, repairs and trips."

"I am interested in securing support from alumni, families of alumni and anyone that's interested in the past and present success of Northwest Academy," he added.

Planned improvements include smart boards, which allow teachers to project computer images on a screen large enough for an entire class to see; a dance floor for an upcoming dance club; educational field trips to places like Washington D.C.; new desks and classroom supplies.

"We're looking to enhance the educational experience at Northwest," Stutzman said.

Bricks can be ordered, and donations can be sent, by mail to Northwest Academy, 115 West Huribut, Charlevoix, MI 49720 or call Stutzman at (231) 675-4800 or go to www.nwa.edu.

Gary Stutzman holds a paver brick which will, along with others, line the new walkway entrance to Northwest Academy school in Charlevoix. The bricks are now on sale to raise funds for school improvements and field trips.

Lake Charlevoix Association to battle phrag'

State officials have cleared the way for a clean-up this fall of a dense grass that has been rapidly colonizing Lake Charlevoix's 56-mile long shoreline.

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality approved a permit that will allow the Lake Charlevoix Association (LCA) to apply a herbicide to the Phragmites australis plants shortly after Labor Day. The association, which has 550 members around the lake, expects that it will have to repeat the treatment over several years to keep the plant in check.

Dan Mishler, LCA vice-president, said he was pleased that the state had acted quickly on the group's request because "we have to get our contractors and volunteers trained and in place by the end of summer if we are going to have any success this year."

Homeowners with shore property can expect to see the phragmites surveyors working along the waterline in the coming weeks, he emphasized. "We hope the owners will welcome the volunteers, because they are there to help control this unwanted growth," he said.

He noted that because LCA won a permit for the whole lake, individual property owners won't have to apply separately for state permission to use the herbicide, Rodeo. "Properly applied, this is a very safe product and studies show its active ingredients decompose quickly, before it can harm anything else," he noted. Having LCA do the work provides the fastest and safest way to control the plant, he said.

Phragmites australis has spread all over the northern and eastern U.S., sometimes growing in dense stands up to 15-feet tall that block off shorelines and crowd out native plants. Residents of Beaver Island mounted a major attack on the plants last year, using the techniques that LCA will apply on Lake Charlevoix, and reduced its phragmites stands to manageable levels.

LCA is currently recruiting and training volunteers who will make a thorough survey of the lake's shoreline and mark the stands of the grass that need treatment. They will notify land owners of the problem and are encouraging those with infestations to get in touch with LCA and grant permission for the treatment in September. LCA will also use trained professionals from the staff of the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation gave LCA a grant of more than $5,000 earlier this year to launch the program and LCA has applied for additional grants from governmental and non-governmental agencies. Individual shoreline owners will not be billed for the control efforts but LCA welcomes voluntary contributions of either money or time.

A sampling by LCA in the winter found more than 100 phragmites sites, with the heaviest concentration on the lake's South Arm between Ironton and East Jordan. Some stands were relatively small patches or just a couple of individual plants but others covered several hundred square feet.

The relatively low level of the lake in the last five years has exposed shoreline areas that were previously covered by water and lacking in native growth of any kind. These areas were easy for phragmites to invade.

Bits of plant root break off during storms or other soil disturbances and can float ashore and take root miles away from the original infestation site. The root of a single plant can grow 50 or 60 feet, sending up stalks every few inches.

"We exist to guard the lake and to preserve it for future generations," said LCA President Sam Williamson. "We want to work with individuals and with all the groups concerned about the lake when a serious problem like phragmites breaks out. These cooperative efforts are the best way to make sure that Lake Charlevoix – or any other natural resource – remains a treasure for future generations."

LCA has been increasing its efforts to preserve and protect the quality of the lake. Last year it took the lead in notifying riparians who had shoreline infected with cladophora, a greenish algal growth that is associated with fertilizers washing into the lake and with leaking septic fields.

"We exist to guard the lake and to preserve it for future generations," said

LCA President Sam Williamson. "We want to work with individuals and with all the groups concerned about the lake when a serious problem like phragmites breaks out. These cooperative efforts are the best way to make sure that Lake Charlevoix – or any other natural resource – remains a treasure for future generations."

Following the survey this summer, LCA volunteers and contractors expect to return to infested sites after Labor Day to apply the Rodeo, which will be applied to the stalks and absorbed down into the roots. Two weeks later volunteers will collect the plants' seed heads to prevent the seeds from dispersing farther. Owners of the properties are encouraged to cut down the dead stalks and dispose of them by burning or composting.

The survey will be conducted again in 2010 and additional treatment applied to the remaining phragmites plants. "We are not going to let it ruin our shores," Mishler said.

Nothing terrible about Ivan

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix High School student Bill Ivan is looking at a bright future from behind a facemask.

The 6 foot 5 inch 17-year-old has received offers of a full scholarship from Indiana University and Central Michigan University, with other colleges expected to bring their bids to the table to play football.

"I was pretty excited at first," Bill said. "It's a stepping stone, but I feel like it's one of the biggest decisions I'll make in my life."

Bill has some time to consider his options.

But, the signing deadline of the first Tuesday in February will only formalize his decision.

"Schools only have so many scholarships," he said, explaining that he'll notify the interested parties well before signing with the university of his choice.

"Wherever I go, they'll probably want to red shirt me," said Bill. "That just means that I'll be there for five years instead of four. I'll have what they call a super-senior year. I weigh 250-265 now and they'll take me along slowly my freshman year. They'll probably want to see me at about 280."

Don Jess has coached football at Charlevoix High School for seven years.

He's worked with Ivan since he made the varsity squad in his sophomore year and noted that he is one of few Charlevoix students to be offered a Division One scholarship in at least 20 years.

"He's just gotten better every year — Every practice, for that matter," Jess said. "All the players work really hard. Bill's a big kid, which got him noticed by colleges, but he's also a real intelligent kid. He's worked his him off"

Bill practices with the team three to four times a week and usually once more with his buddies.

In his junior year he lettered in football, basketball, baseball and track while maintaining a 3.86 grade point average.

"My mom was an English teacher in Pellston before she became a librarian here at the public library," Bill said. "She gave me an appreciation for reading. I'll be taking advanced placement English and literature classes this coming year. I like historical novels. History is my favorite subject."

According to Bill, a career in professional football has "never been a dream of mine. It would be nice, but that's not my goal. So few are able to make it."

Instead, he sees himself teaching and coaching football.

"When I was a kid, I looked up to Barry Sanders and Brett Favre, earlier in his career. But my real hero is my dad. He's always encouraged me and supported everything I do. He's always told me that I can make my own choices about what I want to do," he said.

"That's just part of being a parent," said Paul Ivan.

Paul and his wife Judith are proud of their son's achievements.

"Bill only played one year of Pop Warner football when he was in the fourth grade, and he played with kids who were two years older. He was always the biggest kid in his class. In the past three or four years, he's grown into his athleticism," Paul said.

A member of the Charlevoix High School class of 2010, Bill is spending his summer vacation working at the Charlevoix City Marina.

And, he said, he's anticipating a great senior year.

"I'm really looking forward to the season," he said. "We've got a good core of players coming back. It should be a lot of fun."

Detroit Pistons basketball clinic

Good News for you "basketballers". We have the Detroit Pistons offering an exciting and fun learning basketball experience with a clinic right here in Charlevoix. The Charlevoix Recreation Department and Venetian Festival Commission are sponsoring a Friday morning basketball workshop during Venetian week. The date is July 24th. At 9:00 a.m. all 2nd to 5th graders are scheduled, 6th grade through High School start at 10:30. The famous Pistons dunk team will perform between sessions. We urge you to take advantage of this opportunity to polish your fundamentals and learn basketball drills with Pistons coach

Aaron Smith at the Charlevoix Middle School gymnasium.

Pre-registration sign up is $20 and walk-up registration is $30. To reserve your spot, register now and send payment (checks made payable to Detroit Pistons) to: Dean Davenport - Commissioner of Venetian Games, 13535 Matthews Lane, Charlevoix MI 49720 or call 1-248-377-0134 for more information

Ellsworth wooden bat tournament

The 36th Annual Ellsworth Men's Slowpitch Softball Tournament will be held Friday night July 24, and all day Saturday July 25.

The tournament will be double elimination-consisting of at least 12 or more teams.

This is a wooden bat tournament with one hometime per inning. Bats are furnished.

The entry fee is $160 with first, second, third, and fourth place Sponsor trophies being awarded along with individual awards to players on the championship team; a MVP award will also be given.

This year's tournament is again sponsored by the Gold Nugget with proceeds going towards the new concession stand at the Ellsworth Sports Park.

Any team interested in participating is to contact Hugh E. Campbell (231) 544-7189 or HECamp@AOL.com.

Rayder bond projects underway

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

From storage buildings and art room expansion to renovation of the locker rooms, the Charlevoix Public Schools are utilizing their $5.9 million bond.

Also on the list is new masonry work on the Charlevoix Middle School, new windows, work on emergency lights in the gym at the elementary, painting and the upgrading of technology.

"The goal is to have all projects completed by the start of the new school year," said Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik.

Janik said Charlevoix Schools will be the only system north of Clare to have SMART boards in every classroom.

The installation of 59 interactive SMART boards will allow teachers to project computer lessons on larger screen.

Janik said the district has had great success with the boards installed in 2007 in the middle school.

Also on the list is a low volume amplification sys-

Janik said the system will allow a teacher's voice to cut through noise and distractions.

The school will spend an approximate total of $2,266,350 on technology alone.

According to the district's Web site, classroom amplification systems can offer the following results: "Higher composite test scores, improved reading and language test scores for all students at all levels, attention and on-task times improve, class interaction and participation increases, classroom management and transition times improve, student motivation and confidence increase, classroom stress is lowered, reduced throat/voice fatigue and related absenteeism, and no changes to curriculum or teaching style required."

It further stated, "Research over two decades is conclusive—classroom amplification systems improve academic performance and help to create an optimum learning environment. Some of the many benefits include."

The nearly $5,973,450 bond will be divided into the following increments:

• Building additions: High school, $80,000; Elementary school, $30,000

• Building renovations: High school, $40,000; Middle school, $940,000; Elementary school, $727,000

• Site upgrades: High school, $61,500; Middle school, $92,000; Elementary school, $134,000; District, $720,000

• Furniture and Equipment

High school, $26,600; Middle school, $205,500; Elementary school, $140,500; District, $40,000

• Vehicle and Equipment $80,000 and it's unfortunate," she said. "It's unfriendly and unwelcoming — and as a mother of three children, if my on the slim chance that someone might be honest enough to turn it in."

Fortunately for Lownds, the car behind her truck when she pulled out onto U.S. 31 belonged to a good Samaritan.

Richard Ager of Charlevoix was returning from Petoskey with his sister when they saw the backpack and a couple of boxes slide out of the open tailgate and land on the road in front of them.

"The truck pulled out and the tailgate was down. Stuff just flew out on the road," Ager said. "I couldn't believe they didn't notice. Luckily, no one was behind me and I stopped and picked it up."

The pick-up truck had disappeared by the time Ager retrieved the things from the road.

"What am I going to do with this?" he asked his sister.

She suggested checking the backpack for some sort of identification.

"I found a college acceptance letter with the owner's name and address."

I thought I could write to her, but then I thought it might be a better idea to turn it in to the police. I thought 'She needs this stuff. It could be her future.'"

Ager took the backpack and boxes to the Charlevoix police station.

"It wasn't more than a few hours later when I got a phone call from the (Petoskey) police station saying that someone had found it and immediately dropped it off to the Charlevoix police department."

Lownds said, "I cannot explain to you how relieved I was. I want to thank Richard Ager of Charlevoix for his honesty and good heart."

Ager works in plan engineering at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital.

A fourth generation resident of Charlevoix, Ager says that he knows how "tight" things are financially for a lot of people right now.

"There's a lot of bad stuff that can happen in this world," Ager said. "Sometimes you get a chance to do something nice for somebody."

Council hears tree maintenance, flagpole installation

The following actions were taken by the Charlevoix City Council during their Monday, July 20 meeting.

Item: Consider tree trimming/pruning/removal policy

In brief: The city has not had a tree maintenance policy for at least 30 years. Council discussed the proposed policy which would not only forewarn homeowners that the city would be trimming their trees in the city right-of-way, but that the city would take measures not to remove or unnecessarily damage healthy trees when possible.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Pool donation contract

In brief: Council, as in years past, offered the community pool officials a "Charlevoix Hospitality Package" to be auctioned at the pool's annual auction fundraiser on Aug. 9 at Castle Farms.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Flagpole installation

In brief: Council discussed whether to install a flagpole which once resided at Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant in East Park. Councilmembers voiced concerns from the cost of installation and maintenance to the number of flags already in the area. The motion was postponed while alternative sources of funding and a proper location are investigated.

Board action: Decision postponed indefinitely

Item: MDOT trunkline contract

In brief: Consideration to renew the contract with the Michigan Department of Transportation wherein the city is reimbursed for plowing, sweeping and maintenance of the highway.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Buy boilers and storage building

In brief: Consider whether to purchase hi-efficiency boilers and a storage building for the waste water treatment plant. The storage building would cost $25,147 and be built by Carlson's Home Improvements. The boilers will cost $35,724 with work to be completed by Hagard's Plumbing & Heating.

Board action: Unanimously approved, Mayor Norman L. Carlson abstained from discussion due to his ownership of Carlson's Home Improvements.

Item: Pesticide mix/load building

In brief: Consideration to pay Drayton Builders $11,554 to build a structure to allow for the mixing and loading of pesticides at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Frost cabins celebrates 30 years

BENJAMIN MULADORE
EDITOR

He drove a motorcycle to Detroit in the rain to pay for the cabins he built with his own two hands.

And several decades and thousands of visitors later, Al Frost is celebrating 30 years of his cabin rental business in Charlevoix County.

"I put about 10,000 hours of work into each one," Frost said. "That's about two miles of logs."

The Lake Charlevoix Vacation Log Homes are located off M-66 near the Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve and are available for rent year-round.

"We get about 1,000 people a year who come stay," Frost said. "It's a real positive boost to Charlevoix — it provides a lot of income year after year for the area."

In addition to 200 feet of sandy Lake Charlevoix beach, the two log homes offer game rooms, boats and docks, Internet, fire pits, Jacuzzi and all near 200 acres of the Sleepy Hollow Nature Preserve.

"Each home has seven bedrooms and four baths," Frost said. "They're fully equipped for family reunions, vacations, weddings and snowmobilers."

The homes are 70 feet apart, but both can be rented simultaneously for larger groups.

Over the years, Frost has had guests from world class surgeons to NASA members stay in his homes.

Frost now lives in Petoskey with his wife and two children.

But, he said, he spends plenty of time in Charlevoix managing his rental properties and even playing his guitar at Apple Fest each year.

For more information on renting on of Frost's log homes, call (231) 536-2851 or e-mail sz-frost@freeway.net.

Own a Business? Put A Retirement Plan in Place

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

If you own a small business, you have a lot to think about: sales, expenses, marketing, cash flow, competition — the list goes on and on. However, by spending so much time on the issues of today, you may overlook the concerns of tomorrow. That's why, if you haven't already done so, you need to choose a retirement plan for your business.

Which plan is right for you? It depends on different factors, such as how many employees you have and how much you can afford to contribute each year. Let's take a look at some popular retirement plans for small businesses:

• Owner-only 401(k) — Also known as an individual 401(k), an owner-only 401(k) offers you many of the same advantages of a traditional 401(k): a range of investment options, tax-deductible contributions and tax-deferred earnings growth. You may even be able to choose a Roth option for your 401(k), which allows you to make after-tax contributions that can grow tax free. In 2009, you can contribute up to $49,000 to your owner-only 401(k) or $54,500 if you're 50 or older. (To make deductible contributions for the 2009 tax year, you'll need to set up your plan by Dec. 31, 2009.)

• Solo defined benefit plan — You may have thought you had to work for a big company to participate in a traditional pension plan, also known as a defined benefit plan, but you can set one up for yourself if you're self-employed or own your own business. This plan has high contribution limits, which are determined by an actuarial calculation, and your contributions are typically tax-deductible.

• SEP IRA — If you have just a few employees or are self-employed with no employees, and you're looking for a low-cost, low-maintenance retirement plan, you may want to consider a SEP IRA. You'll fund the plan with tax-deductible contributions, and you must cover all eligible employees. (Employees themselves cannot contribute.) You can contribute up to 25% of compensation (if you're an employee of your own corporation) or 20% of income if you're self-employed, up to $49,000 annually. And you can fund your SEP IRA with virtually any type of investment you choose.

• SIMPLE IRA — As its name suggests, a SIMPLE IRA is quite easy to set up and maintain, and it can be a good plan if your business has fewer than 10 employees. As the business owner, you must contribute in one of two ways: a dollar-for-dollar match of up to 3% of salary or a contribution of 2% of employees' salaries (up to $4,900 per year). Employee contributions are tax-deductible, and your matching contributions are generally deductible as a business expense. Still, while a SIMPLE IRA may be advantageous for your employees, it's less generous to you, as far as allowable contributions, than an owner-only 401(k), a defined benefit plan or a SEP IRA. For 2009, your annual contributions are generally limited to $11,500, or $14,000 if you're 50 or older by the end of the year. You can also make a matching contribution of up to 3% to yourself.

To determine which plan is best for you, consult with your tax advisor and a financial advisor who has experience with small businesses. But don't wait too long to get started — you're moving closer to retirement all the time.

Business going to the dogs

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

The sign at the entrance of K9 Cuisine reads "Pets and well-behaved owners welcome," along with suggestions to "Come," "Sit" and "Stay."

K9 Cuisine.com, the fastest growing pet food store on the web, opened a storefront in Charlevoix on July 3. Anthony Holloway, CEO and founder of the family-owned online business based in Paris, Ill., credits the impetus for K9 Cuisine to the family's 6-year-old yellow Lab Daisy.

"The reason for the business began with Daisy," said Holloway. "She was a 1-and-a-half-year old who went back to the breeder because of behavioral problems."

Holloway, his wife Kate and their children, Ryan, Maggie and Max adopted Daisy.

"We got her diet figured out and she became a regular dog," he said.

The family's commitment to providing their pet with wholesome, natural nutrition proved problematic.

Sources changed or discontinued products, shipping was expensive and sometimes weeks passed before their orders arrived.

"One day, in the height of frustration, we said, 'We can do this better,'" Holloway said.

That was in 2007. Today, K9Cuisine.com has become a leading source for premium pet food, treats, chews and toys.

"A lot of our products are made with human-grade ingredients," Holloway said. "We have a 29-point selection process for nutrition and production standards."

Opening a store in northern Michigan has allowed the family to combine their love of the area with their new business.

"We've spent the past five or six summers here and we just bought a place this year," Holloway said. "We've never done brick and mortar retail before, but Katie's done a fantastic job with the store."

Pet owners are encouraged to bring their dogs and browse the selections.

"How can you have a dog store without dogs?" Holloway said.

There are always bowls of fresh water and samples of the wide variety of treats available set out for snacking.

Jimmy Buffet music wafts out onto the street and Daisy welcomes her peers and their people, lifting her head and thumping her tail on the floor.

Pet sitter, Haley Georgi, stopped by to say hello with a gamboling black pooch named Parker.

Daisy and Parker greeted each other like old friends and Georgi ducked inside to grab a treat from a bowl by the door.

"My roommate told me about the store," said Georgi. "She came in and bought treats for her dog Lucky."

The whole idea is to create a positive experience for dogs and humans the same way they do online, only physically instead of electronically, Holloway said.

"We want to exceed our customer's expectations, and that's not just words on a business plan," he said. "We have people who stop by every day and grab a treat and say hi. This is one of the best towns for dogs I've ever seen. One of the best places for kids and families, too."

Holloway said he is well-versed on the products that he carries and happy to answer questions.

If an item is unavailable at the store, the staff will assist with online orders.

Shipping is free with online orders of $50 or more and 95 percent of the orders ship on the day they're received.

"We generally ship within

two to two-and-a-half hours after we receive the order," Holloway said.

In April, teaming with one of their vendors, the WellPet Foundation, K9 Cuisine donated 6,000 pounds of food to the Pooch Pantry in Mundelein, Ill., to assist dog owners struggling with budget constraints in these economically challenging times.

And, in the wake of the devastation of Hurricane Ike in September 2008, Kate and Anthony Holloway drove 1,200 miles to deliver six-and-a-half tons of food to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in the Houston/Galveston, Texas area.

At that time, the Houston animal shelter was taking in more than 200 displaced animals per day.

"This is something that we feel very fortunate to be a part of," Holloway said. "It's very consistent with our core values of helping rescue and helping dogs." K9 Cuisine is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays. Sunday's hours are noon to 6 p.m. K9 Cuisine is located at 208 Bridge St.

Business going to the dogs

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

The sign at the entrance of K9 Cuisine reads "Pets and well-behaved owners welcome," along with suggestions to "Come," "Sit" and "Stay."

K9 Cuisine.com, the fastest growing pet food store on the web, opened a storefront in Charlevoix on July 3. Anthony Holloway, CEO and founder of the family owned online business based in Paris, Ill., credits the impetus for K9 Cuisine to the family's 6-year-old yellow Lab Daisy.

"The reason for the business began with Daisy," said Holloway. "She was a 1-and-a-half year old who went back to the breeder because of behavioral problems."

Holloway, his wife Kate and their children, Ryan, Maggie and Max adopted Daisy. "We got her diet figured out and she became a regular dog," he said.

The family's commitment to providing their pet with wholesome, natural nutrition proved problematic.

Sources changed or discontinued products, shipping was expensive and sometimes weeks passed before their orders arrived.

"One day, in the height of frustration, we said, 'We can do this better,'" Holloway said.

That was in 2007. Today, K9cuisine.com has become a leading source for premium pet food, treats, chews and toys.

"A lot of our products are made with human-grade ingredients," Holloway said. "We have a 29-point selection process for nutrition and production standards."

Opening a store in northern Michigan has allowed the family to combine their love of the area with their new business.

"We've spent the past five or six summers here and we just bought a place this year," Holloway said. "We've never done brick and mortar retail before, but Katie's done a fantastic job with the store."

Pet owners are encouraged to bring their dogs and browse the selections.

"How can you have a dog store without dogs?" Holloway said.

There are always bowls of fresh water and samples of the wide variety of treats available set out for snacking.

Jimmy Buffet music wafts out onto the street and Daisy welcomes her peers and their people, lifting her head and thumping her tail on the floor.

Pet sitter, Haley Georgi, stopped by to say hello with a gamboling black pooch named Parker.

Daisy and Parker greeted each other like old friends and Georgi ducked inside to grab a treat from a bowl by the door.

"My roommate told me about the store," said Georgi. "She came in and bought treats for her dog Lucky."

The whole idea is to create a positive experience for dogs and humans the same way they do online, only physically instead of electronically, Holloway said.

"We want to exceed our customer's expectations, and that's not just words on a business plan," he said. "We have people who stop by every day and grab a treat and say hi. This is one of the best towns for dogs I've ever seen. One of the best places for kids and families, too."

Holloway said he is well-versed on the products that he carries and happy to answer questions.

If an item is unavailable at the store, the staff will assist with online orders.

Shipping is free with online orders of $50 or more and 95 percent of the orders ship on the day they're received.

"We generally ship within two to two-and-a-half hours after we receive the order," Holloway said.

In April, teaming with one of their vendors, the WellPet Foundation, K9 Cuisine donated 6,000 pounds of food to the Pooch Pantry in Mundelein, Ill. to assist dog owners struggling with budget constraints in these economically challenging times.

And, in the wake of the devastation of Hurricane Ike in September 2008, Kate and Anthony Holloway drove 1,200 miles to deliver six-and-a-half tons of food to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in the Houston/Galveston, Texas area.

"This is something that we feel very fortunate to be a part of," Holloway said. "It's very consistent with our core values of helping rescue and helping dogs."

K9 Cuisine is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays.

Sunday's hours are noon to 6 p.m. K9 Cuisine is located at 208 Bridge St.

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Dear friends of Northwest Michigan:

It was a great pleasure to return home recently for the grand re-opening of Resort Township's East Park. While the weather for the June 20th celebration was cool and cloudy, the moods of those who attended were bright; the event provided a visible example of the environmental progress being made by CMS Land Company at the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project.

At CMS Land, we are proud of the work that has been done at East Park and all along the shoreline near the Bay Harbor community. The solutions installed at East Park have worked well and environmental results have been impressive. Monitoring of the lake shows that the safeguards are working. And, in June, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan opened all access to the lake at the park. Now, we turn the page.

Soon, CMS Land will deliver to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency information collected from our monitoring wells at East Park to help establish standards for mercury as the project moves toward completion. Positive results from this monitoring should lead to having long-term oversight of the project moved from the federal government to state officials here in Michigan. In addition, CMS continues its work to find a safe and cost-effective local option to dispose of the water collected at East Park and at locations in the Bay Harbor community, including using proven methods to safely release the water to the lake.

These will all be exciting milestones in the life of this project, one that began with an abandoned cement factory and just recently celebrated the reopening of a world-class public park.

I would like to thank all those who helped make the opening of East Park a great success. We will build on that success as we move into the final stages of this environmental effort.

Sincerely,

David C. Menzies

Venetian aftermath:
How did Charlevoix fare?BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Silence fills the Odmark Pavilion, no longer is Clinton Street stuffed with rides and games and the fireworks are but a memory.

So, how did festival organizers, local law enforcement and businesses do during the 79th Annual Venetian Festival?

"We were very pleased with the way things staged this year," said Venetian Festival board president Dan Barron. "We were also very fortunate to dodge the bullet with the inclement weather — we ended up coming out very well with only a couple days where weather had a negative impact."

Barron said events like Venetian Vision, which had a 500-person turnout, were very successful.

Record attendance was also set on kids' day, though carnival numbers were down, Barron said, due to the weather.

And, while the Saturday, July 18 Beach Bash saw conditions of rain, fog and clouds, it will likely make a return to the festival.

"The week went very smooth. See AFTERMATH, page 24

Charlevoix won't need full amount of federal grantNOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The city's harbor may be in line for more than $200,000 in federal grant money, but state and local officials say that full amount will not be necessary this year.

According to a recent release, the Charlevoix harbor was set to receive $203,000 so that the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers could complete surveying and dredging work this year. However, following a condition survey the Corps deemed there was no need to dredge Tom O'Bryan, an area engineer in the Corps Lake Michigan office, said that currents, wind and ice obstruction vary from year to year.

"In a typical year material moves in from Lake Michigan and develops a shoal at the entrance of the channel," O'Bryan said. "It did not develop this year and we did not need to use our crane barge to remove that obstruction."

Hal Evans, the Charlevoix Municipal Marina's harbor master, agreed that because of the high water levels in Round Lake, dredging is unnecessary this year.

"Water levels rose," he said, "so we're copasetic."

Fireworks reflect over Round Lake, Friday evening in Charlevoix, as part of the Venetian Festival. The rain didn't hold off quite long enough, dampening the crowd just after the fireworks began. The festival came to a climax Saturday, July 25, with the morning street parade at 11 a.m., the lighted boat parade at dusk, and low level fireworks on Round Lake.

CAR CRASH

At 10:05 a.m. on July 16, Eugene Kerr (age 42) of Petoskey lost control of her vehicle while traveling east on Boyne City/Charlevoix Road near Old 31 north.

Kerr was wearing her seat belt and both driver side and passenger air bags deployed when the vehicle struck trees alongside the roadway. Charlevoix County Sheriff and deputies responded to the scene along with Michigan State Police.

Charlevoix EMS transported Kerr to Charlevoix Area Hospital for evaluation.

Kerr sustained minor lacerations to her face.

Charlevoix County Road Commission downed trees to free Kerr's vehicle so it could be removed from the woods.

The accident remains under investigation at this time.

• ORV crash

At 5:35 p.m. on Friday, July 17, at West Road east of C-56 — BC/Charlevoix Road — in Bay Township.

Bay driving an '03 TRX250 Honda quad runner. Alcohol was not a factor, no helmet worn.

Quad runner struck a '92 Chevrolet 1-ton pick-up head-on taking front driver's side wheel off of truck and destroying the quad runner.

Off-road vehicle then spun into ditch ejecting the driver. The pick-up was driven by Cody Ray Crandell of Boyne City, and he was not injured.

The quad runner driver was seriously injured and transported to Northern Michigan Hospital by Boyne City EMS.

The ORV driver was ticketed for careless driving and not wearing a helmet. The pick-up driver was not at fault.

Both vehicles were towed from the scene in inoperable condition.

• Water incident

At 4:54 p.m. on July 20, at Slip #98 at the Harborage Marina in Boyne City.

Mark Simmons, 58, of Boyne City, was working on the dock when he fell into the water.

Charlevoix Sheriff's marine officers responded and were assisted at the scene by Boyne City Police Department and Boyne City Ambulance.

BIRTHS

Landen Matthew Whisler weighing 7 pounds, 7 ounces was born on July 21, at Charlevoix Area Hospital to Shelly Barrow and Justin Whisler of Charlevoix. His siblings are Robert and Ramona Barrow of Crystal Lake, Ray and Kris Whisler of Ellsworth. His great-grandparents are Wanda Barrow, and Marilyn Roach, both of Central Lake and Joyce Blair of Coldwater.

The quad runner driver was seriously injured and transported to Northern Michigan Hospital by Boyne City EMS.

Old time rock & roll

One of East Jordan's original rock and roll bands returns home Friday, July 31, when they take to the stage in East Jordan's Memorial Park. When they do, this four piece band will play two hours of classic rock and roll music from the 1960s to the 1980s. The Full Circle was an early 1970s top 40 rock band that played at area teen centers as well as at area high school dances. Two of the original members John Slough and Nick Liak return as part of this "hometown reunion" concert. Joining them will be Roger Liak on bass guitar, wind synthesizer, and vocals, and local drummer Rich Simmons. The concert is from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday, July 31 in East Jordan's Memorial Park Bandshell.

Duty or harassment?

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Some local auto lots are throwing up an SOS after dealing with one Michigan Secretary of State inspector.

A used car dealer, an RV salvage yard owner and a motorcycle repair/cycle shop in Charlevoix are all crying foul — but, the state says it was merely doing its job.

"I've never been treated like that," said Ron and Shirley Daugherty, owners of D&D Salvage & Surplus.

The Daughertys said Sue Grimm with the Secretary of State's inspection unit was rude and antagonistic when she made the surprise inspection to their business.

Grimm declined to comment.

Daugherty and his wife Shirley claim to have the largest selection of RV and motorhome parts in six states. But, they said, even a thriving salvage business has its slow times.

"We go to Florida every winter, that's where I work. Nobody's buying motorhome parts in January," Ron said.

"What am I supposed to do? This is a seasonal business."

Ken Silfven, with the Office of Communications in the Michigan Department of State, said the Daughertys are welcome to go to Florida each winter so long as they appoint someone to keep the business open 30 hours per week per state law.

The reason each lot owner was inspected apparently differed, but the complaints of mistreatment by the inspector in question were similar.

"She (Grimm) said she wanted to see the police book and standard paperwork," said Craig Cooper, manager of Maxwell Bros. Cycle Shop in Charlevoix. "I didn't have a police book to show her because we haven't made any purchases or sales — we're a repair facility. We got the license to buy and sell in the event that we may eventually wish to do so."

He added, "She found it hard to believe we had made no purchases."

Grimm next turned her attention to the half-dozen or so motorcycles on the showroom floor.

"She asked, 'Are you charging a fee to sell these?' I told her 'No. This is a courtesy to our customers,'" Cooper said.

"She said it could be confusing to the customers, but we are in the service business and this is a service I can offer my customers. It's a bike shop — it looks better with bikes on the floor."

He added, "I have customers walk in here every day and say, 'Where are the bikes?'"

Silfven said his inspector was told the customer motorcycles were on consignment and he added that brokers need a Class D license.

"Consignment?" I never used that term, I know better," Cooper said.

Grimm then accused Cooper of purchasing two four-door Dodge vehicles with the company license and failing to have valid paperwork on them.

"I again told her we did not buy or sell anything new or used. I said it must be a mistake," he said. "She was not kind."

"The law is the law. It's our duty to enforce it and the obligation of license holders to obey it," said Silfven. "Any time you enforce the law, not everyone is going to be happy. But, I can assure you that nobody is being treated unfairly — that's not how our staff conducts itself."

Grimm's superior Terry Jorgensen said it's not the state's job to try to shut businesses down.

"If somebody doesn't want to stay in business, we'll help track their demise, but it's up to them to lose the license, not for us to take it," Jorgensen said. "Trust me; they're not being harassed."

Like the Daughertys, Cooper said Maxwell Bros.' owners have discussed closing during slow winter months, but now fear that is not an option.

"Big heating bills eat us up and we don't do much business after the holidays up until April or May," Cooper said. "But it looks like it's difficult to reapply for our license."

Fellow dealers say they believe Tom Keie, owner of Reliable Auto & Truck Sales at 06798 U.S. 31 in Charlevoix received the worst treatment by being threatened with closure and having his ability to buy and sell used cars suspended for at least two months.

Keie declined to comment on the alleged harassment by Grimm citing fear of retribution from the Michigan Department of State.

part of the Secretary of State.

Keie said he bought a car from a dealership in Petoskey and sold it to someone who complained that it took too long to deliver the title.

Due to that alleged incident, he was accused of several violations including poor record keeping and failing to deliver a title in a timely manner, but has since had his license fully reinstated.

Alleged violations at the time of investigation on D&D included no established place of business and records not available for inspection since the couple was in Florida.

Mid-summer garden report

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

While I certainly enjoy fresh vegetables from the kitchen garden, and watching plants grow is one of my favorite activities, I have several lazy genes.

That means I don't wish to spend any more time than is necessary in the weeding, planting and cultivating of that garden.

My ultimate goal would be to have a garden that needed only spring cultivation and thereafter would grow what I like and need without any further planting.

Each year I am coming closer to that goal.

This year's garden has at least ten annuals coming up abundantly from seed produced in place every year.

That is not counting the potato plant, tomato plant and unusual squash that show up occasionally from the previous year's leftovers.

Winter Mustard is a spicy, flavorful red-leaved volunteer that comes up each year in such abundance that I must remove some of the plants or allow other things to grow.

It produces seed by midsummer and will grow another crop from that seed before frost in the fall. It is delicious both in salads and as a cooked green.

There are a couple of closely related curly endive plants that also produce seed by midsummer after providing some of the earliest salad greens.

A common weed called Lamb's Quarters is a wonderful early, spinach-like green that would take over the garden if I didn't remove most of it each year before it produces seed in late summer.

Without my encouragement it makes some of the most delicious vegetables in the whole garden. I let a few plants of early-planted Leaf Lettuce bloom and seed each year and harvest early leaf lettuce the following spring.

The plants show up randomly, around their corner of the garden, and need a little bit of early protection to do their best.

Both Dill, for the dried leaves and seed, and Cilantro, with the later seed pods that I save for coriander, grow each year without any of my help, and could be considered weeds by folks who don't recognize the young plants.

Annual poppies with large, red, double blooms produce not only a lovely July appearance, but provide more than enough poppy seed for the spice and herb shelf.

They come up by the hundreds all over the garden after spring cultivation and have to be treated as weeds in places I don't want them.

Annual Wormwood, also called Sweet Annie, started from three plants three years ago, and now comes up almost everywhere.

The plants are insect repellent and with some preparation make a very interesting flavoring for Vermouth.

I suspect that, scattered around those things that I actually plant, they help control insect population.

More than a decade ago I purchased a few seeds of a plant called Shoo-fly or apple of Peru.

As the name suggests, it too is insect repellent. It has lovely large blue flowers all summer and attractive seed pods that are good for dried arrangements.

But it is there reliably each year and if the recession gets really bad, maybe we'll need it.

If I have counted right, that is eleven kinds of plants that seed themselves in my garden each year.

Consider them garden volunteers.

I do have to plant some things, but I'm closing in on my goal of no planting at all and just judicious weeding to keep the wilder kinds in check.

There are several other sorts of persistent weeds that I have not yet tried out as food.

Purslane, which comes up in early July most years, has both food and medicinal qualities, according to some authorities.

Seems it is a good source of omega-3 fatty acids. The garden future looks bright.

Flirting with fashion faux pas: hip or horrible?

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwilt

I've been hearing a lot recently about age appropriate attire for women.

Fashion experts pound their fists like ministers admonishing a sinful flock.

Models representing multiple generations are pictured in glossy fashion mags swathed in pieces that reflect a progressively dwindling ability to carry off haute couture.

It seems to be a hot topic. The illustrations for these "How to Dress Your Age" articles segue through the decades, beginning with women in their twenties, who are allowed to wear anything.

In our 30s, a nod to professional decorum is prevalent and by the time we turn 40, we're hedging into dowager territory.

Hemlines drop and necklines rise until eventually we're draped in tweed and turtlenecks, gripping a valise-sized purse full of coupons and hard candy.

It's my determination that the source of this controversy emanates from a well-meaning, albeit dismissive effort to discourage women over forty from running around in fishnet stockings and bomber jackets—a reasonable, if not lofty, endeavor.

Nobody wants to see mom decked out like Cher in a Vegas review, probably not even Chastity.

I believe that the intention is noble, but the list of dos and don'ts is offensively jejune.

I've been dressing myself for years. I have a mirror. If something is sticking out or jiggling, I will drape it in black.

I don't need to be reminded that sweat pants with the word "Juicy" emblazoned on the derriere are not an option.

Although, having mentioned it, that example has nothing to do with age.

No matter how adorable it may be, your butt is not a billboard.

Unless it says "butt," writing on the seat of your pants will never be an accurate reflection of who you are.

And isn't that what fashion is all about? Aren't we seeking to define ourselves outwardly by what we choose to wear without literally spelling it out?

I understand that when I run to the store for a gallon of ice cream in flip-flops, jeans and a baseball cap, I am saying, "Don't notice me. I'm invisible."

But, I also recognize the penchant for a festive costume.

Accessorizing tentatively at age four, I carried a chic poodle-print umbrella everywhere, rain or shine. I graduated to psychedelic tights and go-go boots in high school and moved on to full-blown funky by the time I turned 20.

Thrift stores had not yet become a popular source for financially challenged fashionistas and the pickings were good. A colorful Mexican tourist jacket with felt appliqués of donkeys and sombreros worn over a frothy World War II-era formal—that smelled only faintly of mothballs—was one of my favorite outfits. It made an eye-popping Tribal Military Princess statement in combination with a pair of lug-soled Doc Martin's.

I hope that I never completely give up the concept of wardrobe as art.

Just because I've retired the demented prom queen getup doesn't mean that I'm willing to schlep around in elastic-waist denim. I believe that it's our privilege and even our responsibility to continue to make at least a rudimentary effort to amuse our fellow human beings when we venture out in public.

It's up to each of us to decide how we will present ourselves. Make your mantra, "What can I wear to have fun today?"

Maybe you're in an Eddie Bauer frame of mind. It happens. And it's okay to reach for the khakis, but it's not mandatory.

A caftan with a turban and enough jewelry to anchor a dirigible is one example of an eccentric old hat ensemble that has enjoyed a respectable run, but it too has become cliché.

Why not at least consider some more creative options once in a while?

Going about with helium balloons tied to the hem of your skirt could backfire or it could be the next cover of Vogue.

Either way, it would be hilarious. And that does count for something because fashion is supposed to be fun. Since they're going to get all up in our business anyway, let's really give 'em something to talk about.

SCHOOL BOARD

Editor: On the evening of July 13, I was in attendance as a guest along with my husband, Chuck (Herring, Michigan Education Association Uniserv Director from the Alpena area) at your local school board meeting.

During the Public Comments section on the agenda, several teachers spoke from prepared statements, and referred to displayed informational posters along the side of the room. Their statements highlighted a number of ways that the school district could save large amounts of money during taxing negotiations on a contract that in my understanding has been expired for some time.

Additionally, one of the teachers spoke to concessions that had been made by the educational staff in the past. The entire presentation was professionally and respectfully conducted, even though it was evident there was some frustration present due to the unsettled contract, and one teacher did indicate that many of the staff felt unappreciated.

After the teachers completed their statements, the board conducted the remainder of their meeting until a second opportunity arose on the agenda for comments once again. The board members were additionally allowed to make comments.

Board member Jeff Stevens offered a highly respectful reply to the earlier teacher presentations, and apologized for any indications that the staff was not appreciated. He assured the staff that such was not the case that each and every staff person was in fact thought very highly of.

He added that he was grateful for the information presented this evening, and that he would take it all under consideration in these difficult times.

Up until this moment, the entire meeting was conducted professionally and respectfully, and then following Mr. Boss's words, board member Judith Ivan, seated to the left of boss, made a statement that left me utterly shocked and appalled.

Mrs. Ivan was obviously extremely upset by the contract negotiation issues and started her statement by saying that only one thing in world is guaranteed to be black and white—the rising and setting of the sun, and that everything in between was "difficult."

She then added that something else was black and white, and that was that the school system had no money in the bank.

She mentioned that she knew of two professionals who had recently lost their jobs and that the school staff should be grateful just to be employed. (Should the unfortunate loss of two jobs be "paid for" by an educational staff?)

What was so utterly astounding to me was first of all, the glaring omission of any reference to all the prepared statements and posters which actually highlighted constructive, doable ways to save the district large amounts of money, thereby providing funding to facilitate in the settlement of the contract.

The teachers had in effect, handed the board some additional funding which was totally ignored by Mrs. Ivan. Secondly, the emotion with which Judith Ivan delivered her comments, with noticeable reddening of the face and palpable vocal irritation, was topped off by what looked very much like tears in her eyes. All this was evident from my vantage point in the back of the room. It was as if Judith Ivan somehow had a personal stake in the issues, which left me confused and wondering if a member who is so emotionally caught up in these issues can be a fair and impartial decision maker on a school board.

If I were a voter in the Charlevoix school district, I would not vote for Mrs. Ivan to hold a seat on this board.

It is unfortunate when one board member takes the issues and makes such a fuss, but for the sake of the school staff in the Charlevoix district, one can only have confidence in the fairness of the remaining members to look at the helpful information so carefully researched and provided so that an agreement can be reached in the near future.

Sincerely,
Jan Herring

HAPPY 100TH, CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Editor: A warm welcome is extended to each of you by the members of the Christian Science society of Charlevoix, our community Church, celebrating 100 years in Charlevoix.

In the summer of 1906 a group of area visitors, students of Christian Science, began meeting.

By autumn of 1908 the informal meetings were extended throughout the year. By May 24, 1909, this group formed and adopted the by-laws that govern our church today.

Still operating, Sunday Church Services are at 11 a.m. with Wednesday Evening Meetings at 7 p.m.

All are welcome to celebrate our 100 years in Charlevoix with us.

Wonderful stories abound of traveling to church in horse drawn sleighs in winter as well as walking through the quiet, little fish town on pleasant summer Sundays.

Memories are treasured of visiting the friendly church filled with bouquets of home grown blue delphinium, attending Wednesday Evening Meetings as the sun set over Lake Michigan to give a first testimony, traveling to Sunday School with families. Our cozy church became an oasis.

Established 100 years ago in 1909, we continue still "to reinstate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing," a mission set forth by Discoverer and Founder Mary Baker Eddy.

We are one of many branches worldwide of The Mother church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Spirituality.com has expanded to include live interacting discussions as well as archives of printed articles on Christian Science. You may search into its calendar of events for something of interest to you.

9:30 a.m., Sunday on 580 AM radio, the Christian Science Sentinel Radio Program continues to be well received. To commemorate our 100th year, a talk will be sponsored by this Society along with the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Petoskey. The free talk entitled "Discover Your Divine Connection to Overflowing Resources" by Mary Walters, C.S.B. of St. Louis, Mo., will be held at 7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 7, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

All will be joyfully welcomed. Char Smith Ellsworth

Soiree to support swimming

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix Area Community Pool is hosting its 20th annual fundraiser at 5:30 p.m. on Aug. 9 at Castle Farms.

The dinner/auction's proceeds will be used to fund the daily operational expenses of the pool.

"The major mission of the pool is to teach swimming to children," said Bruce MacArthur, founding member of the Charlevoix County citizen's group, Conservation and Renewable Energy (CARE). "The city used to teach swimming in Lake Charlevoix."

MacArthur, a patron of the project, has played an active role in making the community pool a reality.

He has even made provisions in his will for the continued success of the pool's programs.

MacArthur said that he feels it's important for kids to learn how to swim, especially since they are living in an area that is surrounded by water.

"I started with a survey of 20 some pools across the country," MacArthur said, explaining the research that was done early in the conception of the project. "A lot of us worked hard to raise the money and make it happen."

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool fundraiser is being held at Castle Farms for the first time this year.

"Until now, we've always held it at the Charlevoix Country Club. They did a great job for us, but space was limited to about 150 people," said MacArthur. "We can accommodate 200 at Castle Farms, and we've dropped the ticket price from to $50 this year."

Items to be auctioned during the event include an undecorated surprise donation from Charlevoix Ace Hardware and a hand painted chest from Bartlett's Home Interiors, among others.

A GEM (Global Electric Motors) from Fox Charlevoix will also be offered to the highest bidder.

The American-made NEV (Neighborhood Electric Vehicle) is from Chrysler. Battery powered and street-legal on roads posted at 35 mph or less, the donated electric car is one of 20 available at the fox lot, according to sales manager, Frank Veraldi.

The event is co-chaired by Mark Geyerbrecht and Mike Dow. Tickets are available at the Charlevoix Community Pool, Charlevoix Camera, or by calling 541-1222.

Good-bye, Mr. Stamps

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Ted Pennell has sorted out his future.

The Charlevoix Post Office employee is retiring from his position behind the counter on July 31, and he tells those that ask about his plans that he intends to become a grumpy old man, sit in the park and feed pigeons.

"They tell me all I have to do is learn how to feed pigeons," Pennell said. And then he mentioned another option.

"I'll probably be a ranger at a golf course."

For 30 years, Pennell has greeted customers, traded jokes and memorized the names and faces of the city's population.

"I made a lot of friends. There are a lot of good people in Charlevoix," he said.

Pennell carried city routes when he first started working at the Post Office.

"We clerked some days and carried some days. They don't do that anymore," he said. "Now you're either a clerk or a carrier, but we did a little of everything then."

Born in Grand Haven, Pennell moved to Petoskey with his family in 1978.

He met his wife, Lucy, at a high school football game.

"It was cold out, and my friend and I asked the girls if they wanted to sit in our car and watch the game," Pennell recalled. "I asked her out at the end of the night. Our first date, I took her to a football game in Harbor Springs."

Pennell

The couple has been married for 36 years and their children Jennifer, 24, and Tim, 23, are both dean list students at Eastern Michigan University and Saginaw Valley State University, respectively.

A sports enthusiast, Pennell played fast pitch softball and volleyball in Petoskey, and later coached Little League and women's softball before discovering an affinity for golf.

He says that he hopes to work on his game now that he'll have the time.

He's also looking forward to a little rest and relaxation.

Pennell doesn't own a cell phone or a computer, and he chooses to distance himself from the demands and distractions of modern communication devices.

"I don't want to be constantly available. I just like things simple and calm," he said. "My kids give me a hard time about it, but I'm not that into technology."

Pennell recalled answering some unlikely questions during his 30 years.

"One customer asked, 'How much is a two-cent stamp?' I told them it was two cents, but I could give them two for four cents. Another time, someone asked me how long the Forever Stamp was good for. Forever. It's good forever."

After a while, Pennell said, he learned which customers he could joke around with. But he made it a point to give good service to everyone.

"People want to be treated with common courtesy. I just tried to be right and truthful with them."

Summing up his 30 year career with the Post Office, Pennell said "I enjoyed my time there and I'm glad they put up with me."

The kid's got pipes

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

How often does someone try-out for something they've never done before and discover they were a star all along?

It may sound like a made-for-TV movie, but 18-year-old Stephen Beck of Charlevoix only recently began acting and then learned he could sing — well enough to be a Young American.

"We didn't know he could act and sing," said Beck's mother Penny Berlage. "I mean, we've always sang growing up. As a single mom, that's what we do: watch movies and travel up from Tennessee (to visit family) and because we watched so many Disney movies, we can do the entire movie verbatim — dialogue and song."

She added, "I something happens at the dinner table where a certain word is said, we break out in song."

Beck first realized his love of acting when the Charlevoix High School Performing Arts program needed someone to play Colonel Mustard in Clue the Musical.

Beck also played the mayor of Whoville in Seussical the Musical and recently played Gaston in a production of Beauty and the Beast in Harbor Springs.

"A promoter for the Young Americans was in the audience at the show (Beauty and the Beast) and told him he should audition," Berlage said.

Beck said he was so nervous he nearly didn't go to the audition.

"I was concerned that it might be kind of pointless to go because I didn't know if I was good enough for them," he said. "But, they liked my personality and singing voice."

Beck received his letter of acceptance from the Young Americans in the days following the audition.

The Young Americans is a traveling music and dance troupe which was formed nearly 50 years ago. Young singers, dancers and musicians from 15 to 21 years old, who are accepted, get the chance to live near the Young Americans' campus in California and learn their style of upbeat Broadway-style performances.

Beck now must raise nearly $10,000 to pay for the year's tuition to the Young Americans' school.

"I'm going to be working through this next winter to save up," he said.

Tuition is $8,500 and Beck said he will need several thousand for incidental expenses.

Berlage said she is very proud of her son and hopes he can come up with the finances needed to enjoy this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"I really want to go out there and experience this for my life," Beck said.

Berlage added, "It shows that a kid from a small town can go on and make it."

Beck has until June 2010 to raise the funds necessary to participate in the Young Americans' school.

Anyone interested in helping Beck fulfill his dream may send donations c/o The Stephen Beck Fund, Patricia Leitner, 6685 M-66 North, #26, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

"I would greatly appreciate any help because it will be very hard for him to earn all the money he needs," Berlage added.

Beck said he will accept any help he can get.

"This is something I really want to do. I never thought I would be able to do something like this," he said.

Cruise on research vessel

Grand Valley State University's W.G. Jackson research vessel is offering cruises into Lake Michigan as part of its Making Lake Michigan Great 2009 tour.

The purpose of the tour is to spread the word about the management plan for Lake Michigan and gather input on lakewide issues from the public at the tour's ports of call.

The W.G. Jackson is the 65-foot specially designed research and education vessel of the Grand Valley's Annis Water Resources Institute (AWRI).

The Jackson takes out more than 3,000 people per year on hands-on educational cruises.

There is no charge to participants on Jackson cruises.

The tour schedule for the general public at the Charlevoix stop is 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m. and 2:45 p.m. to 4 p.m. on July 30.

To reserve a spot, for age 9 and above, call the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau at (800) 367-8557 or 237-0920.

Space is limited. The Jackson science instructors and crew, in cooperation with local hosts, provide the program for the cruises on the tour.

Generally, there are cruises for groups of up to 30 adults and children.

On cruises, participants experience hands-on science as they sample and analyze lake water.

There are presentations about the Lake Michigan Lakewide Management Plan, the U.S. EPA Lake Michigan Forum, and local issues of concern.

On the vessel are informational handouts for the public and some space for displays from local groups.

The tour is a project of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Lake Michigan Forum in cooperation with the AWRI.

The EPA's Great Lakes National Program Office funds the tour.

This will be the 12th year for Making Lake Michigan Great. During these years, 33 ports of call in Lake Michigan will have been visited.

The 2009 Tour reaches Milwaukee, Port Washington, Beaver Island, Charlevoix and White Lake.

Information gathered on the tour about lakewide concerns helps the Lake Michigan Forum with its mission, which is to be a public input group to the U.S. EPA's Lake Michigan efforts.

For more details about the tour, contact Dr. Janet Vail, GVSU-AWRI associate professor and co-chair, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Lake Michigan Forum, at (616) 331-3048 or vailj@gvsu.edu.

Shining light on the restoration project

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER
The newly-painted South Pier lighthouse will be presented to the public in a ceremony at the South Pier/Pine River Channel at 3 p.m. on Aug. 5. Stripped of the old lead-based paint, the structure has been repainted a traditional lighthouse red, completing phase two of the restoration process.

"The city owns it, but the Charlevoix Historical Society has a sub-lease as the stewards of the lighthouse," said Mary Adams, who co-chairs the Lighthouse Restoration Committee, along with Mike Bergeon. "We apply for the grants, raise the money, get the bids, commission the architectural plans and supervise the work."

Phase one of the four-phase restoration project was to weatherproof the structure, and phase two involved repairing the steel braces and painting the exterior.

Phases three and four will include interior painting and replacement of brass fittings and perhaps an old-fashioned foghorn.

"We found the plans for the old diaphone foghorn and there's a possibility that we may be able to have it replicated," Bergeon said. "We're hoping that the coast guard will give us their permission to do that."

Marking the entrance from Round Lake into Lake Michigan, the beacon of the lighthouse shone for the first time on Sept. 1, 1885.

Standing seven feet above the lake, the light was visible for nine-and-a-half miles out on the water, during clear conditions.

Situated at the mouth of the Pine River, the original structure was located at the end of the north pier.

The pyramid-shaped wooden lighthouse was moved to the south pier in 1914 and replaced with the current steel tower in 1948.

In 2005, the Charlevoix South Pier Lighthouse was regarded as excess property by the United States Coast Guard and offered at no cost to qualified entities, including federal, state and local agencies, non-profit and educational organizations.

Under the National Historic Lighthouse Preservation Act of 2000, the National Park Service awarded the lighthouse to the city of Charlevoix.

Funds for the restoration are derived from a combination of matching grants and private donations.

In March of this year, it was announced that the Charlevoix Historical Society would receive $29,666 from the Michigan Lighthouse Assistance Program to implement restoration. The State Historic Preservation Office administers the program.

"The money came from the sale of 'Save Our Lights' license plates," Adams said.

The Michigan Architectural

Foundation awarded an additional $7,500 to the painting project.

This is the 12th annual award bestowed by the foundation upon a not-for-profit Michigan organization in support of a significant historical restoration.

The South Pier Lighthouse

still serves as a working navigational aid on Lake Michigan.

Members of the Charlevoix Historical Society, city officials and others will be present at the event on Aug. 5.

The public is invited to attend.

Sample electric bill.

Customers of the city of Charlevoix Electric Utility will begin seeing a new surcharge on their electric bills starting in August.

In compliance with the clean, Renewable and Efficient Energy Act approved by the state in 2008 (P.A. 295), the city must begin implementation of an Energy Optimization plan to encourage energy conservation.

The Michigan Public Service Commission approved adding these surcharges to monthly bills for customers of 40 municipal utilities in the state, as well as Great Lakes, Consumers Energy, Detroit Edison and other utilities.

The act requires all utilities to collect money from their customers, in the form of a surcharge, to pay for energy conservation programs and to reimburse customers for approved energy efficient purchases and projects.

The surcharge collected will be separately tracked and is a source of money for the customers to draw on to invest in energy efficiency items.

The surcharge will average 58 cents a month, starting in August.

Commercial customers will see an additional charge of $2.80 per month for each electric meter, while the largest commercial or industrial customers will see an additional $23.47 per month for each electric meter.

The additional funds collected will be used to provide a variety of incentives to encourage energy conservation such as rebates for the purchase of energy efficient appliances and appliance recycling programs, discount coupons for the purchase of energy efficient compact fluorescent light bulbs and energy audits for residential and commercial customers.

The programs are not yet finalized but are scheduled to begin sometime in August or September.

Over the next few months, more details on the types of programs available will be communicated to customers.

The city is working with other municipal utilities and electric co-ops to make sure all local rebate and coupon programs are similar.

The whole concept of the energy optimization plan is to stave off having to build additional generation facilities in the future which will save all customers money by keeping rates lower, and reducing the carbon footprint of the community as well.

Counties now have authority to pass more stringent anti-smoking rules

NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The state's highest court ruled Tuesday that counties have the authority to pass tougher smoking bans than state lawmakers.

The decision by the Michigan Supreme Court shifts the debate on smoke-free workplaces from Lansing, where state lawmakers failed to institute a statewide ban last year, to local communities. However, the ability to ban smoking in bars and restaurants still resides with legislators.

In 2005, Emmet, Antrim and Otsego counties instituted a new set of regulations that required public and private work sites to create and implement a smoke-free policy, prohibiting smoking in all enclosed areas. Exceptions were carved out for casinos, bars, restaurants and private residences, except those used as a child care, adult day care or health care facility. Enforcement of these rules is driven by complaints.

Emmet County Board of Commissioners chairman Jim Tamlyn applauded the ruling and said it was a longtime coming.

"We were the test county for this whole thing," he said. "We put this ban into effect years ago."

Artists flock to 51st waterfront art fair

BY ANNE KELLY
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Three of the dozens of artists to be featured at this year's Waterfront Art Fair in downtown Charlevoix have been profiled by art enthusiast Anne Kelly.

• John Schirmer has always had a love of wood carving.

As a young boy in Saginaw, he would go out into the woods with an ax in hand and find wood for his craft.

Later, he and his wife Ann and daughter Maria, resided in Cedar in Leelanau County where he hand-carved wooden signs for villages, businesses and private residences as well as for the furniture industry.

He has been carving for 35 years and presently lives in Iowa. For the last 15 years Schirmer has been producing wood cut prints and has carved sculpture that has ended up in five foreign countries as well as all over the United States. He also has designed a line of ceramic jewelry which was later expanded to include limited edition sculpture.

"My newest work is a few 'one-of-a-kind' woodcut prints," Schirmer said. "This is where I carve the block, and from this block, I print only one print. I then frame them together, the print and the block it was printed from. I created this on a lark and all of a sudden it has become a popular presentation."

Schirmer uses birch plywood, wood carving tools and ink to create his prints.

His designs are transferred to a block of wood that he then carves. When the carving is complete, he pulls the print through a press and colors each print by hand.

This year he has added wood block prints of wild, jungle animals to his repertoire.

His love of nature is further revealed in his first children's book, "Have You Seen My Bird?"

Of course it is illustrated with his original prints. You may also see Schirmer each Christmas at The Candle Factory in Traverse City where he has been carving figures for a village scene incrementally for the past 20 years, part of a permanent display known as the Elferdick Project.

"I always enjoy returning to this beautiful area. We very much look forward to our visit," he said of participating in the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair where he will be displaying an interesting array of wood cuts on Aug. 8.

• Lynn Morris comes to Charlevoix from St. Louis, Mo.

This year she will be showing her cheerful ceramic pieces at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair for her 11th year.

A studio art major from DePauw University in Indiana, with a master's of art from Penn State University, Morris says that she is always changing to keep her style fresh.

"I paint free hand using bright colors and whimsical subject matter. A low fire white clay and low fire under glaze gives me the quality of vibrant colors I want," she said.

This year she will be bringing "a winter's worth of work" and will have clay and wood plaques to add to her unique collection.

• Trish Morgan felt like it was a "dream come true," when she was accepted into the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair for the first time six years ago.

She is pleased to have been invited back to show ever since.

Morgan grew up and attended school in Charlevoix where she displayed a definite talent in art. She went on to study at Kendall College of Art and Design in Grand Rapids majoring in illustration.

"The most important influence in my career was studying under my mentor Tony Van Hasselt, a nationally known water color artist out of Maine," she said.

Morgan was able to travel, paint and learn from Hasselt.

After a time of working in graphic art design, she discovered her media niche was in watercolors.

"My paintings depict architectural and landscape elements. I am primarily a studio artist and only paint outdoors, on location, three or four times a year," she explained. "I have had many requests for Charlevoix scenes so have made prints of some of the most popular. I am very excited about a full sheet (20" x 30") scene of Round Lake this year."

This juried art show and sale will run from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. in Charlevoix's East Park on Saturday, Aug. 8.

Call 547-2675 for more information.

Speed racers: Michigan's Ruff wins Shay Mile

This time around, he sealed the deal.

Rondell Ruff ran a personal best time of four minutes, one second to win the men's division at the second annual Ryan Shay Mile Saturday at the Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

Ruff, 26, was competing in his second Shay Mile and last year was the front-runner of the inaugural event. Ruff held the lead last year at the halfway point before Grant Robison surged for the victory.

Ruff, a 2006 University of Michigan graduate and Detroit native, earned $1,000 for his victory as well as a $250 share for leading at the halfway mark. Jordan Fife of Brooks/Indian Elite was second at 4:03, while Sean Tully, a Villanova University graduate, was third at 4:04.

Frances Koons, 23, of Allentown, Pa., won the women's race in 4:31.

Geena Gall, a recent U-M graduate and U.S. Olympic team hopeful, was second at 4:33, followed by Michigan State University grad Lisa Senakiewich who was third at Senakiewich was the halfway leader.

Also on Saturday, the Jeff Drenth Memorial footrace was run in conjunction with the Shay Mile.

Jeff Polenes of Bloomington, Ind., won the overall 10K race in 32:25, while Kevin Yamell of Maumee, Ohio was the overall 5K race in 15:43.

Following are age group winners for both races:

Rondell Ruff, 26, of Detroit, a class of 2006 graduate of the University of Michigan, took the first place finish in the Ryan Shay Mile competition Saturday in downtown Charlevoix. He clocked his personal best, finishing the race in 4 minutes one second. This was his second try for the win in the Shay race. He was the frontrunner for the first half of the race in 2008. He plans to race in the upcoming Golden Mile in Traverse City.

JUL

A good time was had by all

on the law enforcement side," said Charlevoix City Police Chief Gerard Doan. "We had a lot of preplanning, like we always do. Plus, we get a lot of cooperation from the sheriff's (office) and fire department, which makes our job a lot easier."

While some mischief was still present, Doan said no serious crimes were committed during the week.

We had some alcohol related arrests and Thursday (July 23) we had a unique call where a gentleman having a diabetic episode was going left of center and back and forth in his lane."

Doan said a motorist in front of the driver recognized the man was in medical distress and slowed his car down in an attempt to get the sick man to stop.

"When he came to a stop he was completely left of center in the northbound lane and he was traveling south," he said.

Doan said neither were there any major traffic issues.

"Friday night, to clear the park, it took approximately 10 minutes ... and it probably took about an hour to clear traffic out of town on Saturday," he said. "This is probably the smoothest Venetian I've seen in my history here—24 years."

Doan thanked the fire department and sheriff's office for all their help.

A random selection of downtown businesses revealed a better than average Venetian week.

"We were pretty much on target with a couple days down, but the weekend was up," said Raechel Wright, owner of the Alcove Cafe at 103 Park. "I think that was weather dependent. I'm a breakfast and lunch place (and) people tend to stay in when it's raining in the morning."

She added, "If it's raining, I have two-thirds as many seats because I have tables outside."

Though it has been difficult due to the economy and the cooler, rainier weather, Wright said she has been pleasantly surprised with the business she has done so far this summer.

Sandie Root, owner of The Taffy Barrel at 211 Bridge St. also had a great week.

"We exceeded last year," she said. "The bad weather helps us—when it's rainy and cold, people shop."

The Clothing Company's Jacqueline Dipert said her sales during Venetian week were average.

"The weekend was very good," she said. "It was a little slow midweek for us, maybe due to erratic weather."

Gina Whitney, owner of Whitney's Oyster Bar at 307 Bridge St. said this was probably the most organized Venetian she has seen in 17 years.

"We probably had the best Venetian we've ever had," she said.

"Kudos to the Venetian committee for running a top-of-the-line festival and for the amazing job the fire department, police and city did."

Whitney added, "And, everything was cleaned up Sunday morning. The whole city should get kudos."

Lauren Brumley, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce communication manager and executive director of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, said local motels and hotels also had a good week.

"Lodging was as expected: Packed and good to go," she said.

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority executive director Keith Carey said he was especially pleased with one of the new events.

"Venetian Vision Monday (July 20) was a great way to kick off the Venetian Festival week," he said.

Venetian Vision consisted of the screening of a publicly selected movie, Indiana Jones and the Raiders of the Lost Ark, which played on the big screen in the Odmark Pavilion in Charlevoix's East Park.

"If we based the decision simply on feedback we receive, I think we would definitely bring it back," he said. "But, that will be something we need to discuss."

Carey said the thing that struck him most was the sheer variety of events and the incredible amount of work behind the scenes to make it all happen.

"I walked down to the stage on the Wednesday night with Switchback, Gloriana, Darryl Worley and looked out over the park. There were people as far as I could see—it was just fantastic," he said. "I think that is a testament to Dan Barron and his board. They continue to make that festival even better. They freshen it every year so the music never becomes stale and the activities never become stale."

Ken Doty benefit dinner

A fundraiser to help support Ken Doty and his family will be from 4:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Wednesday, July 29 in East Jordan's Tourist Park.

Hamburgers, hot-dogs, salad, chips, dessert and drinks are on the menu.

Eastern Star FUNDRAISER

Charlevoix Chapter #72 Order of the Eastern Star is hosting a Schwan's Fundraiser Truck Load Sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Aug. 15 at the Walgreen Drugstore Parking lot located at the corner of US-31 and M 66 in Charlevoix.

Based on the dollars sold on this day, Schwan's will donate a percentage of the total sales to our organization.

The funds raised are returned to our community through donations to the Women's Resource Center, Charlevoix Area Hospital, the local food pantry, Veteran's Memorial, Charlevoix Middle School Special Needs Fund, hygiene packets for the school, Charlevoix High School Senior Night Sponsorship, scholarship fund, coordination with area schools for the purchase of school clothes for families with financial hardship, Christmas gifts for families in need, and local Masonic affiliated organization members with financial, medical, or emergency needs.

Some funds are given to the Grand Chapter Order of the Eastern Star of Michigan. These funds in conjunction with the funds of other Chapters are used for both general education scholarships and ESTARL scholarships (ESTARL scholarships are for those students seeking a degree in theological related studies.) Other organizations helped through Grand Chapter include the Dyslexia Foundation, Diabetes Foundation, Heart Association, and other charities. Youth groups supported include Demolay for Boys, Rainbow Girls, and Job's Daughters.

The truck will have over 300 of Schwan's quality products to choose from. Simply come by, place your order with the Schwan's Representative and take your products home to enjoy.

Eastern Star members will also be taking pre-orders to reserve your products. Pre-orders are due by Aug. 10.

Order forms may be obtained from Eastern Star members or from Colleen Wilcenski, Charlevoix Chapter Worthy Matron, at 547-1305. Payment for all orders is due on Aug. 15 at the time

Wellness Wednesday

Charlevoix Area Hospital continues to offer walk-in health screenings from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 1:45 p.m. until 4 p.m. on the first Wednesday of each month in classroom A.

The next one is scheduled for Wednesday Aug. 5.

Health Screens include: cholesterol (total cholesterol, HDL, the healthy cholesterol which protects the heart, and a ratio, which ideally should be under 4.5 to help prevent stroke and heart attack), blood sugar level, Body Mass Index (BMI) score, and a blood pressure reading.

Cost for the service is $12. Participants will receive a blood pressure log, a pedometer, and all of the test results (including the blood results) at the time of the screen.

Blood will be obtained by a Registered Nurse by a painless finger-stick method with no fasting required. Health Consultation and educational materials will be tailored to individual results by a Registered Nurse. Appointments can be made in advance by calling the Office of Community Health Education at 547-8906.

Walk-ins are welcome.
The entire visit will take less than 15 minutes and could end up saving your life.

Post honored

Charlevoix's Post Laureate Rosalyn Goldstick will be saluted on the occasion of her 90th birthday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 15 at the Charlevoix Senior Center located at 06906 Norwood Road near the west end of Carpenter Street.

Light refreshments will be served. No gifts, please, but cards are welcome. Donations in Rosalyn's name can be made to either the Senior Center or to Temple B'Nai Israel, 420 Waukazon Ave., Petoskey, MI 49770. Call 547-0749 for questions or information.

AUG. 29

ORV training

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider offers an ORV training class for those citizens who need to comply with the new Michigan State law and Charlevoix County ordinance on ORV operation on our county road system. Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Dear friends of Northwest Michigan:

It was a great pleasure to return home recently for the grand re-opening of Resort Township's East Park. While the weather for the June 20th celebration was cool and cloudy, the moods of those who attended were bright; the event provided a visible example of the environmental progress being made by CMS Land Company at the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project.

At CMS Land, we are proud of the work that has been done at East Park and all along the shoreline near the Bay Harbor community. The solutions installed at East Park have worked well and environmental results have been impressive. Monitoring of the lake shows that the safeguards are working. And, in June, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan opened all access to the lake at the park.

Now, we turn the page.

Soon, CMS Land will deliver to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency information collected from our monitoring wells at East Park to help establish standards for mercury as the project moves toward completion. Positive results from this monitoring should lead to having long-term oversight of the project moved from the federal government to state officials here in Michigan. In addition, CMS continues its work to find a safe and cost-effective local option to dispose of the water collected at East Park and at locations in the Bay Harbor community, including using proven methods to safely release the water to the lake.

These will all be exciting milestones in the life of this project, one that began with an abandoned cement factory and just recently celebrated the reopening of a world-class public park.

I would like to thank all those who helped make the opening of East Park a great success. We will build on that success as we move into the final stages of this environmental effort.

Sincerely,

David C. Mengebier

Charlevoix's 'Grand Dame' leaves legacy of tenacity and generosity

BY CHRISTINA ROHN
NEWS-REVIEW

Those who knew Edith Gilbert called her extraordinary — those who loved her called her an inspiration.

"It occurs to me that she was part Julia Child, part Perle Mesta and part Emily Post — all together, an original," said Suzy Farbman, author, journalist, and long-time friend of Gilbert's. "There are many of us who considered her a real anchor in our lives, and we'll miss her greatly."

Gilbert, a long-time resident of Charlevoix, and world-renowned author, wedding consultant and etiquette legend, died Friday morning at Charlevoix Hospital at the age of 91.

Gilbert's nephew, Larry Smith, said his aunt suffered a heart attack just two days before, but didn't let that slow her down.

"She was alert, awake and active through the whole thing," he said. "Her last official act was to have cinnamon buns sent to a friend."

Family and friends say this was just like Gilbert to be caring, compassionate and giving until the very end. Often called the "Grand Dame" of Charlevoix, Gilbert was the epitome of class, throwing numerous galas and celebrations for family, friends and acquaintances.

She was also a philanthropist.

In the early '60s she became an original member of the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, and worked to establish the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair. She was also a board member for the Charlevoix Historical Society, volunteer for the Charlevoix Area Hospital and responsible for the current railings on the drawbridge in downtown Charlevoix.

In the '70s, she became a founding member of the Crooked Tree Arts Center, where in 2002, she was honored by having a gallery named after her.

Liz Ahrens, executive director for the Crooked Tree Arts Center, described Gilbert as a force.

"Wherever she was in a crowd, she'd have a great sparkle in her eye and a giggle that was tremendous," she said.

Ahrens said Gilbert was a great supporter of the arts wherever she went.

"Edith was a crucial part of the arts center all the way along ... if she was on your side, you could never think of a better ally," she said. "She was a constant cheerleader, mentor and coach."

For Ken Winter, former editor of the Petoskey News-Review and his wife Ginger — Gilbert was their matchmaker.

Ken said Gilbert was not subtle when she wanted to introduce people.

"One day she came into the News-Review and barricaded the door, and said 'Have you called (Ginger) yet?' and I said, 'No,' then she said,

"You'd better call her right now." ... he said, laughing as he recalled the incident.

Winter did make the call, and eventually, when he and Ginger married, Gilbert served as the couple's matron of honor.

Rayder board member resigns

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Citing "personal reasons," Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education secretary/treasurer Judith Ivan resigned recently.

Ivan had recently been criticized in a letter for comments she made at the July 13 board meeting.

"Maybe she thought about how she responded that day," said Jan Herring, author of the letter and wife of Michigan Education Association Unserv Director Chuck Herring of Alpena. "It was far too emotional—they need to be open-minded so they can be fair in making decisions."

Ivan, who officially resigned on July 21, could not be reached for comment.

In her letter, sent to both the school board and Charlevoix Courier, Herring stated Ivan said something during the meeting which left her "utterly shocked and appalled."

"Mrs. Ivan was obviously extremely upset by the contract negotiation issues," Herring stated. "She mentioned that she knew of two professionals who had recently lost their jobs and that the school staff should be grateful just to be employed. Should the unfortunate loss of two jobs be paid for by an educational staff?"

Herring further stated, "The teachers had, in effect, handed the board some additional funding which was totally ignored by Mrs. Ivan. Secondly, the emotion with which Judith Ivan delivered her comments, with noticeable reddening of the face and palpable vocal irritation, was topped off by what looked very much like tears in her eyes. It was as if Judith Ivan somehow had a personal stake in the issues, which left me confused and wondering if a member who is so emotionally caught up in these issues can be a fair and impartial decision

BOAT FIRE

At 12:13 a.m. on Wednesday, July 29, 2009 the Charlevoix Fire Department responded to a boat fire next door to 9261 Birch Terrace Drive in Evelyn Township, Ironton. Upon arrival, firefighters found a 23 foot Boston Whaler on fire at 9231 Birch Terrace Drive. No one was on the vessel, and firefighters were able to extinguish the fire without accident. No one was injured as a result of this event. The vessel was registered to Page Toyota in Birmingham.

The Fire Department was assisted by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and equipment and personnel from Bergmann Marine.

The U.S. Coast Guard also responded to this incident. The cause of the fire was accidental, and firefighters were on scene for about 1 hour.

PERSONAL INJURY

Sheriff W.D. (Don) Schneider advises deputies were called to a personal injury accident involving a motorcycle.

Around 8:20 p.m. on Thursday, July 30 deputies along with Boyne City EMS were called to the area of Crozier Road and Boyne City/East Jordan Road for a two vehicle accident involving a pickup truck and a motorcycle.

Wesley Roberge, 17 year old of Boyne City, was traveling east on Crozier Rd. near Boyne City/East Jordan Rd. in his 2000 Toyota Tundra pickup when he crossed the center line and struck Norm Vogt, 58 year old of East Jordan, throwing Vogt from his motorcycle.

Vogt was transported to Northern Michigan Regional Hospital where he was treated for what are believed to be minor injuries. Roberge was found to be at fault in the accident and cited. Speed and wet roads are believed to be factors in the accident.

PERSONAL INJURY

Sheriff W.D. (Don) Schneider reports that at approximately 12:40 a.m. on Thursday, July 30, 2009, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's on M-66, driving a 2002 Harley Davidson Motorcycle when he lost control of the motorcycle and struck the guardrail. The passenger was Stephanie Page Rossman, 25 of Fremont. Both individuals were transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital for treatment by the City of Charlevoix EMS. Alcohol is believed to be a factor in this crash.

UNATTENDED SAILBOAT

At approximately 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, July 25, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a call of a sailboat under sail with nobody on board near Horton Bay on Lake Charlevoix. When officers arrived witnesses stated that they had seen a male subject on board the vessel about 30 minutes prior in the middle of the lake. The operator, Bernard Gallin, 80, of Lansing and Boyne City had fallen overboard while trying to keep the sailboat from capsizing in the wind. Search crews from the Sheriff's Office and United States Coast Guard were called to search the area from Hemingway Point to Horton Bay. A passing boater in the area heard the Mr. Gallin calling for help and was able to rescue him from the water. Mr. Gallin was wearing a lifejacket and had been in the water for approximately 30 to 45 minutes. He refused medical treatment at the scene and was taken home by marine deputies.

WATERCRAFT ACCIDENT

Sheriff W. D. (Don) Schneider advises the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Division was dispatched to a watercraft accident with minor injuries on Lake Charlevoix near Ferry Beach in Charlevoix Township at approximately 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, July 25, 2009.

Don Bretz 31 of Mason, Mich., was underway on a personal watercraft, jet ski, when he struck a wave resulting in falling overboard.

The accident caused minor injuries to Bretz' knee requiring medical attention at Charlevoix Area Hospital. The operator was the only person on board. He was released from the hospital the day of the accident.

The Friday night Stroll the Streets event was just perfect. With a glorious sunset, just right breezes and the blending music, it would have been hard to choose one music soloist or group as the best. The atmosphere of friendship and well being of the many strollers will create lasting fond memories of our little town. Acclades to the combined efforts of the chamber and the main street program, as well as the entertainers, for providing such happy treats on the streets!

Piper DeFrancisco of Winter Park, Fla. and the three year old daughter of Joey and Katy (Charvat) DeFrancisco, was honored at the Boyne City home of her grandparents, Bill and Jane Charvat, with a family and friends birthday party. On Sunday, July 12. As pink is her favorite color, pink it was, with Hanna Montana napkins and party favors and her biggest gift, a pink two-wheeler, with training wheels, and helmet. Brother Joe helped her unwrap the gifts and cards from Mom and Dad. Nana and Papa Charvat, Grandpa and Grandma Joey and Bernadette DeFrancisco of Lake Mary, Fla., neighbors George and Melissa Lasater and son Luke, and cousin, Nancy. So the two boys wouldn't feel left out, Bill had prepared goodie gift bags for them too. All enjoyed an outdoor sandwich and salad picnic, topped off with the birthday song, ice cream and cake. The kids also had enjoyed whacking a piñata hanging in a tree in the back of the yard. It was a good day for the captivating blond blue eyed Piper for sure.

The Oral Sutliff's spent Monday in St. Ignace at the KOA Campground visiting their Canadian cousins, Pete and Georgina Sutliff, whom they had not seen in 10 years. It was a wonderful day with lots of sunshine.

The Oral Sutliff's were also down state at Birch Run this past weekend to help some friends celebrate with Florence Rider, on her 80th birthday and her daughter, Marianne and Jeff from Oklahoma, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary also. A huge outdoor party and lots of food and entertainment.

The weather could have been better, though it was nice to see so many friends they had traveled with on tour bus trips in the past.

A warm "Welcome" goes out to the new team of cooks at the Boyne Area Senior Center.

We're sold ... on the guild auction

Where else can you get a deal on some fine home furnishings while supporting a really good cause?

Why, it's the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's annual silent auction.

This is the third year of the annual event which helps the guild purchase much-needed equipment for the Charlevoix

Area Hospital as well as fund numerous yearly scholarships for those in or planning to enter the medical field.

And, don't let the title of "silent auction" scare you—there are items for as little as $1.

Our thanks go out to all those who have worked to make this event a success year after year.

We would like to specially thank Lorene Sakamoto, who is the auction's chairperson and Donna Looze, the lady in charge of hospital volunteers for their tireless effort.

This year the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild's silent auction proceeds are helping fund purchase of a blanket warmer for the medical-surgical ward and neo-natal apnea unit.

And, let's not forget the guild gave out $10,000 in scholarships last year.

Who doesn't love the feel of a warm blanket, especially when you're not feeling well?

The blanket warmer will offer patients that little extra comfort during what can be a difficult time.

The neo-natal apnea unit is used to monitor newborn and premature babies for sleeping disorders which can sometimes be deadly.

Some of the items up on this year's bidding block include jewelry, bedding, a baby crib, furniture, kitchen items, a full living room set and more.

The event is from 10 a.m.

to 3 p.m. on Thursday Aug. 6 in the solarium at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Call Looze at 547-8651 for more information.

MORE ON LIFE

childhood are indelibly marked on my psyche. They are me and I am them and they are driving me crazy. It began innocently enough. The first group to land on my doorstep in late May garnered my heartfelt enthusiasm and hospitality. The guest rooms were festooned with fresh spring flowers and I placed little baskets with northern Michigan-themed snacks and chocolates on the dressers.

There were handmade soaps, scented candles and fluffy, fresh towels. Two full days of scrubbing, polishing and spit shining rendered my house white-glove ready.

I was more than happy to put my life on hold for that week while we careened between points of interest.

I reveled in preparing exotic meals replete with all of the five major food groups.

We stayed up until a ridiculous hour every night, laughing and reminiscing. When I finally waved goodbye to them from the front porch, both my body and my bank account needed a transfusion.

Round two began three weeks later. This time I swore that I would avoid the kitchen slavery, and I spent the week prior making and freezing pizza and sweet rolls.

The candles were a bit sooty and gutted, but serviceable. The snack baskets rattled with the remnants rejected by the previous hosts.

There were fresh flowers, but this time they were daisies and field grass. I made it a point to get to bed at a reasonable hour, knowing that I would need to be rested and semi-perky in order to survive. I revisited the points of interest in a somnambulist daze usually reserved for "Seinfeld" reruns.

This time I murmured hal-lelujah as the dust settled behind their departing car.

The newest influx was heralded by a startling e-mail titled "Northern Michigan here we come!" With icy fingers, I opened the missive and a little thrill of adrenaline triggered a mild fight or flight response.

Over the next few days I segued through the five stages of grief: denial; anger; bargaining; depression; and, finally, acceptance. I cast a baleful eye over my sanctuary and decided that vacuuming would suffice. I bought a loaf of bread and packages of cheese and lunch meat and called it good. I washed the sheets and towels, folded and stacked them on the beds.

I am now four days into Round Three. I have eaten my weight in baked goods and I am loquacious with carbohydrates and sleep deprivation.

A virulent skin condition prevents my cousin from partaking in prolonged exposure to the sun, so beach activities are not an option.

I am vaguely uneasy in the belief that this visit is perhaps not all that they had hoped it would be.

November is arguably the least seductive month. Swaying in the frigid wind, skeletal trees rake the bleak white sky.

Stripped of the siren's call of summer, and not yet replete with the bucolic blanket of snow that lures the winter sports enthusiast, November has always seemed like such a lonely month.

Ah, November... How I long for thee.

Celebrate art with gourmet grub

CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Enduring Arts, a foundation created in support of school art programs, presents a singular dining experience from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Aug. 15 at Esperance Market and Cafe.

Proceeds from the event will benefit all children in the Charlevoix Community Schools by preserving and funding art programs and related projects.

"The only thing that prevents people from living a less than wonderful life is a lack of education," said Pram Acharya. "We've seen funding disintegrate for all school programs, and especially for the arts."

Acharya and his wife, Suzanne, are the owners of Esperance, who will host the gourmet picnic under a tent outside the restaurant at 12853 US 31 North in Charlevoix.

According to Acharya, the Charlevoix Council for the Arts has helped to shape Enduring Arts for the past four years, with structuring and funding for school art programs.

Teachers and other volunteers donate their time and effort in organizing and staffing the preparation and the picnic. "The arts are an essential part of life," Acharya said. "Enduring Arts has been able to supply digital photo equipment for the classrooms and this summer we sent two students to Blue Lake Arts Academy."

In addition to Esperance, other area merchants and food crafters are contributing their specialties for the event.

Oleson's will supply their cherry brats and Lee Lutes of Black Star Farms Winery in Suttons Bay will participate, along with Larry Mawby, also of Suttons Bay, who makes sparkling wine.

"We hold the fundraiser on the Saturday after the Charlevoix (Waterfront) Art Fair," said Acharya, explaining that tickets for the event are offered to some of the artists in the hope that they will stay and donate a piece of their work.

Due to limited space, reservations are being taken and the minimum ticket price is $35, although larger donations are welcome.

To secure a reservation, or for additional information, call Esperance at (231) 237-9300.

Guv hopeful visits Charlevoix

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Purporting a plan he said will revitalize Michigan, 2010 Republican gubernatorial candidate Rick Snyder recently visited Charlevoix.

The self-described working man grew up in a modest Battle Creek home as the son of a window washer before attending University of Michigan and earning his MBA in 1979.

"I grew up in a house small enough where you had to ask someone to move to get into the refrigerator during a holiday meal," Snyder said. "I'm not a career politician—I've worked as a CPA doing tax work and then went on to work for Gateway computers ... and then I moved back to Ann Arbor and have been doing venture capital building companies there."

It may not be your usual rags-to-riches story, but Snyder said he knows the value of hard work.

"I worked my way up from a tax accountant to partner at what is now PricewaterhouseCoopers then became vice-president and eventually president of Gateway computers," he said.

Snyder's venture capital group Avalon Investments has invested in 24 companies across the country.

In addition to his other business ventures, Snyder helped found investment firm Ardesta which specializes in microtechnology and nanotechnology companies.

Snyder has a wife, Sue, three children and a dog named Dugan.

The way back to a more prosperous Michigan, Snyder said, will be by following 10 principles which includes:

- Creating more and better jobs — by relying on his experience in running his own businesses;

- Restructuring the tax system — by simplifying the code, applying fair standards and demanding transparency in the process;

- Fixing the government — by demanding higher standards of ethics, accountability and transparency;

- Retain qualified workers — by creating programs, networks and an overall environment conducive to highly-skilled workers;

- Restore crumbling cities — by eliminating blight, limiting sprawl, expanding mass transit and investing in infrastructure;

- Market Michigan abroad — by promoting Michigan as a destination for travelers, workers and business owners both nationally and internationally.

- Protect the environment — by demanding stringent standards of pollution control and conservation;

- Reform education — by ensuring parents, schools and teachers are committed to preparation and lifelong education;

- Reform health care — by practicing prevention, personal responsibility and ensuring all residents have access to affordable, quality health care;

- Make Michigan a winner — by employing personal responsibility and collective determination to create a hopeful, positive attitude and culture;

"We need to reinvent Lansing; move it from bureaucracy and remember who our customers are," Snyder said. "Our goal should be how we can make them more successful."

OBITUARIES

Edith Gilbert: Sept. 2, 1917 - July 31, 2009

Edith Gilbert passed away on July 31, 2009 at the age of 91.

Edith Gilbert

She was born in Manhattan on Sept. 2, 1917 to Ethel (Liebman) and Otto Wiesinger. After World War I, her family moved back to Germany, then to Shanghai, then to San Francisco in 1927 where her parents were in the import/export business. Her sister Margot was born in 1930 in San Francisco.

In 1935, her family moved to Beverly Hills, California, where her mother ran the gift shop at the Beverly Hills Hotel featuring imported ceramics and art.

Edith met her future husband Julius at the Beverly Hills Hotel in 1939, he proposed at Hollywood Brown Derby, and they married and moved to Arden Park in Detroit in 1940. During World War II, Edith worked on the War Bond campaign and was a driver for the American Red Cross motor pool. After sum-mering in Charlevoix many years, Edith and husband Julius settled in Charlevoix permanently in 1963. Julius passed in 1984, and Edith wore her beloved Julius's wedding ring the rest of her days.

A world traveler, sculptor, and art lover, once settled in Charlevoix Edith worked diligently to improve the availability of the arts in Northern Michigan.

After World War I, her family moved back to Germany, then to Shanghai, then to San Francisco in 1927 where her parents were in the import/export business. Her sister Margot was born in 1930 in San Francisco.

Roaring Twenties gala to benefit Community Free Clinic

BY MARCI SINGER
NEWS-REVIEW

The Dutch Dixies will be performing at a "Roaring Twenties" party to benefit the Community Free Clinic at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 12, at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. The event is sponsored by the Women's Club.

The Dutch Dixies started in the city of Apeldoorn in the Netherlands in the early 1980s. Their visit to Northern Michigan in August will be the third international trip for the band.

"The Dutch Dixies were planning a tour of Northern Michigan to perform fundraisers for community nonprofits," said Trudy J. Day, public relations coordinator for The Women's Club in Harbor Springs. "The club was asked if they would like to do a fundraiser and the board agreed wholeheartedly."

Day said the Women's Club has been a supporter of the Community Free Clinic in past years and seized the opportunity to provide significant funds for the clinic, which is staffed by professional and lay volunteers who donate their time and expertise to meet the needs of people needing health care and not having access to it.

"Those of us with access to health care are very fortunate, but realize when illness strikes and there is no health care available, most people have no alternative but to live with their problem — some may not live long without treatment," Day said. "The clinic also keeps many people out of costly emergency rooms and the savings to hospitals is enormous."

Most everyone needs a boost in their lives and a sense that someone cares.

"It's also gratifying to be able to help and support our own neighbors during these tough times while at the same time having the pleasure of listening to such a great group of musicians and having some good old-fashioned fun," she added.

The evening will include dancing to The Dutch Dixies, as well as a cocktail dinner buffet, cash bar, dance and costume competitions, plenty of "violin cases" with "bathtub gin," an amazing display of vintage 1920s automobiles and much more.

"Everyone is encouraged to dress up 'Roaring Twenties' style with feathers and pearls plus fans and wavy hair for the gals and 'gangster' hats, spats, flasks and cigars for the guys," Day said. "Plus to bring lots of cash to cash in on the fun!"

Day said all of the proceeds from the Roaring Twenties Gala will go to the clinic.

"We hope to raise more than $10,000," she exclaimed.

"We're hoping to have upwards of 400 people join us for the evening," added steering committee member, Ruth O'Gawa. "It will be a great time for a great cause."

Day said The Community Free Clinic is truly a lifeline for people without access to quality health care — people who are our neighbors in Northern Michigan.

"And neighbors take care of each other when times get tough. Now, times are especially tough in our 'neighborhood' and it's a privilege to step up and lend a hand," she said. "So to those who are able to do so, we ask you to please join us in giving a hand-up to the clinic. It could be the most important thing you do."

Tickets are $50 and $100 each and are available for purchase online at www.treatickets.com or by calling Irene Schimmel at 526-6029. Tickets are also available from any Women's Club member.

Ralph Ostling: July 3, 1927 - July 29, 2009

Ralph Ostling, 82, passed away on July 29 at his home in Roscommon, Michigan.

Ralph Ostling

He was born in Roscommon on July 3, 1927 to John and Vilma Ostling, who came to the United States from Sweden.

Ralph was a graduate of Gerrish-Higgins High School.

He graduated from Central Michigan University in 1952, and received a Masters Degree from The University of Michigan.

He was married to Thela Dean Ostling on Dec. 21, 1947 in East Tawas, Michigan.

Ralph served in the US Navy from May 1945 through July 1946.

He was a teacher and coach at Gerrish-Higgins High School for 20 years, and served in the Michigan Legislature from 1973 to 1993.

Ralph was a life member of the Charles M. Engel VFW Post 4159. He was the longest-standing member of Messiah Lutheran Church prior to his death.

Ralph is survived by his loving wife of 61 years, Thela Ostling; son, Kurt Ostling and his wife Judy Cunningham of Crescent Springs, KY; grandchildren, Dr. Lauren Ostling and Erik Ostling both of Cincinnati, OH; a sister, Edna Nunn of East Tawas and many nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by 6 brothers, Harold, Robert, George, Arvid, Art and Kenneth.

The family will receive friends on Wednesday, Aug. 5 from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. at Walsh Funeral Home, 143 Lake St. in Roscommon.

A memorial service officiated by Pastor Andrew Gookin will be held 11 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 6 at Messiah Lutheran Church, 1470 West Maplehurst Drive, Roscommon.

Donations in memory of Ralph Ostling are welcome and may be made to the charity of your choice or to The Ralph Ostling Memorial Scholarship, c/o Roscommon County Community Foundation, PO Box 824, Roscommon, MI 48653-0824.

'Art' goes to Africa

BEKAH GORE
EDITOR

World-class artists are teaming up for events centered on the African continent.

According to Charlevoix Circle of Arts' board president Kathryn Lobenz, "Africa: A safari of art, artifacts and photography" will be the most comprehensive exhibit yet.

"We're trying to increase the educational and enrichment aspects of our exhibits," she said. "Our goal is to serve the public of Charlevoix County."

A fundraiser preview of the show will be from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Aug. 5. Donations are appreciated, but not necessary to attend.

"Anyone interested, or anyone that has curiosity about the African Continent, whether they have traveled there or not, will enjoy this exhibit," Lobenz said.

In addition to being able to see incredible works of art, Lobenz said patrons will also have the opportunity to support the Circle of Arts, now celebrating its first year in existence.

"We're operating on a budget of $35,000 a year—and that is a conservative budget," she said. "This includes mainly operating expenses, exhibits and educational programs, heat and water."

She added, "The CCA (Circle of Arts) is totally 100 percent volunteer run."

The preview show will feature photos of Africa by renowned photographer Mike Schlitt entitled "Wild Animals of Africa."

Sculptures and paintings by Todd Warner will be on display under "Life as a Zoo."

Also on display will be Denno's Museum's African Artifacts from the Glidden's Collection.

Kim R. Diment's paintings "Wildlife Interpretations of Africa's Endangered Species" and "The People and Animals of Africa" in acrylic by Lyn Jenks will also be displayed.

"We have the late Norman Brumm's collection of ebony treasures carvings as well," Lobenz said. "And, we will have some impressive flower arrangements by the Charlevoix Area Garden Club's flower design group."

Then, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday Aug. 7, at the Circle of Arts located at 109 Clinton St., will be the grand opening of the "Africa" event.

The exhibit will then continue from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays and until 8 p.m. on Saturdays.

Visit www.charlevoixcircle.org for more information.

Upcoming classes at the Circle of Arts include:

- Jim Koslosky's palette knife oil painting - 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Aug. 11 and 12

- Todd Warner's clay work shop - 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Aug. 12

- Mike Colman's beginning pastels - 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Aug. 13 and 27 and Sept. 3 and 10

- Russ Bolt's watercolor workshops - 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 15; watercolor classes from 9 a.m. to noon on Aug. 22 and Sept. 5, 12 and 19

- Sherri Styx's sterling silver jewelry - 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Aug. 19 and 20

- Creative yoga - 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Mondays

- Art break for teens - 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesdays

- Biting for teens - 9 a.m. to noon on Aug. 5 and 6

LETTERS to the editor

Thanks, Belvedere

Editor:

The Belvedere Club did an outstanding job of sponsoring the Charlevoix Community Blood Drive on July 16. The blood drive was held at the Community Reformed Church.

The blood drive was very well organized by Mr. Don Denison.

Members of the Belvedere Club generously donated their time to promote, bake and work the entire drive.

Especially delightful to me were the Gangs.

A dozen boys and girls from the Young gang arrived early to set up the American Red Cross equipment.

They did an excellent job with exuberant spirits.

Then the teen gang helped the adult Belvedere volunteers assist the Red Cross with all of the donors.

Over 100 donors came to give the gift of life.

The Red Cross successfully collected 90 pints of lifesaving blood. Many of those pints came from Belvedere members.

Take down and clean up was also accomplished by Belvedere volunteers. I want to thank The Belvedere Club for all of their hard work and congratulate them for exceeding their goal.

They were all wonderful to work with.

I will long remember their smiles, willingness to help and genuine compassion for the great cause of the American Red Cross.

Please mark your calendars for the next Charlevoix Community Blood Drive which will be held noon until 5:45 p.m. on Sept. 24, at the Reformed Church in Charlevoix.

You will make a difference for sick and injured patients. Thank-you Belvedere Club and blood donors.

Enjoy the rest of your summer.

An idle problem

Editor:

I have noticed a bad thing that happens everyday in downtown Charlevoix.

My dad and I were in the car and we got stopped by the bridge.

We turned our car off to conserve energy. We were stopped for about 5 or 10 minutes. The people around us in their cars didn't turn them off.

"Why aren't they turning off their cars to save energy and cut down on pollution?" I asked.

My dad replies, "Good question."

Did you know that idling for longer than 10 seconds uses more gas than starting your engine? Or that idling for 10 minutes equals about 25 cents?

It doesn't seem like much, but it all adds up every time you stop.

According to Canadian Office of Energy, it's true.

I've done my research. Please turn off your cars.

Sincerely,
Julia Doskoc,
Fifth-grader, St. Mary School

Thanks, Charlevoix

Editor:

I would like to thank the people of Charlevoix who supported my bid for the School Board in 2008.

I have learned a great deal during the past year of my service.

My reasons for resigning are personal, and in the best interest of my family and me.

In addition, I want to say that I have always had a tremendous amount of respect for the teachers and staff of the Charlevoix Public Schools.

Next, I want to say that in the past year I have learned more of the extreme complexity and difficulty that the administration and board members have in making the decisions for the district in the current economic climate.

I have nothing but respect for Chet Janik, Shawn Bidle, the administrative team, and the rest of the Board members.

Finally, it is my sincerest hope that the mediation process is successful and that the contract is resolved in the near future.

Background Information

While many people with hearing instruments report complex calculations that effectively address the potential problem of background noise, directional microphones help focus the amplification at the desired sound source (usually in front of the listener). We encourage you to discuss background noise and other potential concerns when considering the purchase of hearing instruments.

P.S. FM technology is very effective in eliminating background noise in certain situations.

Pajtas firework judgment upheld

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The Michigan Court of Appeals has upheld Charlevoix 33rd Circuit Judge Richard Pajtas' ruling in favor of Citizens Insurance Company in the 1997 fireworks tragedy case.

The court ruled that, despite Auto Owners' appeal to the contrary, Citizens Insurance Company is not financially liable for the defense of Richard Davis, then president of Fireworks North Inc., the company which presided over the fireworks display which resulted in multiple injuries and one death during the 1997 Venetian Festival.

"Prior to conducting the show in Charlevoix, Davis did not obtain liability insurance for Fireworks North. However, Davis personally had a homeowner's insurance policy through Citizens and had an umbrella policy through Auto Owners," the court stated. "Following the accident, numerous individuals sued Davis for their resulting injuries. Consequently, Davis contacted Citizens and Auto Owners and asserted that each company had a duty to defend him under the terms of the respective insurance policies. Each company initially denied Davis' response for a defense, citing various exemptions in the insurance policies."

The court further stated, "However, Auto Owners eventually granted Davis' request and provided him with a defense. Meanwhile, Citizens filed a declaratory action in which it sought a declaration that it had no duty to defend. Auto Owners intervened in the declaratory action, arguing that Citizens was required to defend Davis and to reimburse Auto Owners for the cost of the defense that had already been provided."

Pajtas eventually ruled that Citizens Insurance was not liable.

"Based on the allegations presented in the underlying complaints, Citizens was justified in concluding that the business and professional services exemptions applied," stated Justices David H. Sawyer, Christopher M. Murray and Cynthia Diane Stephens. "Citizens was not required to provide Davis with a defense and the trial court's grant of summary disposition was proper."

Dogs can't read! But they make good listeners

"PAWS for a Story" is a program that brings trained and certified therapy dogs with their owners to the Charlevoix Public Library to read with children. Children are able to practice reading aloud in front of a non-judgmental, happy audience, gaining confidence with each sentence. Read aloud practice like this has shown an increase in both reading scores and a willingness to read. The PAWS for a Story program will be held four consecutive Wednesdays in August, beginning August 5, from 10:30 - 1:00 pm in the youth department. Fifteen to twenty minute time slots are scheduled. Call the Youth Information Desk at 237-7350 to sign up. Parents are encouraged bring their child each week to watch their child's confidence blossom. When the children arrive for their reading session, they get to choose a book to share, and then curl up and read aloud to an adoring listener - the dog. The owner is there at all times but is usually silent. The R.E.A.D. (Reading Education Assistance Dogs) program began out west and programs are spreading throughout the country. PAWS is the local version with locally certified dog/trainer teams. "The children are excited to visit and read to their dog," states youth services assistant, Sandi DiSanto. Some of the library's new volunteer teams include Elaine Conway and Scout (Shiatu), Julie Ganfield and Abigail (Black Lab), and Karl Groll and Amadeus (Poodle/Shiatu). Dog owners interested in learning more about the program and how to be a certified PAWS team, can contact the youth information desk at the library, 237-7350 or visit R.E.A.D. on the web at: www.therapyanimals.org (go to R.E.A.D. on the side toolbar) or search "read with dogs" on your search engine.

Mark Suddeth will be returning to the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair this year from Cleveland Heights, Ohio, to exhibit his original one-of-a-kind, hand blown and hand formed sculptural glass pieces. "There is a quality which generates from the glass itself," Suddeth believes. "Those qualities are elusive, intriguing and seductive." Layering color and employing cutting, grinding and polishing in his monolithic Canted pieces are two of Suddeth's techniques; another is "drawing" lines with traces of molten white glass strands on already formed shapes in his "Line Series."

Ace aces softball tourney

Ellsworth held their 36th annual softball tournament last Friday and Saturday, with 11 area teams vying to take home the title.

Ace Hardware of Boyne City came away as champions, with BC Pizza of Boyne City finishing second, Arwood Hardware third and Star Township fourth.

Hugh Campbell, tournament manager, said the weekend was once again a success.

"We're very happy with it," Campbell said. "The weather broke well for us and the tournament ran real well."

Players from towns across the area, with Charlevoix, Kalkaska, Boyne City and Bellevue to name a few, made up the teams, with the only requirement that players be at least 18 years of age or a high school graduate.

The double elimination tournament traditionally operates as a fund-raiser for Ellsworth, with this year's focus being a new concession stand.

Campbell said last year's focus was on their new community park, and also said Drenth Field in the Ellsworth Sports Park was built with help from the softball tournament in years past.

One of the most unique aspects of the tournament is their rule that only allows for wooden bats, instead of the usual metal bats used in softball leagues.

"Wooden bats level the playing field," Campbell said.

He said metal bats can be modified because everyone brings their own and that "hot bats" do not keep things equal.

Tim Hardy, a tournament umpire, agreed that the wooden bats make for a fairer game.

"With wooden bats, it's more of a defensive game," Hardy said. "It's more like a baseball game, not a home run fest."

He also said wooden bats, coupled with a one home run per inning rule make for close games.

The biggest reason this annual tournament is consistently successful though, is because people love going out and having fun playing ball with friends and family.

Randy Kruzel, a member of the tournament champion

Ace Hardware of Boyne City team, said the tournament is a decades long tradition for him and many of the guys on his team.

"It brings some guys out of retirement," Kruzel said. "There's lots of family out there, fathers and sons."

He also said he appreciates that the majority of teams place their emphasis on having fun and enjoying the game.

"It doesn't matter the type of athlete you are - you play. I'm happy about that," Kruzel said.

Kevin Fitzpatrick, also a member of Ace Hardware of Boyne City, said there is a lot to like about the tournament.

"The field is nice, and it's a full tournament but you still get Sunday off," he said.

He also added with a laugh that it was nice to see bats that did not cost more than a car, because of the wooden bat rule.

Of course, the aim of the game is still to win though, so it's only natural that there is healthy competition involved in the games as well.

"I think it's more laid back than most tournaments, but everybody still wants to win," Fitzpatrick said.

Being responsible for making all the split second decisions, Hardy sees it all while umpiring the tournament games.

"Most of the guys just don't like to lose. It just comes with being competitive," Hardy said.

And while any major disagreements in a weekend tournament are generally few and far between, Hardy sticks to his guns as an umpire.

"I call what I see, if they don't like it, oh well," he said with a smile.

Charlevoix's own free weather connection

BY CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

The weather certainly has people talking these days, and Ed Evans of Charlevoix is no exception.

Evans, an electrical engineer by trade, has a serious passion for tracking the weather.

"The station is almost underwhelming," Evans said of the 30-foot pole adjacent to his house—it is the only outside evidence of the station.

It is actually a dual-purpose television antenna equipped with a temperature sensor, anemometer (wind-speed detector) and rain catcher.

It collects everything from rain and snowfall to temperature, wind chill, wind speed, humidity and dew point.

What initially started with an interest in Web cameras led to the purchase and construction of a weather station and now has flourished into a full-time "weather hobby," Evans said.

He has four computers that gather data from two weather stations and three cameras.

An advanced computer software system compiles the information and automatically publishes it to various Web sites.

Three web cameras also capture live outdoor images from various locations near Evans' home one mile west of Ironton, and publishes them to various Web sites including Evans' own, www.irontonwebcams.com and www.charlevoixweather.com as well as numerous other sites.

Evans receives no financial reimbursements for his postings.

He said his sole motivation is to provide free weather information and photographs to the general public, and perhaps make a personal connection along the way.

In March, he received an e-mail from Master Sergeant Paul Arnold of the United States Air Force stationed at Ramstein Air Base, Germany.

Arnold was amazed to discover online images from Evans' Web cameras that were taken from an angle showing his childhood home.

"Thank-you for creating your Web site," Arnold wrote in an e-mail to Evans. "I moved away 21 years ago when I joined the Air Force...seeing the pictures was as if I was back home again, staring down the road at the same trees and hills."

He added, "It's as if I'm still at home."

Arnold is not the only person who has contacted Evans in appreciation of his Web postings.

"It's surprising, really. What I have discovered in all this is the number of people out there that are like me," Evans said. "Kind of geeky and are interested in the weather, and just like to do this—for fun."

Business serves body, mind, spirit

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Heidi Dietrich

In May, in a small coastal village near Puerto Viejo, Costa Rica, Heidi Dietrich studied at the Samasati Yoga Retreat Center with 20 other students from all over the world to earn her accreditation as a yoga instructor.

Returning to Charlevoix, Dietrich established Dharma and Grace Yoga.

"Yoga is bringing together the body, mind and spirit," Dietrich said. "I think people come to yoga for many reasons. For some, it's relaxation; for others, it's for added flexibility or for the physical exercise. And for some, it's spiritual."

Dietrich completed the required 200 hours of training through the Yoga Alliance, an international organization that provides support services and yoga teacher certification.

She received instruction in anatomy, alignment, adjustments and breathing, as well as the history, philosophy and the essence of the yoga lifestyle.

Yoga is the Sanskrit word for "union."

Originating in India 3,000 years ago, yoga is the practice of physical postures, poses and mental practices with the purpose of achieving one's highest potential and to experience an improved quality of life.

"It's really for everyone," said Dietrich. "From kids, to more advanced ages. It can be fine-tuned for individual needs. It assists with balance, stamina, focus and flexibility. With kids, it helps with releasing or focusing energy."

Born and raised in Charlevoix, Dietrich started practicing yoga when she was still in high school.

"My mother saw that it was offered, and I took it with my parents," she said. "I took classes offered by Mary Reilly at Crooked Tree. My older sister does yoga, too, and my mom does Tai Chi."

Living to Chicago for 10 years, beginning in 1997, Dietrich "took lots of yoga classes" while working in human resources for Hyatt Hotels, marketing for commercial real estate and as an art director for the gallery, Dulcinea.

"It's really a dream come true," she said about teaching yoga. "It's a gift to me."

Dietrich holds classes at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays and 10 a.m. on Thursdays and Fridays at The Well Being, located at 1516 South Bridge St., across from the airport.

She also offers a class at 10 a.m. on Mondays at The Charlevoix Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St.

Classes are $12 for drop-ins and $10 each for a series of five or more.

Dietrich is offering a free sunrise yoga class at 7:30 a.m. Aug. 22 in East Park, and private sessions are also available.

To learn more or to schedule a personal session, call Dharma and Grace Yoga at (231) 373-6033.

Heidi Dietrich meditates on a rock on a beach. Dietrich earned her yoga accreditation earlier this May in Costa Rica.

"The more time you spend practicing yoga, the more aware you are of your body, the food you eat and your daily activities," said Dietrich. "It's a lifelong practice. Every day is a new opportunity to see how things are coming along."

Council hears power purchase, power line relocation

The following actions were taken by the Charlevoix City Council during their regular Aug. 3 meeting.

Item: Power purchase

In brief: Council discussed whether to purchase blocks of power in the amount of $5,454,446 through the Michigan Public Power Agency as has been considered in recent months. The city could buy power blocks at what may be a lower price now than several years down the road and use it when necessary.

Board action: Unanimously approved, 6-0

Item: Power line relocation

In brief: Discussion of whether to relocate power lines along nearly three blocks of Dixon Avenue to prevent several trees from being substantially trimmed or removed.

Board action: Council has given the affected homeowners 40 days to indicate interest of paying the nearly $200,000 in fees to relocate the lines along the Berdan Alley.

Item: Anderson boathouse legal strategy

In brief: In order to save the city money, council discussed whether to limit the amount of work its legal counsel may perform in connection with the proposed Anderson Boathouse project. City attorney recommended he attend hearings but not file pleadings or engage in oral argument except to clarify matters to the judge hearing the case and any other matters which would necessitate defending the city's best interests.

Board action: Unanimously approved, 6-0

Public hearings set

Item: Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) compliance

In brief: A public hearing was set for noon on Aug. 10 at city hall on a proposed amendment to the city code which will require enplanement data be reported to the city on an annual basis. Local airways are not forced to report the number of passengers under FAA rules but if the city cannot prove it has at least 10,000 enplanement, or air passengers, each year, it will lose $1 million in funding.

Item: Earl Young Historic District

In brief: A public hearing was set for 7 p.m. Aug. 17 at city hall on whether to gather public input on the proposed Earl Young Historic District. Young built the 16 structures in question. The Charlevoix Historic District Study Committee feels the homes are unique and should be preserved for their historical importance as their designer was a renowned architect.

It's red!

The scaffolding came off Charlevoix's newly painted lighthouse Friday on the pier at Lake Michigan Beach. The fresh red paint will take some getting used to for many. Others who have been around long enough, see it as restored to how they remember it as a child.

Wellness Wednesday

Charlevoix Area Hospital continues to offer walk-in health screenings from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. and from 1:45 p.m. until 4 p.m. on the first Wednesday of each month in classroom A.

The next one is scheduled for Wednesday Aug. 5.

Health Screens include: cholesterol (total cholesterol, HDL, the healthy cholesterol which protects the heart, and a ratio, which ideally should be under 4.5 to help prevent stroke and heart attack), blood sugar level, Body Mass Index (BMI) score, and a blood pressure reading.

Cost for the service is $12. Participants will receive a blood pressure log, a pedometer, and all of the test results (including the blood results) at the time of the screen.

Blood will be obtained by a Registered Nurse by a painless finger-stick method with no fasting required. Health Consultation and educational materials will be tailored to individual results by a Registered Nurse. Appointments can be made in advance by calling the Office of Community Health Education at 547-8906.

Walk-ins are welcome. The entire visit will take less than 15 minutes and could end up saving your life.

Poet honored

Charlevoix's Poet Laureate Rosalyn Goldstick will be saluted on the occasion of her 90th birthday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 15 at the Charlevoix Senior Center located at 06906 Norwood Road near the west end of Carpenter Street.

Light refreshments will be served. No gifts, please, but cards are welcome. Donations in Rosalyn's name can be made to either the Senior Center or to Temple B'Nai Israel, 420 Waukazoo Ave., Petoskey, MI 49770. Call 547-0749 for questions or information.

Build the Bus

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Dear friends of Northwest Michigan:

It was a great pleasure to return home recently for the grand re-opening of Resort Township's East Park. While the weather for the June 20th celebration was cool and cloudy, the moods of those who attended were bright; the event provided a visible example of the environmental progress being made by CMS Land Company at the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project.

At CMS Land, we are proud of the work that has been done at East Park and all along the shoreline near the Bay Harbor community. The solutions installed at East Park have worked well and environmental results have been impressive. Monitoring of the lake shows that the safeguards are working. And, in June, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan opened all access to the lake at the park. Now, we turn the page.

Soon, CMS Land will deliver to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency information collected from our monitoring wells at East Park to help establish standards for mercury as the project moves toward completion. Positive results from this monitoring should lead to having long-term oversight of the project moved from the federal government to state officials here in Michigan. In addition, CMS continues its work to find a safe and cost-effective local option to dispose of the water collected at East Park and at locations in the Bay Harbor community, including using proven methods to safely release the water to the lake.

These will all be exciting milestones in the life of this project, one that began with an abandoned cement factory and just recently celebrated the reopening of a world-class public park.

I would like to thank all those who helped make the opening of East Park a great success. We will build on that success as we move into the final stages of this environmental effort.

Sincerely,

David C. Mengebie

School board appoints familiar face

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Citing a need to "go with experience," the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education chose a former board member to fill a recent opening.

Former longtime board member Larry Levensgood was appointed from a pool of five applicants following an interview before a crowd of dozens at the Monday, Aug. 10 meeting.

"I look forward to being back and getting to work," Levensgood said. "The board has a lot of challenges ahead of them and I'm looking forward to trying to help them meet those challenges."

Levensgood's experience comes from serving 20 years on the school board in Charlevoix.

Back in February 2008, Levensgood chose not to run for reelection citing it was time for a change.

"I told them then, if they ever needed someone to fill out a vacancy for a time period I'm available to help them out," he said.

Levensgood, who said he isn't sure if he will seek re-election next May, works for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik said he was grateful six people applied for the vacancy left when former board member Judith Ivan resigned citing "personal issues."

One candidate withdrew in the days leading up to the interview.

"Larry brings over 20 years of experience ... so it will be a smooth transition and easy for him to get caught up with what we're dealing with," Janik said. "I look forward to working with him once again."

Levensgood said he missed working with the board for the last year-and-a-half.

"I missed the involvement and helping the community and students—it's a way to give back to the community," he said.

Levensgood was sworn in at the end of the Aug. 10 meeting.

He will officially begin his term at the 7 p.m. Sept. 14 board meeting at Charlevoix Middle School.

The relay of your life: cancer awareness

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Kim Hejka was 20-years-old when she threw a snowball and broke her arm.

"I was diagnosed with Ewing's Sarcoma," she said, "but I got lucky. It wasn't actually in the bone."

Hejka is one of the cancer survivors participating in the American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County.

Saturday, August 15 at 10 a.m. through Sunday, August 16 at 10 a.m. The 24-hour event is held at Castle Farms and is open to the public.

It celebrates survivors and remembers those who lost, but fought back, in their battle against a disease that attacks one in three people during their lifetime.

The Relay For Life is the American Cancer Society's signature event, raising awareness and funds to fight cancer. It features an overnight camp-out of friends, family and co-workers, broken into teams, who take turns walking the track. Each team keeps a member on the track at all times as a reminder that cancer never sleeps. A Fight Back Ceremony, Survivor Dinner, and Remembrance Ceremony, held at dusk, are also scheduled.

More than a fundraiser, the Relay For Life offers the community an opportunity to support local survivors and the ongoing effort to find a cure.

It's wonderful," Hejka said. "I can't explain it. It's a place where everybody knows what it's like. Not just the survivors, but the caregivers and family. Cancer is hard on everyone involved, and it means everything to see this kind of support. Sometimes you feel alone when you're fighting it

You can't give a better gift than feeling like you're not alone."

A two-time survivor, Hejka was diagnosed with breast cancer 10 years ago. She returned to her involvement in the Relay For Life, and this year she co-chairs the silent and live auctions with her mother, Sue Stanbrough.

Participants and spectators have the opportunity to celebrate the triumph of local survivors during the Survivor's Victory Lap.

"The Victory Lap is one of the most moving experiences of my life," said Owen Welsh, co-chair for Relay For Life of Charlevoix County. "Each year I'm overwhelmed by the crowds of people who surround the track cheering on survivors like myself. It reminds me that I'm not alone in my fight against cancer."

BICYCLE ACCIDENT

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a motor vehicle versus bicycle/personal injury crash on July 29.

The crash occurred on Camp Daggett Road near Church Road, Bay Township. The driver of the motor vehicle, 44 year old Reginald Longworth of Boyne City was traveling southbound on Camp Daggett Road just south of Church Road when he crested a hill and came upon 12 year old Christopher Susott of Zionsville, Indiana, riding a bicycle also Southbound on Camp Daggett Road. The driver of the motor vehicle was unable to avoid the Susott and side-swiped him causing him to fall from his bicycle. The driver of the bicycle was transported to Northern Michigan Hospital by Boyne City EMS with a broken leg. The driver of the motor vehicle was also transported by Boyne City EMS to Northern Michigan Hospital to be checked out. Limited sight distance is thought to be a contributing factor of the crash.

VESSEL DAMAGED

During early morning hours of Sunday, Aug. 2, a resident on Glenwood Beach reported damage to a neighbor's dock, hoist and vessel. Vessel was damaged severely enough that it had begun to sink and in high waves broke loose from the hoist and began floating free in Lake Charlevoix. Marine Deputies responded to the scene assisted by the Coast Guard to secure the vessel. The vessel could not be towed as it took on too much water. Tow Boat U.S. began recovery efforts to remove the vessel from the Lake. The vessel was a total loss at $45,000 in damage.

The witness thought they had heard a noise around 2 a.m. but they weren't sure of the exact time. The vessel, dock and hoist were damaged so severely that it was thought that the striking vessel must have been damaged severely as well and could have easily sunk nearby.

The Charlevoix County Dive Team was called to perform a perimeter search of the Lake's bottom. No vessel was found in the search area.

If you have any information on this Hit and run boating accident, you are asked to call 911 or the Charlevoix county Sheriff's Office at 547-4461 and ask to speak with Lt. David Beyer or Marine Deputy Brian Brachel. The case remains under investigation.

AUTO ACCIDENT

A two-vehicle auto crash at approximately 5:20 p.m. sent two people to Charlevoix Area Hospital on Friday Aug. 7.

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Curt Thompson said a man driving a red Ford compact car and a woman driving a Jeep collided at the intersection of US-31 and Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in Charlevoix Township.

"The injuries appeared to be moderate," Thompson said. "But, we don't do the EMS work, so it's hard to be certain."

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded and was assisted by Charlevoix Township Fire Department, Charlevoix City Police and the Charlevoix City Fire Department which brought the jaws of life.

The jaws were used to remove 69-year-old Judith Binstadt of Charlevoix from a Jeep.

Binstadt had been traveling north on US-31 when 17-year-old Andrew Scholey of Charlevoix pulled out in front of her from Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

Scholey received lacerations to his face and minor abrasions to his right leg and arm, and he complained of chest pain.

Both roads were closed to through-traffic for nearly an hour with the road reopening at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Both cars were damaged beyond repair.

Commission shoulders bike path

Road commission supports path along shoulder of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REPORTER

BOYNE CITY — Citing uncertainty about its legal standing on road easements, the Charlevoix County Road Commission is recommending that extra-wide shoulders be substituted for a dedicated bike path proposed along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

In a letter to county planner Larry Sullivan, signed at their regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the commission wrote, "Road commission finds it advisable to support right-of-way usage for non-motorized purposes only along paved shoulders of the road to be reconstructed along this route."

For years, county officials have been pursuing a non-motorized path along Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, and recently had requested the road commission's support for constructing the path separate from the road with in the 99-foot road right-of-way that runs most of the road's length.

However recently, several property owners along the road have objected to the bike path's construction saying ing it would infringe on their property rights and property values.

After some research at the county register of deeds office, some property owners discovered what appears to be a trump card: In the 1950s, when the road commission obtained additional rights-of-way to realign the road, many, if not all of those right-of-way releases included a restriction that the county was allowed to use the land only for "highway purposes."

At Monday's meeting road commission attorney Joel Wurster said his research has shown that whether a bike path constitutes a "highway use" could be argued either way.

"Arguments can be made that such a use is within the scope of the conveyance. However, some Michigan courts have taken a narrower view of the scope of conveyances such as this. Therefore, the road commission cannot be assured that such a plan would be free from potentially legitimate judicial challenges in involving properties along a significant portion of this right-of-way," the letter reads.

"The road commission strives to do its best with limited resources to provide transportation facilities for the general public. In this instance, it does not believe that it is in the best interest to pursue a course of action that would lead to a significant controversy over the legal basis for the location of the path as previously proposed."

Sullivan, who was at Monday's meeting indicated as much as half of the approximately $1 million in non-motorized trail grant money the county has been pursuing for the project might not be available if the path is created using the widened road shoulder approach.

But for now, that's the direction the road commission is headed.

Road commission manager Pat Harmon said Monday, based on a recent recommendation from county's road millage steering committee, the road commission will seek bids to reconstruct a 2.74-mile section of Boyne City-Charlevoix Road from Nelson to Sumner roads. The goal, Harmon said, is to have the project completely bid out yet this year so that work can begin at the start of next year's construction season.

The bid documents will include a 34-foot wide roadway to accommodate bike lanes on the shoulders at an estimated cost of about $1.2 million. Harmon said the road commission hopes to obtain some non-motorized grant money to offset the cost of the extra-wide pavement — about $300,000.

The final say on both the bike path location and the expenditure of the millage money will lie with the county board of commissioners.

Lying fishermen

My brother-in-law supposes as a first principle that, to quote him directly, "All Fishermen Lie."

My personal observations mostly tend to confirm his judgment.

This raises a couple of questions. Why do fishermen lie, what to they lie about and what sorts of lies to they tell?

I must confess at the beginning that, as a fisherman, I participate fully in the prevarication.

There are lies while fishing and lies after fishing.

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

They are mostly lies of omission rather than lies of commission.

There are lies about other fishermen and, of course, lies about fish.

Beginning with the lies about fishermen, they commonly fall into the category of unwarranted applause.

To other fishermen, every fisherman is a great fisherman. Or at worst a really good fisherman.

It is sort of like calling Sean Hannity on the radio and his greeting you as a "great American."

Which you must reciprocate by calling Mr. Hannity another "great American."

It's a mostly harmless lie both about the other fisherman.

The lies of omission are often accomplished by being less than completely forthcoming about what has occurred.

When you raise one finger (ides finger) to the questioning look from someone in a passing boat, you omit any specific information about what kind or how big that one was.

The occupant of the other boat, knowing that you are a great fisherman, will assume the best for you.

Just a borderline lie, really, hardly worth mentioning. Lies about fish are by far the most common sort.

Adding a pound or two or a few inches to the fish is almost taken for granted, especially if the fish is already in filets and can no longer be measured accurately.

My fish is bigger than your fish is an important sort of claim, and if it must be bolstered with an incontestable fib, so be it.

As to why fishermen lie: that is a more difficult question. I have concluded, that at base, the cause is a form of envy.

The dictionary definition of envy doesn't completely apply.

According to Webster, envy is, "resentful awareness of an advantage enjoyed by another, accompanied by a desire to possess the same advantage."

Fishermen are not generally resentful, but they most certainly desire to possess what the other fisherman has, even if he has lied about its magnitude.

Fisherman's envy, then, is not the usual sort, and I would propose that it be given a slightly different sense.

I suppose we could just call it fisherman's envy, but a psychological condition desires something more erudite using the Latin designation for fish we could call it piscatorial envy. Or if French might be preferred, it could be designated Poissonal envy.

Freud focused mostly on other human activities and did not comment on this specific sort of envy.

He did refer frequently to several related and similar sounding forms of the disorder.

I suspect that he knew about piscatorial envy and the web of small lies that it promotes, and I'm pretty sure he was not a fisherman.

Midnight in the garden of exercise and cheesecake

Some find it cathartic and invigorating to break a sweat. I find it vaguely repugnant. But over the years it became apparent, even to me, that a body bereft of some sort of maintenance will eventually succumb to the ravages of time and cheesecake.

By the time I reached this epiphany, a physical fitness mania had exploded upon our cultural landscape. No longer were the employees at Jack LaLane's perfectly coiffed girls in black leotards, teetering on high heels and demonstrating toe-touches to a handful of oddball neophytes. Now they were perfectly coiffed girls in sweatbands and leg warmers, leading a burgeoning roomful of disciples through routines so complicated and difficult to execute as to require a resume including a stint with Twyla Tharp.

I took up aerobics. I planted myself in the back row and flailed away to the theme music from "Flashdance" in a fuzzy approximation of the initiated.

No matter how many classes I attended I could never achieve any semblance of expertise.

And that was the problem. No one would mistake me for a zealot, but I do expect to improve with practice, and that progress is my impetus to continue.

I did manage stick to it for longer than I would have predicted, but I hated every minute of it. I never reached the fabled plateau where a second wind would boost me to a new level of competence.

I couldn't seem to embrace the "no pain, no gain" concept with the enthusiasm displayed by the rest of the class.

It was a torturous ordeal that left me toned, but queasy. Only the cool-down and the part where I'd walk back to my car, blissful in the knowledge that it was over, kept me going.

Who knows when I drifted away from the herd.

One week I was attending classes almost daily and the next week I was in a cafe, drinking wine and eating ravioli in cream sauce, engaged in cerebral discourse with fascinating, albeit flabby, friends and loosening my waistband.

Those were the good times. And my hard work at the gym bought me a brief but blissful sabbatical in which to indulge my true nature.

But it didn't last long. When I reluctantly considered the repercussions of continued indolence, I allowed that aerobics would not be an option this time.

Like a bad boyfriend who had worn me to the point of apathy, our relationship was over.

I embraced and then quickly abandoned the next phase of endeavor, which involved a bicycle in harrowing combination with urban traffic. Pilates was excruciating. Jogging was akin to public exhibitionism. Free weights were so...so heavy.

My flair for sitting cross-legged led me to yoga.

I was beguiled by the slow, graceful postures and the absence of beat-heavy disco music. An instructor who whispered instructions was divine respite from the shrieking cheerleaders who led the aerobics classes.

Although I try, my wandering western mind resists the spiritual discipline of yoga. Except for a vacuous period in mid-1971, I don't think that it's ever been empty enough to serve as a vessel for significant enlightenment. But I enjoy the physical challenge and the moderation, and I'm encouraged by this.

My priorities are different now. I'm not worried about squeezing into a mini skirt, but I'd like to preserve the capacity to sneeze without triggering back spasms.

I hope to continue to clip my toenails well into my golden years and I understand that flexibility is key to keeping this dream alive.

I will never again be as young as I am today, but who cares?

As long as I retain the resilience to bend and lift the cheesecake from the bottom shelf of the refrigerator, I'm happy.

This is a painful awareness for us and countless others who knew and loved her.

We were introduced to Edith shortly after we moved to Michigan Avenue, although she had long known members of both our families.

My wife Julie's parents, Marjorie Fisher and the late Max, had known Edith since the 1950s and whenever they came to Charlevoix to visit, they enjoyed reminiscing with Edith about past experiences and people they had known in common.

For about 10 years in the 1950s and 1960s, my late uncle Nathan owned a home on Lake Charlevoix, off the Boyne City Road.

He and Edith knew each other well. Nathan passed away in 1987. Ten years later, our elder grandson was born and was named after Nathan.

The first summer young Nathan came to Charlevoix, Edith presented his parents with a scrapbook she had assembled of pictures and news clippings about the late Nathan and correspondence she had exchanged with him.

This is the kind of thing Edith was good at doing—wonderful at doing—connecting people and connecting the past to the present.

No one connected people better than did Edith.

A large group we know and count as friends in Charlevoix, we met first through her.

My wife Julie always refers to Edith as her "fairy godmother," the person who took us under her wing here and became a curious blend of aunt and mother and friend.

More mysterious to me was her way of connecting the past to the present. She seemed to come from a time and place where manners and etiquette counted for more, almost as if, at some point earlier in her life, she had

Bible, a manual for life

The Bible is full of guidance on how to handle anger, but I am always drawn first to Paul's caution about anger in Ephesians 4:26.

Be angry, Paul said, but make sure it doesn't lead to sin.

Paul acknowledges what we all know. Being angry, that strong feeling of irritation and displeasure, is part of being alive.

Studies show that the average person becomes angry eight to ten times each day.

Anger is normal, common, and human, and represents one choice among many for responding to all that is frustrating and beyond our control.

Anger, I would argue, is a God-given emotion just like fear, and is part of our emotional tool kit. Just as God wired us with the good sense to be afraid of what will harm us, He also built into us the capacity to become angry.

Each emotion involves a release of adrenaline that stimulates us to action.

There is an anger that leads to sin, but there is a lot good about anger.

Anger can be very helpful in regulating society.

For example, many of our laws designed to protect the innocent and helpless are motivated by the anger we feel when their safety is violated.

Who does not get angry at the thought of a child molested or an old woman mugged?

Anger can also help form social bonds that otherwise would never happen.

In Sept. 2001 anger against Arab terrorists united our nation.

Activists use anger as a catalyst for social change.

After all, had the good men of Boston not gotten angry over the tea tax we'd still be Brits.

Anger also helps regulate relationships. When we become angry we demand others listen to us, and we use the opportunity to communicate what we might otherwise never get off our chests.

In fact, the ability to get angry is essential to our self-esteem. When we feel attacked, or when we believe we have been the victim of injustice, we become angry enough to defend ourselves. When we are ignored, dismissed, patronized, or talked down to it is our anger that demands respect.

Anger can also be a motivator to change our personal situation for the better. I have a friend who was very good at his job, but was frustrated working for a boss who was an idiot. He realized one day that the sole reason this other guy was the boss was because he had a college degree. My friend recognized that hard work, competence, and responsibility were not enough, and that without that college degree he was always going to be working for someone who knew less than he did. Three years of hard work later my friend was on his way to a brighter future as a boss with a degree of his own.

FAITHFUL SERVANT

I try to help my clients see the healthy way to handle anger is to direct all that energy into positive change. That involves four simple steps.

First we experience the anger and recognize it for what it is. We don't give into it or allow it to control us. We exercise our will to impose our intellect to rule over our emotions.

Second, we take time to study the situation until we understand the source of our anger. We identify that situation, person, or system that has to change.

Third, we establish a healthy goal designed to solve the problem.

Finally, we stay angry enough, and long enough, to see the solution through to the end.

My friend with the idiot boss used this healthy approach. He exercised control over the anger he felt, and did not simply explode in frustration. Although the inept boss seemed to be the problem, the actual source was a system in place at his employer that valued a college degree more than competence. Then he defined a healthy goal to address the problem. He followed through for years by staying just angry enough to remain focused on completing his plan.

The Bible speaks to real-life problems we all experience. It offers good examples of how to manage anger, as well as examples of how it can lead to sin. That's where we'll pick up in the next column.

Both grew up in the heyday of Hollywood.

They were from different generations but connected like lifelong friends.

Leonard was captivated; no surprise there.

We noticed that her energy was flagging a bit, but the twinkle in her eye remained undimmed.

At the end of the evening Julie insisted I escort Edith home, just a few doors down, but Edith would have none of it, the independent spirit flashing.

She could make it home fine on her own, she said. And so she did.

GUEST commentary In appreciation of Charlevoix's 'Grand Dame'

This guest commentary was written by summer Charlevoix resident Peter Cummings.

As summer residents, my wife and I think longingly about Charlevoix for the better part of eight or nine months a year.

The sequence unfolds like this: we think about our home, where we are now enjoying our 18th summer; we think about our street, Michigan Avenue; and then we think about Edith, sitting on her porch across the street from our home, entertaining someone who was strolling by and had stopped to chat.

That sequence will probably continue to unfold in our minds forever, although we know Edith will not be on that porch next season.

This is a painful awareness for us and countless others who knew and loved her.

Rainbow: Good job

Editor:
A job well done.
Jared Hunt and Scott Friske are to be applauded on the way they tackled one of their recent business ventures.

They presented an estimate and written agreement to the Rainbow Shoppe Executive Board to demolish and remove two tractor trailers and a house trailer, both filled with junk. They were asked to remove a lot of debris from behind the pole buildings and inside one of the pole buildings.

When told to go ahead with Their work certainly exemplifies high professionalism from such young men.

Architect of artistry builds worlds

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

On July 20, The New York Innovative Theatre (IT) Awards announced their nominees for significant artistic contribution to the Off-Broadway community.

Caleb Levensgood, a 1999 graduate of Charlevoix High School, was selected for consideration for his set design on the 2008 production, "Angel Eaters Trilogy," presented by the Flux Theatre Ensemble.

"I always have had an innate attraction to live theater," Levensgood said. "I can't really say what sparked it, but theatre was always something that fascinated me. I first participated in theatre activities in the Charlevoix school system. I was heavily involved in Connie Ford's Performing Arts program in my years in high school, participating in almost every event that was offered. I actually did some of my first scenic designs for our yearly 'Big Show' musicals."

She added, "I remember working on designing scenery for our productions of 'Isle of Tears' and 'Oklahoma.'"

Upon graduating from high school, Levensgood attended the University of Michigan before receiving a Master of Fine Arts degree from the University of California in San Diego. "It's one of the top programs in the country for theatre design, and San Diego is actually home to some great theatre," said Levensgood, "like the La Jolla Playhouse and the Old Globe Theatre. But inevitably, I really jump into the professional design world, I had to go where much of theater begins—New York City."

Director Jerry Ruiz, a friend from grad school, introduced Levensgood to the "Angel Eaters Trilogy" project, three connected plays concerning multi-generations of a family with the arguable gift of resurrecting the dead.

"This was a trilogy of plays by one playwright, but three very different tales, revolving around one grand, and very interesting idea," Levensgood said. "I was attracted to the physical space that these shows could inhabit and the environment that these stories needed to be visually told on stage."

He added, "A set is not only a backdrop for a story, but more so a world it can inhabit. And discovering that for these shows is what was fun about designing all three of these in the trilogy together."

Levensgood acted in various productions before and during his early work in set design. "I did a bit (of acting) in high school, and a few acting classes in college," he said. "But that passion for acting never really hit me as hard as others around me, and I realized I loved visualizing a play or a story better. Imagining what kind of world this play could take place in was incredibly interesting to me."

The competitive arena of professional theater offers a challenge for artists trying to break into the business.

"Flux Theatre Ensemble is a very interesting and hard working Off-Broadway company here in New York City," Levensgood said. "There are some very dedicated young theater artists involved in their productions, and hopefully they have a great future."

He added, "In general, it is pretty difficult for small companies to thrive and grow, but

The set of "Angel Eaters" the play was designed by local Caleb Levensgood.

Polar Bears premier; film honors sacrifice

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

She made parts of Charlevoix County look like early 1900s northern Russia

And, before her documentary on the Michigan soldiers dubbed "Polar Bears" goes to PBS, there will be a special premiere in Charlevoix County.

"I'm very excited for everybody to see it," said writer/director Pamela Peak.

Peak, whose grandfather was a Polar Bear, began working on the movie in 2007.

"There were a lot of diaries to sort through—a lot of things to read and really find who told the story best," she said. "What amazed me was they really did tell the same stories. I read hundreds of diaries. It was like I was able to piece together this huge puzzle and come up with what now is the film."

Peak's two-hour movie follows the adventure of a group of soldiers who were sent to Archangel, Russia at the end of World War I to quell the Bolshevik uprising.

"This select group of 5,500 American soldiers was largely from Michigan and some surrounding states because they were hardened by the Michigan winters," she said. "They got up there (Archangel) and 60 days after...World War I ended. They think they're going home, but the British really thought they could wipe out the communists—that's what the Bolsheviks were, the first communists—but our guys were outnumbered and starving in this savage land."

Some of the soldiers grew so hungry on their meager rations they began eating bark.

"And, they didn't have proper medical attention," Peak said. "They were doing amputations with pocket knives—these guys were really tough."

She added, "I have cried so many times since I wrote this, sitting here in California on the floor of my study, reading what these guys wrote about their experience."

The movie gets its name "Voices of a Never Ending Dawn" because the soldiers were in Russia during the time of year when it was nearly dusk all the time.

"They got iced in so no mail could get in or out, they thought they had been forgotten and they didn't know if it was day or night," Peak said. "About 300 of them died. Some died of flu and many died on the battlefield."

She added, "Despite all these odds and thinking they were forgotten, they were so heroic standing up for each other and the principle of freedom."

Peak said the movie is appropriate for all ages and will appeal to different things in different generations.

"It's a documentary, but it's a tear-jerker," she said. "It's as much an anti-war film as it is a film about war—no stance is taken, I just told the story and allow the audience to decide."

There is no cost to attend the movie at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 29 at the Boyne City Performing Arts Center at Boyne City High School, 1035 Boyne Ave. in Boyne City.

However, donations are appreciated.

"We would truly appreciate any donations as we will be splitting them with the Boyne City Library to help fund the Veterans Memorial Park," Peak said.

OBITUARIES

Esther Marie Livingston: Nov. 4, 1928 - Aug. 4, 2009

Esther Marie Livingston passed away at her daughter's home in Lakeland, Florida on Aug. 4, 2009 at the age of 80. Esther was born in Northville, Michigan to Lester and Margaret M. Harwood on November 4, 1928. She spent most of her early years in and around Norwood, attending school there and in Charlevoix. Esther worked at Charlevoix Hospital as a nurse's aide as a teenager. Later she attended Northwestern Michigan College and became a Licensed Practical Nurse, a profession she enjoyed until her retirement.

In May of 1946 she married Robert B. Livingston and they resided and worked in Charlevoix and the surrounding area.

For the past 25 years, Esther has resided in Florida, most recently in Zephyrhills. She has maintained her friendships with many Charlevoix residents that now live or winter there.

Survivors include her sons, Bruce (Denise) Livingston of Olympia, Wash.; Don (Pam) Livingston of Holt, Michigan; daughters Lenore (Michael) Hagins of Lakeland, Fla.; and Lynette (Michael) Webb of Charlevoix; her brothers, Stan (Angie) Harwood of Standish, Michigan and Clare (Mary Beth) Harwood of Lowell, Michigan; brother-in-law, David Livingston of Grand Rapids, Michigan; sister-in-law Lee Harwood of Sarasota, Fla. and sister-in-law Estelle Livingston (Ralph) Hahn of Sun City West, Ariz.; and 11 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Esther was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Robert Livingston in 1984, and her brother Floyd Harwood in 1998.

A graveside service is being planned for a later date at Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix and a celebration of her life is being planned by family and friends. Esther was a lifelong member of the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Marvin Lee Molasky: Nov. 19, 1927 - Aug. 8, 2009

Marvin Lee Molasky, 81, of Charlevoix, MI and formerly of West Bloomfield, MI, died peacefully Aug. 8, 2009 in Charlevoix.

Marvin was born November 19, 1927 in St. Louis, Mo., the son of Stanley and Sayde (Zucker) Molasky.

He grew up in Clayton, Mo., graduating from Clayton High School in 1945. He attended the University of Illinois at Urbana, later transferring to the Washington University of St. Louis, and graduating with a degree in Business.

Marvin married his first wife, Nancy Shuart, in 1948. He was drafted into the Marine Corps in 1952 and served honorably in El Toro, Calif. for two years.

They moved to western Michigan where Marvin ran Fleishman Pickle Company.

Marvin and Nancy settled in West Bloomfield where Marvin worked as a Senior Vice President for Merrill Lynch for 26 years. Nancy preceded Marvin in death in 1987.

Marvin married Berta (Tauber) Meyerson in 1990. They lived in Birmingham and West Bloomfield for a number of years, and recently moved to Charlevoix.

Marvin was an active member of the Charlevoix Kiwanis, Washington University Alumni Association, the Marine Corps League and Temple B'nai Israel in Petoskey.

He was an avid traveler and bridge player.

He enjoyed reading, business and especially baseball. His favorite teams were the St. Louis Cardinals and the Detroit Tigers and was especially perplexed as to whom he should root for in the 2006 World Series.

Marvin is survived by his spouse Berta Molasky, his sister Doris Fishman of Missouri, Diane Molasky of Florida, his brother-in-law Joel Tauber, his four step-children: Benjamin and Nicole (Dewey) Meyerson, Valerie Meyerson and Thomas Johnson, Joshua and Mary Jean (Mund) Meyerson and Emily Meyerson and Harry Kitchen of Petoskey, and five grandchildren: Amanda Kitchen, Jeremiah and Anne Johnson and Max and Gabriel Meyerson of Petoskey.

Marvin was preceded in death by his parents Stanley and Sayde Molasky, his brother Fred Molasky and his first wife, Nancy (Shuart) Molasky.

A service will be held at the Chapel at Beth Abraham Cemetery, Ferndale at 2 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 13, and a memorial service at 1 p.m. on Sunday Aug. 16 at Temple B'nai Israel of Petoskey.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests memorial donations be directed to the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix, PO Box 275, Charlevoix MI 49720 or a charity of your choice.

Ilse R. Perry: April 17, 1926 - Aug. 5, 2009

Ilse R. Perry, 83, of Charlevoix, passed away peacefully on Wednesday, Aug. 5, 2009, with her family at her side.

She was born in Germany on April 17, 1926, to Herbert and Charlotte Engart, and moved to the United States as a young woman.

She will be missed by her daughters, Kathie Whitley, and Sabrina (Todd) Luft; her three grandchildren, Amy (Patrick) McKeown, Alicia Whitley, and Dustin Duicher, and her five great-grandchildren all of Charlevoix.

Ilse's longtime companion, Doug Russell preceded her in death on August 30, 2003.

A private service is planned. The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Action & Business Briefs

Thank You To Our Chamber Monthly
Sponsors

From the Director's Desk:

Thank You.

To the men and women who choose to call Charlevoix home, either full time, or as their summer escape.

To those who own, operate or work for a business, of all forms, in this wonderful community.

To countless volunteers so generously giving of their time and talents to the numerous causes, events, and charities.

Together, we ARE Charlevoix. We are what make our community beautiful. We are the reason behind our successes, our growth and our future. I can only hope for the next generation to view the tremendous responsibility as an honor, as all of the above mentioned community members have done.

Sincerely, Erin Bemis

Calling All Bargain Hunters

Sidewalk Sale Season is quickly approaching! Starting Thursday, August 13th through August 15th, merchants will be taking their wares to the sidewalks. So while you stroll the streets, you will also have the chance to choose your merchandise! Whether you are searching for the perfect pair of jeans, shoes, picture frame, book, or if you're just in the mood to shop, there is something for everyone and you won't want to miss it!

Our mission is to attract, develop,
support, & retain commerce for a better
Charlevoix

Get Fresh! Buy Local!

If you're looking for the freshest produce, flowers, or baked goods around, look no further! The Charlevoix Farmers Market is in full swing! Market hours are every Thursday from 9am to 1pm in downtown East Park. Also, since Charlevoix's Downtown Sidewalk Sales will be taking place August 13-15, the August 13th Farmers Market will have extended hours! In one convenient downtown location, you can support Charlevoix area farmers and take home healthy, nutritious fruits and vegetables or freshly baked goods. It is where locals and visitors alike can go for the freshest produce, all of which is grown in the Charlevoix area. Be sure to stop by and pick up the fruits of the season!

It's Tee Time!

Registration is now open for the 2009 Chamber Golf Outing! It will be held on Friday, August 28th from 1 to 6pm at the Belvedere Golf Club. The outing will begin with a bang at 1pm with a shotgun start. Sign up for a sun-filled afternoon of networking and prize-winning opportunities. New this year, the dinner and awards ceremony will follow at the golf course!

August Business After Hours

Looking for something to do from 5 to 8pm on Thursday, August 13th? If so, come check out Business After Hours hosted by Dunmaglas Golf Club. It will be an excellent opportunity to network in addition to practicing your swing for the Chamber Golf Outing! Special savings will be offered to Chamber members the entire day of the event, August 13th -18 holes for $49 (a $30 savings) or 9 holes for $25 (a $15 savings). We hope to see you there!

Time is Ticking...

Don't miss out on your opportunity to win a candy-apple red, 2010 GT Mustang Convertible! On September 17th, at the Belvedere Casino Club, the Charlevoix Chamber is raffling off this traffic-stopping Mustang. Tickets are $100 each or three for $200. Call the Chamber and reserve your lucky numbers today at 547.2101.

Calcium Replacement and Diabetes

Diabetes is a disease in which the body cannot process glucose (sugar) correctly. This leads to high levels of glucose in the bloodstream. This condition is treated with diet, exercise, and medications. The American Diabetes Association recommends that people with diabetes consume 24 grams of dietary fiber each day. Dietary fiber is that portion of plant foods that aids digestion. Studies have shown that a high dietary fiber intake can also aid in lowering blood glucose levels. Calcium is a mineral that is stored mainly in the bones and teeth. It is also found in muscles, blood, and bodily fluids. Calcium is essential for proper maintenance of bones and nerve function in the body. One recent study evaluated 13 people with diabetes who consumed diets containing dietary fiber each day for 12 weeks. At the end of the study, those that consumed the highest amount of dietary fiber, the less calcium they were absorbing from food. Study researchers recommend that diabetics who consume high fiber diets discuss the possible need for calcium supplementation with their health care providers.

You may get caught...doing good

The Charlevoix Police Department in conjunction with the Charlevoix Kiwanis club are trying to reach out to local youth through a program called Positive Enforcement. Our local officers have been equipped with rewards such as candy bars, food coupons, movie tickets, and tickets to our local parks and recreational facilities, to hand out to teens that are "caught" doing something positive in the community. They are trying to encourage teens to use their manners, follow the law, and be safe while spending the rest of their summertime, as well as to improve police relations and develop rapport with our young adults.

Rewards will be randomly handed out to teens who are "caught" doing things such as wearing helmets while biking or skateboarding, walking their bikes downtown instead of riding them, putting their trash in dumpsters instead of littering, doing good deeds, and numerous other examples.

A local citizen contacted the police department with the idea for the program, and offered a monetary donation to get it started. The Kiwanis Club offered their assistance to develop the program and we are hoping to start soon.

We are asking for donations from any person or business interested in helping with the rewards program. We are also open to volunteers and community input. Anyone interested in becoming involved in the program or making a donation or contribution, please contact the Charlevoix Police Department at 547-3258.

LETTERS to the editor

Pet store, please

Editor:

Pets can't live that good of lives in make-shift homes for long. That's why I think we should have a pet store in downtown Charlevoix.

The average citizen of Charlevoix spends ten to twenty dollars driving to Potoskey or Traverse City to get pet supplies. If we have one in town, we could save money to get more or better pet supplies for our pets. Sometimes after buying something from the pet store people could say, "Oh, I might as well buy some things from that store also." So stores nearby could get money also.

You've probably driven by downtown so you should know what I mean when I say we have a lot of clothing stores and such, which are going out of business because of the too many of the same ideas for business. Like I said, we have a lot of space where poor businesses had to shut down, so that would be even better so we don't have to waste money building it. Another reason is that it could become so successful that it opens a whole chain of new pet stores. That would attract more people for more business because people would want to see the store that started it all right here in the small town of Charlevoix.

Speaking from experience, I've heard about and seen articles about people who bought a pet but, didn't have the correct supplies for the animal. Sadly the pet got medical problems. Sometimes the reason can also be because they didn't have a pet store nearby.

so they had to make do with an old smelly, house with rust and with holes for example. Some pets also can gain weight or lose weight because they don't have the proper food.

In conclusion, it would be in your best interest to try and get a pet store here in the little town with a big heart, Charlevoix, MI.

Thanks, Courier

Editor:

Thank-you for (Charlevoix Courier's) support of the Circle of Arts "Gallery Gallop."

This was the first year for this Charlevoix area tour of our many superb art galleries. Guests that took the tour enjoyed seeing the exhibits of paintings, sculpture, pottery, weavings, glass designs and other forms of art designs.

Several of the guests said they had never been to the outlying galleries and were to happy that they had the opportunity to visit them. They plan on returning to them again during the summer months. All enjoyed the "treats" that each gallery owner served during the tour.

The Mackinaw City Trolley added to the ambience of the countryside drive to and from the galleries. We were lucky that our driver knew all the back roads and destinations.

The weather and countryside could not have been more lovely. The hospitality at every stop certainly has inspired us to plan on doing this event again. Hopefully we learned a few things that will help to improve the tour.

Those that bid on the silent auction gifts were delighted with their gifts.

So again, we thank you all for helping us make this event a success.

We shall return again and again to view your galleries and the exciting display of Art

A bigger pool

Editor:

"Swim Kaeli, swim! Oh so close!" everybody yells. I believe that if Charlevoix had a legal length pool kids (like Kaeli) on the Charlevoix Stingrays Swim Team would be able to make more state times.

It seems to me that if Charlevoix had this, more kids would be able to go to states. In the past only two or three kids have gone to states. This year out of 78 Stingrays only 12 went states and nine kids this year were close to going to states.

My second reason is, the Stingrays would have better and longer exercises. More kids would lose weight with a longer length pool. Next, kids would place better at swim meets with harder, longer exercises.

Finally, there would be more room for more kids. This year there were 48 new Stingrays out of 78 total. As a Stingray myself, I can tell you that it is hard to swim when more than 15 kids are at practice which is 92 percent of the time.

In conclusion, if Charlevoix had a legal length pool, it would solve all the problems illustrated and help the Stingrays expand and do better all the time. So please help make this possible.

Fix the trail

Editor:

We should fix the BMX trail up so we can ride our dirt bike. We need more jumps to hit. There are only three jumps to hit. If we get more jumps we can improve our skills. If you make the trail bigger, there could be more jumps.

There would be less kids getting in trouble if kids are busy with sports. They wouldn't be getting in trouble with the law. In the summer the kids wouldn't be bored all summer long because they will be riding the trail. The kids wouldn't just ride the trail they will be watching soccer and they will be riding the trail too.

Finally the BMX trail should be improved and expanded. A lot of kids will look at that and say I won't ride that trail because it is in bad shape. It needs to be improved. More kids will ride that trail if it was bigger that is why you should expand. More people with money will be buying snacks and drinks because they will be riding the trail all day.

As you can see, I would like the BMX trail improved

Shocked and appalled

Editor:

(This letter is in response to former Charlevoix Public School Board member Judith Ivan's recent resignation from the board.)

I was shocked and appalled at comments made by Jan Herring, an Alpena, Michigan resident, in the Charlevoix Courier, (Letters to the Editor) July 29, 2009 edition. Mrs. Herring was a guest at the July 13, 2009 Charlevoix school board meeting.

If Mrs. Herring lived in Charlevoix county, as I do, she would know that we have a strong hard working school board and an excellent school staff working through contract negotiations to provide the best education for our students, working with less monies and high costs. She would also see all the "For Sale" signs, some of what represents families that had to leave Charlevoix because of lost jobs or can't find a job, thereby taking their school age children with them.

The disrespect Mrs. Herring showed in her letter for school board member Judith Ivan was inexcusable. She stated that Judith Ivan said "She knew of two professionals who recently lost their jobs and that the school staff should be grateful to be employed." I have heard this comment many times during the past year as I'm sure Judith Ivan has.

For Mrs. Herring to comment about the emotion with which Judith Ivan delivered her comments and write "If I were a voter in the Charlevoix School district I would not vote for Mrs. Ivan to hold a seat on this board." I have to wonder about her emotions that, as a guest from Alpena, Michigan, she felt the need to express her personal opinions in a letter to the editor of the Charlevoix Courier.

Air Force Chief Master Sgt. Gerald K. Thompson is returning to Hurlbut Field, Fort Walton Beach, Fla., after being deployed to Afghanistan in support of Operation Enduring Freedom.

Enduring Freedom is the official name given to anti-terrorism military operations involving U.S. troops and allied coalition partners.

Reserve component members from all branches of the U.S. armed forces have been mobilized, activated and deployed along with active duty members to support the war against global terrorism.

Mission objectives encompass combating the international terrorist network or regime forces outside the borders of the United States. U.S. troops serve in South and Southwest Asia, Central Asia, the Arabian peninsula, the Horn of Africa, islands in the Pacific, and Europe.

While in Afghanistan, Thompson served with the Combined Security Transition Command.

The command mission is to train, equip, mentor and advise the Afghan National Security Forces.

Currently at Hurlbut Field, he serves as chief of logistics embedded training team assigned to the 1st Special Operations Equipment Maintenance Squadron. The chief master sergeant has served in the military for 25 years.

He is the son of Curtis W. and Louise K. Thompson of Park Row, Charlevoix.

The State of Michigan Department of Education has given Northwest Academy approval to educate students who are of high school age and not attending school at the school's location. It will mean we will be able to provide resources for those students who are not attending a school and cannot, or choose not to, attend a school building to receive their education. We will be able to offer this program to all students that apply.

This means Northwest Academy will have the funding to provide:

1. Tuition for on-line courses.
2. Free tutoring
3. Free technical support
4. Computer provided if needed
5. Internet hook-up provided for work at home.
6. Northwest Academy transcript showing credits earned.
7. Northwest Academy Diploma for those meeting Northwest Academy's graduation requirements.

Girls work on softball skills

Girl's fast-pitch softball enthusiasts, Annette Nesburg and Tom Mielke in cooperation with the Charlevoix Recreation Department formed a recreation skills summer league for area girls ages 7 to 10.

More than 30 girls signed up to learn a variety of basic skills and fundamentals, teamwork, sportsmanship and game strategies.

For the first couple weeks, the girls practiced hitting, fielding, base running, throwing and pitching.

The players split into four teams and played league games twice a week ending the season with a fun night where the players split into two teams and played each other and celebrated the end of season with an ice cream donated by Concessionaire Ike Boss.

The Recreation Department is grateful to the coaches that took time from their hectic schedules to instruct the children.

The players showed great enthusiasm for the new girl's fast-pitch program and had a lot of fun learning their new skills and forming friendships with their teammates.

Look for this program to grow in the next few years.

The girls improved immensely over the six week season and are asking for a longer season next year.

The Charlevoix Recreation Department can be reached at 547-3253 for more information.

Feat benefits Junior Golf

The event has tradition—a single golfer plays 100 holes in a one-day fundraiser, taking monetary pledges for each hole played. For several years Steve Braun, former golf professional from the Belvedere Club, displayed his talents and perseverance while fundraising for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf program. Monday, Aug. 24 is another "100 holes in a day" fundraiser only the torch has been passed and a new face will attempt to duplicate Braun's feat.

But some extra challenges have been added. Marty Joy, a new teaching professional at the Belvedere, will replace his friend and colleague. The added challenges are Joy will play around 12 hours of golf using hickory clubs and golf attire first used in the 1920's and 30's. While using clubs from the past and golf dress from long ago aren't new to him, playing 100 holes continually will be. Joy, a member of the Society of Hickory golfers, has been an avid player on the "Hickory Circuit" and fairly recently lost the Mid Pine Hickory Open in a playoff.

When asked about the event, Joy said, "I'm sure I can do it, although the most holes I've played in a day as a Hickory golfer is 54 holes. I have the motivation of helping area young golfers learn about golf when enrolled in our outstanding program."

The Executive Director of the Charlevoix program, Dean Davenport, expressed his excitement for the event. "When you compare our current clubs and all the technology to the clubs Marty will be using, you wonder how he could agree to play 100 holes with them," he said. "He has worked as a volunteer teaching pro in our program since its beginning and is highly motivated to continue Steve's fundraising tradition."

The fundraiser allows the program to select six to eight youngsters each year who have a passion for golf to attend a week long golf camp at Ferris State University.

In addition, two graduating seniors that were former members of the Junior Golf program and who served their school and community as outstanding role models, receive book scholarships as first year college students.

The public is encouraged to participate. Spectators can view the event as early as 6:30 a.m. and approximately every 2.5 hours later as Joy completes 18 holes on his way to five rounds finishing his last 10 holes ending at around 6:30 p.m. Those wishing to contribute a pledge for Junior Golf may do so by contacting either Marty Joy at the Belvedere Club at 547-2611 or Dean Davenport at 547-6433. Pledges are tax-deductible.

Actions taken by the Charlevoix Public Schools Board

The following actions were taken by the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education during their Monday Aug. 10 meeting.

Item: Sports boosters update

In brief: Chris LaCroix, head of the Charlevoix Sports Boosters club, reported on the club's activity including nearly $30,000 they raised and donated for uniforms and other sports related needs in the past year. See Charlevoix Courier on Aug. 19 for the full story.

Board action: none required

Item: Secretary/treasurer nomination

In brief: The board discussed nominating a new secretary/treasurer as their former, Judith Ivan, recently resigned from the board. The discussion was tabled until new board member Larry Levensgood takes office next month.

Board action: Unanimously tabled

Item: Calendar approval

In brief: Set the school's 2009-2010 calendar dates. The first day of school will be Sept. 9 and the last day will be June 10, 2010.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Bus driver pay

In brief: Discussion to increase bus driver pay by 2 percent across the board.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Refuse removal

In brief: Discussion to approve Waste Management to continue removing trash from the school.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Volleyball coach

In brief: Discussion over whether to appoint Laura Nitchman as the seventh grade volleyball coach for Charlevoix Middle School.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Item: Food service software

In brief: Discussion to purchase new food service tracking software. The old software is unreliable and even skipped recording at least one day's transactions.

The software is needed to track the number of free and reduced lunches so the school may receive the maximum amount of federal funding through their free and reduced lunch program. The software will also allow parents to apply for free and reduced lunches online and track what their children are eating.

Board action: Unanimously approved

Thank You... On behalf of Charlevoix County Senior Citizens and the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, I would like to thank the following volunteers, individuals and businesses for their generous contributions of support, gifts of door prizes and volunteerism for our 30th Annual Picnic. This celebration of our seniors was held on July 8, 2009 at East Jordan Harvest Barn Word of Life Church. It was a tremendous community effort to put on such a special event and celebrate our Charlevoix County Senior Citizens. With sincere appreciation, Susan Bergmann, Executive Director.

Festival on the Bay

Your chance to dunk the Alpha Male

Be sure to stop down at Petoskey's 7th Annual Festival on the Bay on Aug. 15 to try your hand at dunking local celebrities in the Dunk Tank down at Bayfront Park.

At noon on Saturday, Aug. 15, Tim Nixon from Lite 96 will take a seat in the dunk tank, located in the Children's Area.

At 1:30 p.m. you can tell Mel Majors of the Vic McCarty show on WMKT to "shut up" by dunking her.

And, at 2 p.m., the big man himself Vic McCarty the Alpha Male will get his just desserts in the dunk tank.

The dunk tank will be in the Children's Area and all proceeds help support next year's Festival on the Bay.

Other activities in the Children's Area include KHQ Bounce House, Face Painting, Petoskey Stone Hunt, Craft table, Juice Ring Toss, Nerf Blaster, North Wings of SEE North - Birds of Prey, family Hikes along Bear River Trail and kite flying.

Petoskey Festival on the Bay is an event for the whole family, with free music, various foods, children's activities and competitive events.

For more information, contact the Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce at (231) 347-4150 or visit <http://www.petoskeyfestival.com>

The relay of your life

Welsh is a seven-year acute lymphoblastic leukemia cancer survivor.

"More people are surviving cancer than ever before and I am one of them," Welsh said. "Relay For Life is a place where you can go to share your story without saying a word."

A Luminary Ceremony will be held after sundown on Saturday. Each luminary bears the name of someone who has faced cancer.

The candlelit bags are placed around the track to help light the way during the relay.

Luminary are available from a Relay For Life participant and will also be offered at the event.

All donations received for the luminary are used to further the American Cancer Society's mission to combat cancer through research, education, advocacy and service.

"It's been a little bit of a tough year for fundraising," said Relay

For Life Public Relations and Media Chair, Lindsey Malpass-Skop. "But we figure if we can't raise money, we'll at least raise awareness."

For information about participating in the American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County, contact Lindsey Malpass-Skop at (231) 536-7959.

Donations may be made directly to the Charlevoix County event by visiting www.relayforlife.org and clicking on "Find Relay Events."

Elements considered top retailer

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Elements Gallery, located at 107 Bridge Street in Charlevoix, has been nominated for Niche magazine's 2009 Top Retailer Awards. The magazine has named Elements for consideration in two categories: Top Retailer and Best Visual Merchandising.

"That was really exciting," said owner Nancy Suzor. "Having visited so many retail stores all over the country, it's an honor to be nominated."

Niche magazine is a trade publication connecting art galleries and craft retailers with artist studios throughout the United States and Canada.

These artists, recognizing retailers whom they feel to be exemplary, cast the annual Niche Awards nominations.

Since opening the shop in 1999 with her daughter-in-law, Janine, Suzor has developed personal relationships with many of the more than 250 artists represented in Elements.

"I deal directly with the artists. I find them by attending shows in Arizona, Maryland, Vermont, New York," she said. "We usually go to the Buyer's Market of American Craft every year in Philadelphia."

Elements offers an eclectic mix of art, crafts and decorative items.

The owners' predilection for stone, metal and other organic materials in the items that they represent, inspired the name of the store.

Michigan-based artists and crafters work is prominent among Elements' offerings. Many of Kathleen C. Fritz's prints and paintings reflect scenes of northern Michigan.

A Petoskey artist who is renowned for more serious work, contributes a collection of bucket-headed tin men sculptures called Potheadz.

"We carry Wachler Life-Links," Suzor said. "The charms are named and represent different things like 'Live Outside the Box,' 'Serenity' or 'Family.' Two brothers started the business. One lives here in Charlevoix."

Niche magazine polled thousands of professional craft artists throughout the U.S. and Canada who nominated nearly 600 galleries, retail stores, art nonprofits, museum stores and guilds for the 2009 Top Retailer Awards.

Criteria for the nomination is based upon Niche magazine's Retailers' Guide to Best Practices, which details the characteristics of craft retailers who are committed to fair business practices and to growing and strengthening the North American craft community.

Sidewalk sales boasts big bargains

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Rain or shine, the sales must go on.

Nearly two dozen merchants offering items from adult and kid clothing to shoes, toys and books will assemble along Bridge Street and beyond for three days of sales.

"I would say maybe 90 percent of merchants (participate) downtown," said co-chair of the Charlevoix Area Retail Committee Jacqueline Dipert. "It's not meant to be a downtown-only event, but that seems to be how it turns out."

Dipert, who owns the Clothing Company at 339 Bridge St., said she will offer discounts as deep as 70 percent off.

"We cut everything to get it out and make room for our fall merchandise," she said. "It's our busiest week of the year."

Dipert added, "There will be deals up and down the street—it's definitely worth the trip into town."

However, said Barb Kluczynski, owner of Barb's Hallmark, the deals won't only be found on Bridge Street.

Barb's Hallmark is located in the Captain's Corners Plaza near Glen's Markets at the corner of US-31 and M-66 North. "I'm very optimistic," Kluczynski said. "I hope we get a lot of people. Things are 50 to 75 percent off and some things are discounted even more."

Kluczynski will have deals on items including figurines, gift wrap, party plates and napkins.

She added, "I hope the weather's good, but I'll do it if it's rain or shine."

Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Executive Director Keith Carey said the event is a definite boon to the local economy.

"I think it has a noticeable impact," he said. "Merchants have their own goals and, generally, they know what to expect."

The sales will be on from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday Aug. 13, Friday Aug. 14 and Saturday Aug. 15.

City likely to raise EMS, fire costs

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Townships served by Charlevoix City fire and emergency medical services (EMS) will likely see an increase in next year's fees.

Following an investigation into the apparent disparity among local municipalities who contract with City of Charlevoix for fire and emergency medical services, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel and Charlevoix City Fire Chief Paul Ivan devised a plan that involves a levy of .65 mils on Marion, Norwood and Eveline Townships.

"We've talked to all the townships that are involved ... and, on the EMS side we are looking at proportioning the fees charged to those townships based on the call volumes or frequency in which EMS services go out to that township," Straebel said. "I believe most townships agree that's an accurate and equitable manner in which to charge."

The .65 proposed millage would be used to help offset the cost of fire services.

Straebel said the proposed increases are not arbitrary figures.

"We could safely assume the City of Charlevoix is paying disproportionately more than the call volumes merit for both fire and EMS, so we looked at costs in neighboring cities and townships," he said.

The change in fees was initiated, Straebel said, by the need to cut waste in all departments.

While the millage causes the townships to pay more annually than in the past, Ivan said it would be much more costly to pay for each fire separately.

"The average house fire, let's say we're there for three hours with one fire pumper and two tankers: the pumper would cost, to rent, $900 and $175 for each tanker—that's $1,425 just in equipment. Then throw in the consideration of manpower," Ivan said. "You've got 12 to 15 people at an average rate of $15 an hour, so $675 for manpower—that's about $2,100 for one house fire."

"Any increase is a hardship, but ... what's the alternative?" said Norwood Township Supervisor Frank Hamilton. "Everyone is in the same boat give or take a few hundred dollars one way or another."

Hamilton said the matter was researched and continuing to contract with Charlevoix fire and EMS was the most equitable solution for Norwood residents.

"We looked into alternatives ... (like) possibly splitting the township and going north to Charlevoix and south to Banks Township, but we got into this rating game with the insurance companies ... with tons of little variables."

Built into the millage, Ivan said, is a $25,000 capital plan to replace fire and EMS equipment as needed.

"The tanker we just bought

No historic district for Charlevoix

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Dying for lack of a "second," the Charlevoix City Council killed a proposal to designate 17 Earl Young stone structures as a historic district in Charlevoix.

While a couple council members felt the measure could be a good thing, all were unanimous in saying the move would place undue burden on property owners.

"I just have a hard time forming a Nantucket, if you will. If you buy a house on Nantucket, you know what to expect: you must have your house one of seven colors, it must be made up of certain materials. That's just the way it is, but you know that in buying it," said Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "For the most part ... the homeowners are very passionate about the earl young property and I doubt very highly it would ever come down to that (demolition or exterior remodel)."

He added, "Especially when it comes down to the commercial side, that's where I have a problem with it. Especially in today's economy."

City councilman Greg Stevens (Ward 2) said it's wrong to pass an ordinance after people have already bought their house.

"You're asking us to come in through the backdoor and change somebody's home," he said. "It's wrong to say we're going to change the rules on you."

The district, if passed

Would it have passed, this Earl Young-built stone house would have been one of 17 structures in the Charlevoix Historic District. The measure, brought before city council on Monday, Aug. 17, failed for lack of support by councilmembers.

Board hires consultant for commission on aging as its director heads for Alaska

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — The county board of commissioners has hired a consultant to help streamline the county's commission on aging shortly after receiving word that the agency's director will be moving to Alaska.

Charlevoix County Commission on Aging Executive Director Sue Bergmann announced last week that she will be resigning from the position she has held for more than 10 years so she can take a job as a public health nurse in Keetchikan, Alaska.

Bergmann said she lived in Alaska for about 10 years before returning to Northern Michigan in 1991. She said she now has family in that area which is one of the motivations behind her career change.

Bergmann's announcement may be coming at a good time for the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

During their regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday, the board approved hiring a consultant at a cost of $10,000 per month to help the commission on aging streamline its organizational structure and operations.

Under the terms of the contract, David Emmel of Abbott & Emmel Consulting will be working with the commission to review and revise its organizational structure, policies and procedures. In light of Bergmann's announcement, he will now also function as the organization's interim director and help the county board of commissioners create a job posting description as it seeks to replace Bergmann.

Emmel told the board he could start work on Monday. He said he expects the process of his work, including hiring a new executive director will take between two and six months.

The consensus among the board Monday was that, given the fact that it could take some time to find a new director it is important to start the search as soon as possible. However, the board wanted Emmel to have some time to start his work at the commission on aging so he can be better informed when he makes recommendations for the director's position job posting.

The commission on aging oversees a host of services for senior citizens in the county, including senior centers in Charlevoix, East Jordan, Boyne City and Beaver Island. The agency is overseen by its own appointed board and the county commission. It is funded through several sources including the Charlevoix County senior millage.

Bergmann told the News-Review Wednesday that the commission on aging has grown dramatically in her 10-year tenure as its director. She said when she took over, the agency had a staff of eight people and a $200,000 budget. Today it has 36 people on staff and a budget of $1.8 million.

She said she's pleased that the county commission is taking steps to help streamline the agency, noting that its quick growth has created a fairly "flat" organizational structure. Bergmann said she's also pleased with the county commission's efforts to find a new office space for the commission on aging. She said the agency long ago outgrew its current office space in a house at 207 Antrim St. in Charlevoix.

She added she enjoyed her time working for the commission and will miss her friends and co-workers, but also said she is looking forward to new adventures in Alaska.

Bergmann's last day as director will be Aug. 21.

You gonna eat that?

Lucian is leaning halfway across the table, ogling my plate of cheese enchiladas, refried beans and rice. He's holding his fork like a plumb bob, describing circles over my entire

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwidi

Lucian drops back against the padded booth, sighs, and scans the room for our waiter. He spears the only bit of sustenance left on his own plate: a wilted sprig of parsley, and considers it with a burlesque sadness before shaking it off the tines of his fork.

He licks an index finger and blots up the crumbs from the bottom of the basket of chips.

I load my own fork with a chunk of enchilada and hoist it into my mouth.

"Mmmm," I say and roll my eyes toward heaven. "Mmmm-mmm-mm."

I'm punishing Lucian for making me hold up the entire conversation for the six minutes that it took him to finish his meal.

My recitation of anecdotes and observations passed without reciprocal comment while Lucian mowed through a burrito grande and two bowls of chips and salsa.

Hanging forward over his food while I stared at the top of his head, he queued up spicy bites on his fork and jiggled them impatiently while he rolled his jaw around the current mouthful.

"Have you ever," I asked him, "entered an eating contest? You know, like pie, hot dogs or hard-boiled eggs? I think you'd probably win."

"I'm hungry. I'm hungry all the time since I quit smoking," Lucian catches the waiter's eye and waves him over. "I'd like another one of these," he says.

"Another margarita?" our waiter asks, reaching for Lucian's nearly empty glass.

"Okay, but another one of these, too," Lucian drains his salt-rimmed cocktail before handing over the glass and points to his empty plate.

"Another burrito?"

"And more chips, please. And salsa."

The waiter shrugs "Okay," he says, and walks toward the bar.

"You quit smoking three years ago," I say.

Well, yeah, off and on. Mostly on."

I don't say anything, but I've known Lucian long enough to be able to call him on this. I've known him since my freshman year in college, and he's always eaten like it's his last day on earth. He approaches food with the same ruttin' brio that infuses everything else he does. His appetites are huge.

Years ago, when we lived in Marquette, Lucian's girlfriend made dinner for a small group of friends. She flattened discs of cornmeal dough to the size of a hockey puck and dropped them into a frying pan in three inches of tepid oil. While they absorbed the fat and eventually began to sizzle, she boiled split peas and mashed them into the consistency of peanut butter. After heating a can of organic refried beans in a saucepan, she assembled the plates: A greasy, leaden corn pucker under a layer of beans, topped with a dollop of split peas that I guessed represented guacamole. The waiter delivered the check, along with two wrapped mints — the glassy benevolence. The rest of us prodded our tower of carbs with trepidation while Lucian had seconds and then thirds. After that evening, no one saw him for a week, and we assumed that he was hibernating.

Squashing errant grains of rice with his fork, Lucian cleans the plate of his core entrée. The waiter delivers the check, along with two wrapped mints — the yummy kind, sandwiched in chocolate. We divvy up the damage and pile money on the tip tray.

Lucian peels his mint and pops it into his mouth, eyeballing the one that I'm holding between my thumb and forefinger.

"Yes, I am," I tell him, and drop it into my purse.

During a visit to Charlevoix in late August 2008, I attended a Sunday concert in your new Performance Pavilion and thought it would be wonderful location to bring Trombones Plus to perform.

Trombones Plus home base is central Ohio where we have performed hundreds of summer concerts during the past decade.

I contacted Keith Carey and Gary Stutzman regarding a possible performance. With their support and assistance not only did our August 2nd performance in the Charlevoix Concert Series become a reality, but we were able to put together a series of seven concerts in six days, from Aug. 2 through 7, in Charlevoix, Boyne City, Harbor Springs, Potoskey and East Jordan.

I found out that in addition to his enthusiastic support, Gary knows just about everyone who plays a musical instrument in your area, including who I needed to be contact for the various concert series.

Without your assistance Gary, "Trombones Plus 2009 Whirlwind Concert Tour of NW Lower Michigan" would not have become a reality.

We could have come to Charlevoix, performed our concert, enjoyed our visit and gone home ...but Gary's hospitality extended beyond the concert stage.

Flowers and Fauna, and the big picture

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

This past week I was looking for a few more flowers to add to my already vast collection.

The weather and slugs hadn't been kind and the garden was not looking as happy as it did earlier this summer.

When I visited various merchants to purchase plants left behind after the quick spring/summer flurry of planting, I actually felt bad seeing so many of them sitting in the hot afternoon sun or hiding in the shade of a tent. It was a similar feeling I experienced when visiting the Humane Society.

My pace quickened as I sensed a few marigolds may have actually whimpored when I passed them by.

My eyes darted from their soulful glaze. I felt I couldn't leave without looking for the plants that needed attention and found myself talking to them. "Don't worry I'll give you a home, you have outgrown the black plastic container that holds your remains, I'll take care of you."

I've been known to exaggerate a bit, but if in your adventures today, you are so moved, why not stop by a local shop and rescue a plant that needs your love.

Speaking of rescuing, on various occasions this summer the topic of adoption was brought up.

Surprisingly there are more adopted persons out there than I imagined.

During a typical day the conversation often turned to families and eventually the word adoption would come up.

I met fellow adoptives who shared their feelings on what their journey has taught them. Fortunately, my journey has been one of the good ones.

My brother and sister have both mentioned on separate occasions that they are happy to have me as part of the family, but then again maybe mom and dad told them to tell me this.

Even so, my life has been blessed with a wonderful family complete with the dynamics that each member takes on. We all follow specific tasks and I am the one who likes to fix things in an emotional sense and keep the family on an even keel—the peacemaker.

Maybe it's genetic or maybe I just finished the pyramid in Mazlow's hierarchy of needs without realizing it.

Anyone who has completed a degree in Counseling or Social Work will eventually come face to face with the work of Mazlow and his theories.

His pyramid design of what we all need reminds me of the pyramid for healthy living and eating. Mazlow's hierarchy starts at the top with the biological need for oxygen, food and water.

Makes perfect sense and is easy to understand. This is followed by the need for safety and feeling secure in your environment.

If you listen and watch the news you may not feel secure so once in awhile turn the tube off.

The need for love and a sense of belonging is the third item on his pyramid.

Feeling cared for is important both on the giving as well as receiving end.

Proof of this is the number of hospice patients that leave a facility for a time being because they have improved so much due to the wonderful care.

Next step is the need for self esteem. When we feel satisfied and self confident we are less apt to feel helpless and will offer more to our fellow man by being a valuable asset.

The pyramid ends with the need for self actualization.

This is best described as knowing what you are born to do.

Musicians make music, an artist paints, poets and writers express themselves on paper and flowers, well, they are born to be appreciated because of the beauty they provide.

I'll be returning soon to the nursery to rescue a few more plants that may otherwise be tossed.

I'll let these quiet friends know they still belong, they are appreciated and what's really good about being adopted and cared for. Mazlow would be so proud.

Trombones Plus salutes Charlevoix

Editor:

The members of Trombones Plus would like to extend our thanks, appreciation and congratulations to Mayor Norman Carlson Jr., the Citizens of Charlevoix and the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority.

We had the pleasure of performing a concert in your East Park Performance Pavilion on Sunday August 2nd and again on Aug. 4 when we joined the Charlevoix Community Band. Now the Charlevoix Band is absolutely fantastic! And the surrounding East Park and Manna provide the most idyllic setting for a concert we have ever had the privilege to perform.

In addition to thanking you for the opportunity to be part of your Charlevoix Concert Series, I want to bring to your attention three extraordinary individuals from your community we met and worked with prior to and during our performance visit to Charlevoix.

As leader of Trombones Plus, I have more than a decade of experience working with community representatives, none better, more gracious or more welcoming than Charlevoix' Gary Stutzman, Director of the Charlevoix Community Band and member of the Charlevoix Concert Series.

Auction a success

Editor:

On behalf of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild, I wish to thank everyone that helped to make our third annual silent auction a success.

Special thanks to the donors, purchasers, committees, and media.

We, in Charlevoix are very fortunate to have a beautiful hospital and a community that cares.

The money will help pay for the neo-natal apnea unit and blanket warmers.

Thank-you all for the support. Lorene Sakamoto, Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild silent auction chairperson.

Concerns over health insurance

Editor:

From our perspective, as people who have always paid and chosen their health plans, this bill is very frightening.

Loss of control of one's own decision making is not easy. Last year I paid $396 a month for insurance and prescription coverage with a $2,000 deductible.

I was OK with that. Also my prescription generics for three months was $20 and others were $80 for three months.

OK also. Now that I am on Medicare, I will pay $161.25 a month for my supplement coverage to cover what Medicare does not cover—I also have to have deducted from my Medicare check, $96 for the Medicare portion of the insurance.

I also have to pay $56.70 for my prescription coverage.

Once my total prescription costs—what I pay and what the drug costs—totals $2,500, I will have no prescription insurance until it gets to around $4,500.

Our prescription insurance was never interrupted prior to Medicare.

For those people who have always gotten what their employer provided—even if they had to pay for a portion—the Federal health care bill may sound like a

Summer reading club successful

Editor:

I would like to thank the children and families of the Charlevoix community for their support, talent and enthusiasm.

The Charlevoix Public Library just completed our six-week summer reading club titled "Be Creative @ your Library," which ended Aug. 4 with our first Youth Craft Show.

We had 30 booths and a constant flow of shoppers for the full two-hour time slot.

First, let me commend the participants for the creativity and time spent on each of their products, which were unique and well crafted.

Second, this was a large commitment on their part and I saw the pride and understanding of responsibility.

And third, I know there are quite a few proud children walking around today with a jingle in their pockets.

Thank-you, Charlevoix Audrey Shapiro

Sports Boosters tackle tasks for teams

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Charlevoix Sports Boosters are in transition.

With funding for student athletics cut from the general budget, sports boosters have picked up the slack and stepped into the role of primary sponsors for these programs.

"Boosters have always been there to support the kids," said sports boosters member Bret Erskine. "Sometimes I think they do too much."

Prior to the budget cuts, The Charlevoix Sports Boosters acted as secondary support for Charlevoix high school athletics.

But, with funding evaporating, the boosters have become the main source of revenue for middle school athletics as well as for high school sports.

"I think they should be involved more with the bigger stuff," said Erskine, who has coached girls' basketball for 12 years. "Like if you have to replace the bus, or the engine for the bus. (Boosters) spent over $30,000 last year. Members and volunteers built the concession stand. I think everybody in the community does a great job supporting the teams. The parents step up and do a great job. I know the kids thank them. I don't think you can have Charlevoix athletics without the sports boosters."

Recent needs addressed and

"In the early '80s, when (the sports boosters) started, there was a $1,500 yearly budget," said the group's president, Chris LaCroix. "That was used primarily for meals and rooms if the teams went to playoffs or state finals!"

financed by Charlevoix Sports Boosters include the purchase of uniforms for the cheerleaders and girls' basketball team and construction of the baseball concession stand.

A few of the nearly 30 other projects that they have recently provided, or assisted in providing, funds for include baseball and girls' soccer equipment, football, track, volleyball and baseball uniforms, providing a wrestling mat cage and sponsoring the Senior Sports Banquet.

"In the early '80s, when (the sports boosters) started, there was a $1,500 yearly budget," said the group's president, Chris LaCroix. "That was used primarily for meals and rooms if the teams went to playoffs or state finals."

Now, due to the budget cuts, the athletic department receives only the gate receipts from games. However, the sports boosters are playing a much larger role to maintain school athletic programs.

Fundraising events scheduled for the coming year include the boosters' second annual Rayder Rally held at Castle Farms on Nov. 7.

Tickets are $100 for two admissions and the event offers a buffet and a grand prize of $5,000.

A total of $10,000 in cash prizes will be given away during the evening. Tickets are available from any sports booster member.

A euchre tournament is planned for February, with the date to be announced.

Proceeds from the events will be used to support Charlevoix football, baseball, basketball, track, tennis, cross-country, softball, volleyball, golf, soccer, cheerleading, wrestling and ski teams.

"Even with all of the success we've had, we can still use all the help we can get," LaCroix said. "Either financial, or bodies showing up to help out."

To join the sports boosters or to make a donation, contact any member or call Chris LaCroix at (231) 675-7030.

Biking for the mountain

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Sтивен Бусе, 54-летний художник, ветеран и житель Traverse City, занимается на велосипеде.

Бусе делает solo bicycle trip across Northern Michigan this summer to promote awareness and support for Challenge Mountain's Adaptive Recreation Facility near Boyne Falls.

"I wanted to do this as a sort of thank-you back to Challenge Mountain," Бусе said. "I grew up skiing in Alpena; I raced since the seventh grade. I grew up skiing in the winter and sailing in the summer."

He added, "At Challenge Mountain, I started skiing again."

In 1975, while he was stationed in Korea, Бусе had four wisdom teeth pulled and the surgeon left a piece of gauze inside an incision. Staph and strep infections led to more serious problems, causing debilitating pain.

"The first time Steve skied out here, he made one run and he was exhausted," said Sue Moody, Executive Director of Challenge Mountain. "Now he's just so good. He used to be a world-class skier before he was in the service."

Leaving Traverse City on Aug. 21, Бусе will stop in Charlevoix before heading east on Aug. 23. The ride will take him across the tip-of-the-mitt, from Lake Michigan to Lake Huron and will include passage through the Jordan Valley and Pigeon River Valley State Forest.

Allowing for stops along the way, Бусе plans to complete the 150-mile ride within two weeks.

Aside from Бусе's affinity for sports, he is a prolific artist, recognized for his work in several mediums.

"I started out with marquetry boxes," he said. "I paint and draw and make mobiles and wall hangings—just about everything."

He added, "At Challenge Mountain, I started skiing again."

In 1975, while he was stationed in Korea, Бусе had four wisdom teeth pulled and the surgeon left a piece of gauze inside an incision. Staph and strep infections led to more serious problems, causing debilitating pain.

"The first time Steve skied out here, he made one run and he was exhausted," said Sue Moody, Executive Director of Challenge Mountain. "Now he's just so good. He used to be a world-class skier before he was in the service."

OBITUARIES

Amanda Perry Donalds: Nov. 18, 1925 - Feb. 8, 2009

Amanda Perry Donalds, 83, passed away peacefully in her home at Cypress Village, Jacksonville, Fla., on Feb. 8, 2009.

Amanda Donalds

She was born Nov. 18, 1925 in Columbus, Ohio to Dr. C.L. Perry and Bethana T. Perry. Amanda attended St. Catherine's School in Richmond, VA, as a boarder until 1943.

Her freshman and sophomore years were at Wheaton College, Norton, Mass. Amanda transferred to the University of Wisconsin her junior year. There she met John E. Donalds, her future husband.

In 1948, they lived in Boston where John attended Harvard Business School.

In 1950, John accepted a position in at Dow Chemical Company in Midland, MI where they lived, between transfers until 1985. At which time they moved to Concord, Mass. until 1994 where John and Amanda moved to Florida for the winters and spent their summers in Charlevoix.

Amanda was a homemaker, an avid reader, a championship golfer, a needle pointer and an inquiring cook.

She was a past member of the Junior League.

She is survived by her husband of 63 years, John E. Donalds II; daughter, Katherine (Kate) Stone; son, John (Jack) Donalds III and her sister, Linda Check.

She is preceded in death by her daughters, Linda Voll and Elizabeth Donalds.

A Memorial Service will be held at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 29 at the Christ Episcopal Church, 200 State St., Charlevoix, MI.

In lieu of flowers, memorials can be made to the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 West Clinton St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Sailing club serves local youth

BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

What began with the donation of a 31-foot sailboat to a local school has turned into a full-fledged sailing program.

Now with a fleet of three boats, Northwest Academy will be offering a sailing program to all sixth-through 12th-grade kids in the Charlevoix area.

"Depending on weather and interest, we'd like to offer the program three days a week," said Gary Stutzman, Northwest's music and marketing director. "Everyone is welcome regardless of ability."

The 31-foot sailboat which got it all started was given to the school by Charlevoix resident Dave Lawrence.

"Sure, sailing's fun, but that's not the real motivating factor (of the donation)," Lawrence said. "I put my kids in sailing programs when they were younger, and I wanted it to be fun, but it's what they learn: the life lessons, the teamwork, the camaraderie and just the skill and self-confidence that comes with it."

Stutzman said the program will benefit students because the things the kids learn will fall in line with the State of Michigan's new more stringent curriculum standards.

"Some math and science will be involved," he said. "And, they'll be learning hands-on what they're being asked to learn in the classroom."

Stutzman donates the use of his 33-foot Columbia and a friend's 32-foot Hunter sailboats to round out the fleet.

"We have experienced people to run the boats and we follow the guidelines of the Coast Guard safety regulations," he said.

Call 547-9000 or (231) 675-4800 for more information or to enroll in this free program.

Lawrence said he would like to see the program eventually include a chance for students to study the water quality of the local lakes.

"My youngest son went out on a research sailboat ... from Miami to Nova Scotia doing marine research," Lawrence said. "It was very good for him."

He added, "You learn about navigation. You learn about wind. You learn you can't sail a boat by yourself—you have to rely on other people to do their job."

Can You Invest for College and Retirement?

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

You most likely need to save and invest for retirement. But if you have children, you also may want to put money away for their college education. Are these two goals mutually exclusive?

They don't have to be — but achieving them both can be challenging. Over the past generation, the responsibility of paying for retirement has largely shifted from the employer to the employee. At the same time, college prices have skyrocketed and show few signs of slowing down.

Consequently, you face a delicate balance when it comes to preparing and saving for both college and retirement. Perhaps you may be facing large college bills in your prime retirement savings years. Or if your child graduates with college loans and you plan on helping to pay for them, your cash flow may fall short of the amount needed to meet your monthly bills during retirement.

But as you think about the college vs. retirement issue, keep one overriding fact in mind: You have less time to save for retirement than your children have to pay for college. If your children do take out some loans, they will likely have decades in which to repay them.

Ultimately, the amount of financial assistance you provide for your children's college education is a personal and emotional decision, as well as a financial one. Still, you can take steps to help out your children without shortchanging yourself.

One possible strategy is to contribute to your 401(k) and your IRA, and then use whatever money you still have available to fund a college savings plan. If your employer offers a match for your 401(k) or other retirement plan — such as a 403(b) or 457(b) — you should, at the very least, contribute enough to earn the match. And if at all possible, you'll want to "max out" your IRA, which offers significant tax benefits. Your contributions to a traditional IRA may be tax-deductible, and your earnings grow on a tax-deferred basis. Depending on your income level, you may be able to contribute to a Roth IRA, which provides tax-free earnings, provided you meet certain conditions. In 2009, you can contribute up to $5,000 to your IRA, or $6,000 if you're 50 or older.

Once you've earned your employer's 401(k) match and then, if possible, contributed the maximum amount to your IRA, you can begin looking more closely at college savings vehicles, such as a Section 529 plan or a Coverdell Education Savings Account, both of which offer tax-free earnings and withdrawals as long as the money is used for qualified education expenses. (Withdrawals for other types of expenses may be subject to federal and state taxes plus a 10 percent penalty.) Also, Section 529 plan contributions may be tax-deductible in certain states for residents who participate in their own state's plan. To make sure you understand the tax ramifications of a Section 529 plan, you'll want to consult with your tax advisor.

By committing yourself to regular investing, and by taking advantage of the various investment accounts available, you can make progress toward your retirement goals while still tackling the high costs of higher education. That's a "win-win" situation.

New city cop

He's come all the way from Texas to brave the great white north.

Wesley Roberts, recently hired by the Charlevoix City Police Department as a full-time officer, began working at the end of July.

"I like Michigan and I like this area," Roberts said. "I'm looking forward to long years (here) just like I had in Texas."

Roberts is a former military policeman for the Navy.

"Wesley comes to us ... with about 10 years of experience as both a deputy sheriff and as a fire Marshal, so he brings a great deal of training and expertise in those areas," said Deputy-Chief of Charlevoix City Police Scott Hankins. "We are fortunate to have a good candidate for this full-time position."

Roberts grew up in Talco, Texas, in the northeast portion of the state before joining the Navy straight from high school.

"I got out and had a family and police work was kind of a continuation of my military, so I decided to pursue something I enjoyed doing," he said.

Roberts attended the North-East Texas Regional Police Academy in Arlington, Texas.

He came to Michigan earlier this June after certifying as a Michigan policeman through the Roscommon University and the Michigan Commission on Law Enforcement Standards.

"I passed the test and I was able to apply for the job in Charlevoix," Roberts said. "My wife's family is from Boyne City. Her mom and dad were getting up in years and needing a little bit of help, so we moved up here to help them out."

Roberts said he enjoys police work because, "It's always a challenge. There is always something new—nothing's ever the same."

The 39-year-old said he is looking forward to his first winter with snow.

Roberts' hiring fills the vacancy left when officer Erin Evans resigned.

The Charlevoix City Police Department has seven full-time officers and three seasonal officers.

Evans joined the city police department on Oct. 30, 2008.

No historic district for Charlevoix

HISTORIC

would have placed restrictions upon what property owners could do with the exterior of their structure. It would also have prevented—barring proof of financial hardship—the demolition of the structures.

"If you pass this, it's just another erosion of property owner rights," said city councilman Dennis Kusina (Ward 1).

If the district would have passed, the business owners would have had to go through the local historic district committee to alter or demolish their property.

If the committee were to turn the property owner down, then the property owner would have to appeal before a board in Lansing.

"The committee was asked to study the possibility of making a theme district out of the Earl Young Structures," said Charlevoix Historic District Commission chair Mary Adams. "The state feels as if the district would be a desirable district for preserving history of the structures that are so very unique to Charlevoix and to Michigan."

She added, "We have property owners who are pretty adamantly for the district; we have property owners who are pretty adamantly against having their properties in the district."

Dan Barron, legal representation for The Lodge and the Weatherlane and Terrace Inn and Suites said his clients opposed the creation of a historic district.

"We feel this proposed ordinance is terribly ill-suited for commercial properties," Barron said. "We have commercial properties that are proposed to be singled out and have the rules changed on them in the middle of the game ... and in the middle of a recession."

He added, "They bought this as a business investment. They've worked hard ... and this proposed package will create a whole new level of government regulation."

Historic District Commission member Bob Heath said the buildings have to be protected from destruction.

"I want you to think, for a moment, what this town would look like in a hundred years," he told council. "We have a resource here in these buildings ... that are at risk. We have lost some and we will lose more in the future if you do not act tonight."

Property owners, even ones who opposed the measure, would not have had the right or ability to exempt themselves from the ordinance.

The stonework houses and three businesses were built by Young, a nationally-known architect who began building his unique structures and mushroom houses in the early 20th century.

Of the 17 property owners involved, six homeowners were in favor of the proposal; four property owners were against it and two had no opinion.

Several of the properties are foreclosures and the new owners could not be reached for comment.

County seeks energy savings

Board hires firm to find ways to cut energy usage in county buildings

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has hired a consultant to help it develop an energy savings plan for its two most-used buildings.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday, the board voted 4-2 to hire Energy Systems Group to develop the plan for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office building and the Charlevoix County building.

After a preliminary tour of the building, company representative Lonnie Bullion told the board he believes he can save the county about $36,000 per year in energy costs — $15,000 at the county building and $21,000 at the sheriff's office.

But those savings will come with costs of their own.

First there's the company's fee: $15,000 for an estimated two to three month's work to develop the plan. Then there's the cost of any programs or projects the consultants might recommend.

Before Wednesday's vote, much of the commissioner's discussion centered around at what point, under the contract, would the county be "on the hook" for the company's $15,000 fee.

Bullion explained he would not expect to be paid if he does not deliver a viable energy savings plan as promised. He said he would expect to be paid in the event that he brought a viable plan to the board, and it then decided — because of budget constraints or other reason — to delay or not implement the plan at all.

At Wednesday's meeting county undersheriff Chuck Vondra spoke up saying the sheriff's department has already implemented many energy savings program since the first of the year.

Vondra wanted the board to be aware that Bullion's figures for the sheriff's office were based on previous years' usage figures. He also thought the board should press Bullion for some kind of estimate on what implementation costs might be before entering into the contract.

Vondra told the News-Review that since the change in sheriff's administration on Jan. 1, he has been working very diligently on cutting costs — including utilities — at the sheriff's office.

He said so far this year the sheriff's office has saved 20 percent on its utility bills.

Vondra said he's been on a mission to eliminate wasteful usage wherever possible. Some of it has come from re-evaluating thermostat settings, replacing inefficient lighting, monitoring water usage, weather sealing, insulation and in one case, installing switches for lights inside five utility closets that had previously been on 24-hours a day.

Vondra said he anticipates the sheriff's office will save $20,000 to $30,000 this year on utilities alone.

Vondra said he commends the county board for its efforts to cut energy costs, and agrees more can be done. He said his main concerns were that the board be aware of the efforts that have already been made and the absence of an implementation estimate before entering into the contract.

Commissioners Chris Christensen and Joel Evans cast the two dissenting votes on hiring the firm after voicing similar concerns. Commissioners voting in favor of the contract included Shirley Roloff, Robert Drebenstedt, Shirlene Trapp and Ron Reinhardt.

Camp Charlevoix alumni reunite

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Camp Charlevoix, one of the country's premier boy's camps from 1927 until the final year of operation in 1971, is holding a reunion from Aug. 21 to 23 in Charlevoix.

Nearly 40 former campers and counselors from 16 states will gather together with friends and others to celebrate and share memories of those halcyon summers.

"I have never forgotten my experiences as a camper in the great outdoors of northern Michigan," said reunion organizer Gary Murfin of Seattle. "Camp Charlevoix was a magical time, the best growing-up experience ever."

The camp's founder, Lewis C. Reimann, opened the camp in 1927 on Lake Charlevoix, near Ironton.

This was a temporary location. And, in 1930, the camp was moved to a 170-acre site with three-quarters of a mile of lake frontage on Oyster Pointe.

With 17 camper's cabins, a large clubhouse/recreation center, stables, dining room, kitchen, infirmary and handicraft shop, Camp Charlevoix operated at this location for 41 years.

Known as "a character camp for boys," the camp's motto was "I Would Be True. For There Are Those Who Trust Me."

Reimann, known to campers and staff as, "Chief," believed that the objective of the camp should be to prepare those who attended to meet the problems and experiences of later life with confidence and to inspire integrity in their future relationships in business and with friends and family.

Ken Smith of Grosse Pointe Woods was a counselor at Camp Charlevoix in 1934 and later served as Director of Activities, Associate Director and Program Director.

In 1948, he and his wife, Ruby, took over ownership

Charlevoix baseball finish second

North Coast Imagewear 12U travel team finished second in the Frankenmuth Baseball Invitational this past weekend.

North Coast won their pool by defeating the Michigan Young Guns of Lapeer, 5-4, and the Essexville Hammers, 4-3.

They lost 9-4 in the tournament finals to the ANCA

Nationals of Commerce.

Against Young Guns, North Coast took a 3-0 lead keyed by a Will Telgenhof triple. Ethan Campbell squeeze bunt and Nate Moon single.

The Young Guns rallied to take a 4-3 lead headed in the 5th and final inning.

After two North Coast batters were retired to start the bottom of the 5th, Young Gun pitchers walked four straight batters with Adam Michaud drawing a bases loaded walk to tie the game.

Minutes later, Devin Largent scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

Shane Sutherland threw three shutout innings, giving up only one hit and striking out five.

Against Essexville, North

Coast scored all four of their runs in the first inning on a Campbell walk, Moon single, walks to Kenny Gray and Austin Putman and a Telgenhof RBI fielders choice.

Kenny Gray was the winning pitcher, giving up two runs on only one hit and striking out six in three innings of work.

Sutherland pitched up the save striking out three in two shutout innings.

Against ANCA, North Coast took a 4-1 lead in the bottom of the third on five walks and a two-run double by Largent.

Largent's hit was the only North Coast hit in the game.

Sutherland again was great on the mound, leaving with the 4-1 lead, having given up only one run and one hit and striking out four in three innings pitched.

North coast couldn't hold on, though, as they scored five in the 4th and three in the 5th to take control.

This was North Coast's final tournament of the year. They finished with a record of 3-8 in their inaugural season.

Lake Charlevoix Regatta results

The 4th Annual Charlevoix Yacht Club Lake Charlevoix Sunfish Regatta took place on Aug. 2 with nine boats registered to race in sunny and breezy conditions.

At least five others would have sailed but the previous day's Douglas Lake Regatta left several of the racers exhausted or with broken equipment.

The first race had gusts well over 20 knots and that was enough to claim three victims, leaving six boats to finish.

Derrick Fries of Clarkston had the win and was followed at regular intervals by Dan Norton, Tom Barnes, Dave Travis, Tom Kattenheinrich and Austin Thom.

Thom put up a good fight but didn't have the weight to start the second race.

Despite moving the racecourse in closer to shore the second and third races resulted in at least one capsize and several knock-downs.

Fries won all three races. Norton and Barnes were consistently second and third, respectively.

Travis and Kattenheinrich had the best battle of the day which Travis won with two fourths and a fifth.

For the first time, the Lake Charlevoix Regatta and Douglas Lake Regatta were combined for overall with Fries taking first place honors by winning both events.

Movement to another Zone within Michigan

Cattle two months of age and older must comply with one of the following prior to movement:

- Originate directly from a bovine tuberculosis accredited free herd, or
- Originate from a herd that has received a negative whole herd bovine tuberculosis test within 12 months prior to movement, and receive a negative bovine tuberculosis test within 60 days prior to movement.

Steers or spayed heifers are required to only have a negative bovine tuberculosis test within 60 days prior to movement.

Cattle less than two months of age may be moved if they originate from a herd that has completed a whole herd test within 12 months prior to movement.

Cattle may be moved to a United States Department of Agriculture Food Safety Inspection Service approved slaughter plant, or through one Michigan licensed livestock auction market to a United States Department of Agriculture Food Safety Inspection Service approved slaughter plant, without meeting tuberculosis movement testing requirements.

Movement Certificate Requirements

A person transporting cattle is responsible for having the movement certificate(s) accompany the load of cattle and shall produce the movement certificate(s) upon request of a law enforcement officer or the director.

An official movement certificate is required to be obtained prior to movement of any cattle from any premises unless specifically exempted by the director. Cattle moved to a USDA approved livestock market may receive an official movement certificate upon arrival if they are delivered within designated arrival times, as designated by the director. All cattle with a destination of a Michigan licensed livestock auction market must receive a new official movement certificate that identifies the final destination of movement.

Modified Accredited Advanced Zone (Surveillance Zone) - This zone includes the remainder of the Lower Peninsula of Michigan.

Subzone 1 - This subzone includes the entirety of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, and Oshtemo counties.

Cattle Identification

Initial identification of cattle, including cattle identified for TB testing or issuance of movement certificates, must utilize an RFID electronic identification ear-tag. Official identification tags are premises specific and may not be transferred to another premises or used on cattle not included in the herd on the premises to which the tags were issued. All cattle must be identified with official RFID electronic identification ear-tags prior to movement from a premises within the Modified Accredited Advanced zone, unless being moved directly to a Michigan licensed livestock auction market, within the Modified Accredited Advanced zone, provided that the cattle are identified with an RFID electronic identification ear tag upon their arrival at the Michigan licensed livestock auction market, or unless specifically exempted by the director.

Surveillance Testing Requirements

All cattle herds which sell or move to another premises one or more cattle on a movement certificate for the reason of BREEDING must complete an annual whole herd bovine tuberculosis test of all cattle 12 months of age and older, and all goats, bison, or privately owned cervids six months of age or older in contact with the herd, unless specifically exempted by the director. Retesting of herds must be done within 9-15 months of the anniversary date of the initial whole herd test.

Any cattle herds which do not sell or move to another premises animals other than directly to a federally inspected slaughter plant or through a Michigan licensed livestock auction market directly to a federally inspected slaughter plant must have been tested on a 3 year interval as determined by the director.

All other cattle herds which move cattle that enter another livestock premises must complete a whole herd bovine tuberculosis test of all cattle 12 months of age and older, and all goats, bison, or privately owned cervids six months of age or older in contact with the herd every other year, unless specifically exempted by the director. Retesting of herds must be done within 21-27 months of the anniversary date of the initial whole herd test. The director will determine the date at which each herd must complete the first whole herd bovine tuberculosis test following the effective date of this order.

Any cattle herds which meet the requirements to be designated as freer beef herds are exempt from tuberculosis testing.

was a little over $176,000," he said. "When you look at the number we're proposing for our capital plan it really isn't much." As townships will not set their next budgets until next summer, the city has no plans to levy the millage—pending townships' approval—until as late as next summer.

"If a township says 'no' we have a couple options," Ivan said. "We will respond fight the fires and save the lives. And then, when it's all done, we will show up and present a bill of what it cost."

He added, "All we are looking to do is level the playing field as city council has directed us to do."

Since so many calls generated from Charlevoix Township due to Boulder Park Terrace nursing home and Charlevoix Area Hospital, those calls were left out of the cost averaging the city completed.

"That way Charlevoix Township is not stuck footing the bill for all calls from the hospital," Ivan said. "Those (hospital and boulder park) are assets to the area and the costs of those should be shared."

The City of Charlevoix had the highest call volume with an average of 94.5 fire/rescue runs with a contribution of $283,594 each year.

If the .65 millage is levied, Charlevoix taxpayers could realize a combined savings of approximately $48,222 annually.

Classified pays off!

When children give evidence of having difficulty speaking, it may be an early indication that they have a hearing problem. It is important to pay heed to these problems early on so that they may be properly diagnosed and treated as soon as possible. For instance, a child may have difficulty pronouncing certain sounds or combinations of sounds. With this in mind, parents should be on the lookout for a child who can speak complete words or sentences but consistently leaves out letters or sounds from words. For instance, a child may substitute a sound or letter for one that is more difficult to say, such as substituting a "w" sound for an "r."

P.S. By age 6 to 7 months, a child should be trying to make consonant sounds, especially "b," "d," "m" and "n."

Camp Charlevoix

CAMP

and management of the camp, until it closed in 1971.

Smith's son and daughter are expected to attend the reunion, as are "Chief" Reimann's grandson and his family.

Dan and Alice Ross, of East Jordan and Cincinnati, both have a history with Camp Charlevoix.

Dan was a camper from 1950 through 1954, and later, he came back as a counselor and taught riflery.

Alice worked in the camp's office and tutored campers. Ross recalls his time at Camp Charlevoix as "among the best 12 years of my life." "When I came up here for the first time, I just loved this area," Ross said. "I learned how to shoot, camp, swim, sail and ride horses. Working (at the camp) was like a paid vacation. Those years were a very formative part of my life. We couldn't send our kids here because the camp had closed. That's why we bought a place up here."

Reunion attendees will gather from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 21 at The Charlevoix Historical Society's train depot, followed by a cookout from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m.

A walking tour of the old campsite at Oyster Pointe is scheduled for 10 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 22, and will include a visit to one of the last cabins left standing.

Following, there will be a formal welcome at the train depot.

A special program and dinner are planned at 7 p.m., on the grounds of the Belvedere Club, at the casino.

Anyone with a connection to Camp Charlevoix is encouraged to attend the reunion.

Information is available at www.campcharlevoix.com, or by contacting Dan Ross at 547-2007.

Joy carries on '100' tradition, with a twist

Carrying on the tradition, but with a little twist.

For years, Belvedere Golf Club professional Steve Braun, displayed his talent and perseverance in his annual 100 Holes in a Day fund-raiser for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association.

Braun retired from the club last year after his final '100', and has passed the torch to Marty Joy, who is now the head professional at the Belvedere after working under Braun for years as an assistant.

Joy has targeted Monday, Aug. 24, for his first '100', but with an added twist: He will play with hickory clubs and golf attire from the 1920s and '30s.

Joy, a member of the Society of Hickory Golfers, regularly plays in the events that utilize equipment and apparel from the days of Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazan. While utilizing period equipment and garb is nothing new to Joy — he is one of the top players on the Hickory Circuit — playing 100 holes under these conditions is unusual.

"I'm sure I can do it," Joy said, "although the most holes I've played in a day as a Hickory golfer is 54 holes. I have the motivation of helping area golfers learn about golf when enrolled in our outstanding program."

"When you compare our current clubs and all the technology to the clubs Marty will be using, you wonder how he could agree to play 100 holes with them," said Dean Davenport, executive director of the junior golf association. "He has worked as a volunteer teaching pro in our program since its beginning and is highly motivated to continue Steve's fund-raising tradition."

Braun's and now Joy's '100' fund-raising effort directly benefit the much-acclaimed junior program. Each year, up to eight members for the junior program are selected to attend a week-long golf camp at Ferris State University. In addition, each year, two former members of the junior program who are headed to college are selected to receive book scholarships from the association.

The public is encouraged to participate in Joy's 100 Holes in a Day. Spectators can view the event as early as 6:30 a.m. He is expected to complete 18 holes at approximately 2 1/2-hour intervals. He should finish his final holes at about 6:30 p.m.

Those wishing to make a pledge or contribute to the junior golf program may do so by calling Joy at the Belvedere Golf Club, 547-2611; or Davenport, 547-6433.

• The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society will host "10,000 Years of Northern Michigan Cultures" at 7 p.m. Monday Aug. 24, at the historic Greensky Indian Mission United Methodist Church's Susan Hall, located at 08484 Greensky Hill Road.

Guest speaker Petoskey native Frank Stead, whose family arrived in Northern Michigan in the 1840s, will talk about the people who lived here before the Europeans.

Many cultures have called northern Michigan home. Native Americans settled this area nearly 10,000 years ago.

Even before the Anishnabe called this land theirs, others traveled through and lived here.

Their long-forgotten history is found in the stories and in the land they shaped to their needs.

Their handiwork is part of the modern world and Charlevoix County.

Frank will share with us the history behind many of the artifacts he has collected that were used for utilitarian purposes throughout the lifetime of those who inhabited Northern Michigan thousands of years ago.

Frank spent 20 years in public education teaching classes in 19th-century geography and geology and has a master's degree from Central Michigan University.

This program is free and open to the public.

• The Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host its annual "Porker" golf tournament, with the shotgun start at 4 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m., is Thursday, Sept. 10 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

The Rotary outing prides itself as being "The Affordable Golf Tournament," and in recognition of the difficult economic times has kept the entry fee at $40 per person.

"In addition to a fun round of golf and a great meal, every participant in the tournament goes home with a prize that is donated by our generous local merchants," said tournament director Tim Petrosky.

The event is a four-person scramble.

The entry fee includes golf, a dinner buffet at Giuseppe's, and the traditional tournament trademark: prizes galore.

Prizes will be awarded based on skill, luck, random draw, and to teams that finish first, last and right in the middle.

Registration forms are only available at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course pro shop.

The event is limited to the first 20 teams that register.

An optional skins game and "mulligans" will also be available to teams.

For more information contact Tim Petrosky at 547-0183.

Living history rebuilt in CharlevoixBENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

From the road it may look like an abandoned farm, but 140 acres off Ferry Road in Charlevoix is now home to living history.

Tillers International, a group dedicated to farming using animal power, blacksmithing and other traditional skills is now working to restore the Inwood Farm to a real working farm and visitor center.

"Much of the land is going to be returned to its natural state with some of it to be used for turn of the century (20th) buildings," said Tillers International member Mark Maier. "We're going to rebuild the slaughterhouse—it's going to be used to house oxen."

Maier, a former carpenter of 20 years in the Grand Rapids area, became interested in the Tillers' historical living farm concept nearly 15 years ago.

"I started going down to help with raising days and took their timber framing class," he said. "Their goal is to preserve our rural technologies and skills and share that with the rest of the world."

Tillers use hand tool techniques and giant wooden beams to create old-fashioned timber frames for barns and similar farm structures. Then, they call volunteers in to help erect the structures using simple machines and technology from days gone by on their raising days.

"They teach blacksmithing, coopering, which is making buckets and barrels; cheese making; fiber work, broom making and all kinds of hand wood working," Maier said. "I like the hand woodworking aspect of timber framing and the back to basics nature of the skills that are involved."

"I guess I'm a bit counterculture-ish," he added.

The plan for Inwood Farm of Charlevoix is to grow vegetables and fruit, raise animals for meat, milk and cheese, chickens for eggs and run the farm off simple machinery powered by man and animals.

Eventually, Maier said, the farm will host classes similar to the ones taught at the Tillers International headquarters in Scotts which is nearly 70 miles southeast of Lansing.

"I live there by myself working as an employee of Tillers," Maier said. "I'm the caretaker of this property, but eventually it's going to be used as an educational institution for a lot of the skills they teach (in Scotts) and getting school kids field trips out here, too."

Maier spent the last winter and spring making the cottage on the property livable and said people are welcome to come by and have a tour of the place.

In addition to teaching classes in Michigan, Tillers International members also take their skills to third-world countries.

"In Uganda, where they've had civil war for 20 years, a whole generation of people who knew how to farm with oxen power is gone," Maier said. "Tillers go over and teach the new Helen Dillon, an Ironton Ferry operator of more than 20 years, sounds the vessel's horn for six seconds as she departs from the east side of Ferry Road south of Charlevoix. The decision to blow the horn, which can sound more than 100 times on a busy day, was made in order to abide by United States Coast Guard rules and regulations.

Disturbing the peace: Ferry horn has residents seethingBENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Aside from a diesel engine chug and murmur of boats at wake-zone speed, the Ironton Ferry area used to be relatively quiet—not any more.

Thanks to the United States Coast Guard's Inland Lakes Navigational Rule #34, the air is now filled with six-second blasts of a 120-decibel air horn up to 160 times each day.

"It's just awful," said Ironton resident Paul Witting. "We live about 500 feet south of the ferry on the east side of the narrows (of Lake Charlevoix) and we hear it every time."

Witting, a long-time resident of the area, said the horn has been blowing routinely for nearly a week now.

The horn must be sounded, according to coast guard rules and regulations #34, to alert approaching or passing boats that the ferry is about to depart.

"We got complaints that the horn wasn't being blown regularly so we looked into it and it's the law," said Chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Chris Christensen. "We're just trying to adhere to the coast guard's rules."

The horn blast is nearly 120

decibels and, according to Ironton Ferry deck hand Leslie Herriman, it could be blown up to 19 minutes a day collectively.

Prolonged exposure to noises 85 decibels and above can cause hearing damage. A lawnmower scores nearly 90 decibels; and a jet on take-off scores nearly 140 decibels.

Charlevoix Area Hospital welcomes new surgeon

COURTESY PHOTO

A busy medical group in Charlevoix has gained a new physician. Brian M. Dishinger, MD, recently joined Craig Wendt, MD, and Marc Lame, MD, in their general surgery practice. Dr. Dishinger, a graduate of Michigan State University College of Human Medicine, comes to Charlevoix from Ann Arbor, where he completed his surgical residency at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital. There, in a large medical center, he participated in a wide variety of cases—from highly complex surgeries to routine structural repairs. But it was the small, personal character of Charlevoix's community hospital that drew him here. "There's more opportunity for direct, specialized care," he explains. "Patients and physicians have time to develop a good relationship." Dishinger and his wife Katie have four daughters and are making their home in Charlevoix. "I always wanted to be in an area with an excellent quality of life and a great family atmosphere," he says. "It's important to me that I be a good doctor and a good parent. Here, I believe I can achieve that balance." Dr. Dishinger's office is at 14700 Park Avenue in Charlevoix. The phone number is 547-2812.

Witting said the ferry wakes him and his wife each morning at 6:30.

"It sounds about 10 times an hour in the morning," he said. "It's just so annoying—it's sort of an invasion of privacy."

Witting added, "You get agitated every time you hear it."

Since the board of commissioners oversees the ferry and its transportation authority, Christensen said the matter has been turned over to the board's civil counsel John Jarema.

"Vance Wood (Ironon Ferry manager) tried to get a variance from the coast guard... I'm trying to figure out where that is," Jarema said. "Until we get something in writing saying we don't have to comply or they're not going to make us comply or we get a variance, my advice to them is they have to follow the law."

Due to the number of complaints to the county on this issue, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider is asking people with concerns to write letters and send them to his office.

"From a safety standpoint I truly believe the ferry can be operated without the routine application of the horn and to use the horn only in emergencies or other situations that may require,"

Schneider wrote in a letter to Eveline Township residents.

"However, the ferry operators have to follow the law as it presently stands."

Officials at the Ninth District Coast Guard headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio did not return calls by press time.

While none of the officials could say why rule 34 has not been followed for the last several decades, they were sympathetic to property owners within earshot of the air horn.

Letters of concern should be sent to 1000 Grant St., Charlevoix, MI 49720, care of Sheriff Don Schneider, Ironon Ferry.

No good deed...

She wanted a Jacuzzi—bad; like a 10-year-old wants a BB gun.

Don't get me wrong. She not only deserves, but needs the Jacuzzi as 10 years of lifting the elderly as nurses' aide have left her lower back in a nearly constant state of excruciating throb.

Being a good sport, I agreed to shop around.

She fell in love with the six-seater model. It had a green marble pattern, dozens of jets, super heater, lights, music and more.

"A mere $5,000," the salesman said.

Once I recovered from my mini stroke I reminded the wife that, while we are like the Clametts in so many ways, we do not possess their fundage.

Hopes dashed, the idea quickly disappeared from our lives. Then, one day on my way home from work I spotted a sheet of plywood with the words "Hot Tub, $2000" spray painted at the end of a driveway.

The tub was missing a few parts which may or may not still be in production and it wasn't marble green, but Hot Tub Guy knocked a hundred bucks off the tag and trailed it to Gohs' Manner—the wife was thrilled.

Five movers and a hermitated disc later the tub was in the backyard. This wasn't one of your frail fiberglass jobbies, neither The shell on this baby was made out of solid pine 2x6s wrapped in steel re-rod. I imagine they could have bathed Teddy Roosevelt in it: it was old enough and big enough.

It needed a paint job, power cord and some new PVC pipe, but all in all it had potential.

And then, as it so often does, fate caught a whiff of Gohs' happiness and began to sneeze uncontrollably. Apparently, you must park a Buick on a hot tub cover to prevent it from flying away during a thunderstorm—I did not know this.

The wife and daughter spent last Sunday bailing gallons of rainwater from the tub.

I, foolishly attempting to work on said Buick in my garage sanctuary, was beckoned to the tub by said wife and daughter—they got into the tub all right, but now their feet were wet and the step slippery and apparently I make a dandy railing.

And while you're back here, why don't you and your brother Jacob move the 400-pound tub closer to the house—it was only 90 degrees in the shade.

From her swing, Pharaoh graciously guided us, verbally, along the 20-foot move.

I ignored the twinge in my lower back as we rolled the monstrosity into place.

"Perfect."

Hunched, I waddled to the picnic table to nurse on lemonade.

I think I was seated nearly a minute before the bee landed on my shoulder.

I have a tendency to exaggerate for effect, but I have been known to jump from a slow-moving car to escape a honey bee in the backseat.

So, when the 13x11-sized bumble bee with what looked like an ice pick on his butt crawled up my neck, I became a little unhinged.

Still hunched, and looking slightly like a frog on steroids, I sprang from the picnic table, flailing my arms and skipping in herky-jerky half-circles.

I battered my neck repeatedly but the buzzing death machine held tight. I charged the wife, still on her swing, my high-pitched screams drowned out only by my nonsensical swears—oh the swears.

"Is it gone? Is there anything on my back?" I screamed at the wife, who just sat there on the swing, eyes closed, head down.

"Look at me! God's sake, why won't you look at me?" She was laughing. Laughing so hard, in fact, that she couldn't breathe or move or look at me.

"It's still there," Jacob shrieked as he swatted it from my back just as it stung me.

The bee, possessed by Satan or possibly Ozzy Osbourne, flew around Jacob's hand and into his mouth—for god's sake, his mouth!

Unconvinced the bee was gone, I continued jumping and screaming and shaking the wife.

Suddenly Jacob ran by, spitting. He did a lap around the house before throwing himself down and rolling on the ground.

"I thought bumble bees could only sting you 'wunth," Jacob said through an engorged tongue.

"Stop it!" the wife yelled through snorts and cackles—apparently our suffering was dangerously hilarious.

The hot tub will remain disassembled until further notice.

Anyone with a 3X beehkeeper's suit can contact me at 492-9340.

Visitors

When we first moved permanently to Charlevoix about 15 years ago, a neighbor informed me that there are only two seasons in Charlevoix.

One, he said, was winter and the other was visitors. With visitor season winding down, it would appear that we have only winter to look forward to.

It's time to examine the visitor season, clean the carpets, buy new sheets and mail back all the odds and ends left in some out of the way corner of the house.

We have a small house, and can really only accommodate about four extras at one time.

When the crowd gets too large, as with some family gatherings, Sharon and I are likely to leave the house to them, and check into a motel for the duration.

This was for us, a prime visitor season. Not too many,

and very little overlap.

Please understand, we love to have the opportunity to show Charlevoix and its wonders to anyone who happens by.

But we enjoy even more those who have been coming here for years and already know the place pretty well.

Our favorite visitors come from Iowa, and some have spent time with us annually for almost 20 years; sometimes camping in the back yard in earlier years and of late more comfortable indoors with us.

Much like watching a two year old screaming with pleasure in the Park Play Fountain, it is renewing to see someone still eager to buy fudge or stroll along the marina walk.

It is easy to forget, living in this place, that in much of the world, if you want fudge, you have to make it yourself.

And not every small town has a beautiful central park, three or four fine beaches, and sunsets over Lake Michigan.

Our guests are renewed as well and sometimes remind us that they live on the stored images of Charlevoix in whatever dreary part of the world they usually occupy.

Well, dreary compared to Charlevoix in the summer.

Children and grandchildren are a different sort of visitor.

I'm pretty sure that among our children, at least a few of the visits are beginning to fall into the category of checking up on us, making sure that we do not yet get lost on our way to the grocery store.

We are pleased that they care enough to do that and wish that they lived somewhere closer to us.

While I recognize that having parts of families scattered around the country or the world is interesting in its own way, a significant part of me longs for the times when parents, grandparents, children and grand children seldom moved far from their original home.

Being in a place like Charlevoix that people want to visit whenever they can, family or not, is as close to that old-time ideal as we are likely to come.

So, here's to Visitor season.

We raise a glass to both their arrival and their departure and look forward to their next departure.

We raise a glass to both their arrival and their departure and look forward to their next departure.

How to talk to your teen

My mother's pragmatic advice horrified me. I know that she meant well. She was undoubtedly attempting to guide me in a direction that would secure my future and hedge against the possibility that I would wind up at her door in a babushka, clutching my raggedy children and pleading for sanctuary.

"It's just as easy to fall in love with a rich man," she said, "as a poor man."

At 16, my reaction was predictable: I looked at her like her hair was on fire, curled my upper lip above the gum line and said, "Eewew."

I saw myself at a fork in the road with one arrow pointing toward Mrs. Thurston "Lovey" Howell and the other to Wilma Flintstone, and I took off into the woods.

I had studied "Romeo and Juliet" in English class, and I knew about love.

It was cerebral, serendipitous and sacred—it had nothing at all to do with trust funds or stock portfolios.

In fact, Shakespeare's doomed pair hailed from the castle district of Verona, and look where it got them.

Our family didn't live in a cardboard box underneath a bridge, but we weren't the jet set.

Where did my mom think that I would have occasion to hobnob with the elite?

Any plausible plan to infiltrate their ranks would likely involve a uniform or a name tag. And rich boys seemed so dull.

My boyfriends were interesting and had many talents, none of them financially viable.

They could play the guitar and write poetry. They could've opened a locked door with a credit card, if they'd had had one.

Sensing my predilection for fringe types, I can only assume that my mother panicked.

I knew everything when I was 16, but I've forgotten most of it. What I do remember was that my mom's statement about wedding the wealthy made quite an impression.

It stuck with me like a burr: I pricked at privilege. I shunned the slumming socialite. I was only sort-of kidding when I wore a tee shirt with a skull and cross-boned knife and fork that said "Eat The Rich." I was a reverse snob.

Throughout the years, I've quizzed my friends and found that this bizarre recommendation is actually a parental platitude.

"Yep," my friend Susan told me. "Only my mom said, 'You might as well marry a prince as a pauper.' I was so insulted."

Shary had a similar story: "My mom opened my bedroom door when I was 13 and threw a copy of 'Twist Twelve and Twenty' on my bed. With tears in her eyes, she told me that I could learn to love anyone if I didn't have to struggle to pay the bills. That was it. That was my birds and bees talk. Neither one of us ever mentioned it again."

Bobbie Gentry wrote a song about it: "Here's your one chance Fancy, don't let me down," the mythical mom laments to her teenager. Explaining the tit for tat arrangement, Mrs. Fancy's Mom tarts up her teen and says, "Just be nice to the gentlemen, Fancy, and they'll be nice to you."

Twenty-five verses later,

Fancy strikes pay dirt in a red dress with a slit clean up her leg.

Her mother dies, the well-fire people take the baby and Fancy never looks back, which I think is just awful. But I suppose going through life with the name Fancy would be punishment enough.

It seems to be an old story, but I think it's old enough. I look forward to the day when we evolve beyond admonishing our girls to bitch their wagon to a Mercedes, merely for the sake of that satiny leather interior and superb German engineering.

And it doesn't work, anyway. Telling a teenager something so blatantly materialistic during the most dramatic and self-righteous period of their lives will almost certainly backfire. It may create a backlash so profound that the child will be compelled to retaliate.

A piercing bravado could consume her dewy, marketable years, and also pretty much ruin family photos for how-ever long it takes her to snap out of it.

But if steering your daughter into a lucrative lifestyle is still a priority, I suggest a Br'er-Rabbit-in-the-briar-patch approach.

Forget the prince/pauper ultimatum and use reverse psychology. Try frequent diatribes against truffles and Louis Vuitton luggage and watch her eyebrows arch in interest.

Tell her that a woman's worth is not defined by the caliber of man that she can coerce down the aisle, and you'll be up to your eyeballs in cashmere-clad grand-babies in no time.

If your teenager actually listens to you and values your opinion, you're on your own.

Anger can be unhealthy or useful

In an earlier column I spoke to the problem of anger, which has been a common theme among people passing through the counseling office lately.

In that column I tried to make a case for anger being a God-given emotion closely related to fear, an emotion people typically experience eight to ten times daily.

The Bible, that practical handbook for life, recognizes anger as part of our emotional tool kit, but cautions that it needs to be used as a force for good and not evil.

The Bible's most fundamental guidance is wrapped up in Ephesians 4:26 where Paul instructs us that it is fine to go ahead and experience anger, just don't let it get out of hand to cause you to sin.

So how does one be angry without it leading to sin?

The answer lies in the distinction between healthy, quality anger and the unhealthy, destructive variety of anger.

Healthy anger is guided and tempered by the Holy Spirit in a way that allows us to invest our emotional energy so something good comes out of it. Quality anger motivates us to confront evil and combat injustice in our lives and the lives of others.

Healthy anger can lead to the righting of wrongs and can act as a cohesive force in society and in relationships. It can inspire us to change our life situation for the better, and it is essential to a healthy self-esteem.

For the Christian, healthy anger can aid in presenting and defending their faith.

Unhealthy anger expresses itself in destructive behavior that damages relationships and upsets social stability. This sort of anger typically involves rage and violence, and often leads to emotional, verbal, or physical abuse. This aggressive, hostile form of anger destroys love. It interferes with clear thinking and problem solving, and makes it all but impossible to have a conversation that might calm the situation. Unhealthy anger divides families and communities.

The story of Cain and Abel in Genesis 4 is the first recorded murder in history, and offers a case study in how to mismanage anger.

Cain had an anger issue. It was not that he got angry, but that he stayed angry.

The incident that led to Abel's murder began during a worship service in which each brother brought their sacrifice before the Lord. Abel brought his best, while Cain just did his duty. Abel gave from the heart, while Cain seemed to comply only grudgingly.

God liked Abel's sacrifice but told Cain his didn't measure up, which angered Cain.

The Lord confronted Cain on his anger and offered him another chance to get it right. Then He cautioned Cain to keep a grip on his emotions, for sin was ready to overtake him in his anger.

Cain did not take the advice to heart. He murdered Abel while they were together in the fields, falling victim to the jealousy, resentment, and anger that even today moves people to murder.

Cain lost control of his anger until it led to sin, and God punished him for it.

The story of Cain and Abel offers many lessons on anger. It teaches that we have to rule over anger or it will rule us. It teaches that there is a point of no return where anger gives way to sin, and after that the damage is great and the consequences dire.

And it teaches that when we involve God to help us understand our anger and gain mastery over it, anger becomes quality anger, not destructive anger.

So what are we to do with this natural, normal anger to avoid knowing it turn to sin?

We know it is destructive to vent it, and unhealthy to stuff it.

We know that if we don't promptly work it out anger can turn to resentment, jealousy, and bitterness that poisons us from the inside out.

Again, the Bible offers practical advice.

God speaks to us there on the topic of anger just like He tried to instruct Cain.

Proverbs 15 tells us to use gentle words to turn away wrath, because harsh words stir things up.

Hebrews 10 tells us to leave revenge to God, and Psalm 37 tells us to forsake wrath because it leads to evil doing.

Throughout Scripture we are told to exercise control, to simply put anger aside, and be kind to one another. Many people don't believe they have any control over their emotions, but they are mistaken. You can exercise your intellect to impose your will over your emotions.

And the final, lasting solution to anger that threatens to boil over into sin: forgive. Take authority over your emotions, and exercise your will to choose forgiveness.

I promise you, it works every time.

A Hard Lesson in East Park

Concert series season ends national act

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Detroit area indie band "The Hard Lessons" will finish the summer concert series in East Park.

Recently featured in Vanity Fair Magazine, they have finished their seventh recording, an album titled "Arms Forest," produced by Zack Shipp and released in partnership with Quack! Media.

"I just like the metaphor of an Arms Forest," said band member Augie Visocchi. "The forest, in literature, is the forbidden place. It's dark, but there is also freedom there. An ability to do whatever you want."

He added, "That is the freedom we seek in our band. There were absolutely no rules during the making of this record."

Fronted by newlyweds Augie and Korin Louise Visocchi. The Hard Lessons are known for their high-energy live performances and innovative sound.

The album's name is a play on the Forest Arms, a now-defunct apartment building in Detroit, and an image that has also been likened to a sea of reaching, waving hands.

Five years ago in Augie Visocchi's dorm room at Michigan State University, the idea for the band took shape. "We recorded six songs on my four-track," he recalled, "recruited a drummer, won some cash in a battle of the bands, self-released a 45, and went on tour - all in the first six months."

Their song "Wedding Ring" was featured in an episode of "Grey's Anatomy," and "Wicked Man" in an episode of "Friday Night Lights."

The Hard Lessons have toured extensively in the United States and Europe and have recently released videos from the "Arms Forest" album.

The band's original material showcases the understated vocal harmonies of the Visochis.

DDA Executive Director Keith Carey worked with an Ann Arbor talent agency to bring an eclectic mix of talent to the summer concert series.

"What I try to do when I book our series is to have something for everyone," Kerry said. "The Hard Lessons is an example of trying to bring in a group that's not something you'd find in a traditional lineup."

Carey added that attracting the most talented performers is what the summer concert series is all about, and often artists are interested in traveling to the area. "I have no problem trading on Charlevoix's beauty and it's place as a vacation destination in the hearts of many when we book our program," he said.

The this last in a series of free summer concerts presented by the Downtown Development Authority will take place at 6 p.m. on Aug. 30 at the Clarence Odmark Pavilion in East Park.

The evening's entertainment will begin with local blues men, Charlie's Root Fusion, who will take the stage first.

OBITUARIES

Lyle Maxim Gennett: May 4, 1930 - Aug. 18, 2009

Lyle Maxim "Max" Gennett, 79, of Charlevoix passed away August 18, 2009 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital. He was cared for during the last six weeks of his life by the caring staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, his family members and his many angels. He was born in Norwood on May 4, 1930, the son of Clifford and Margaret (Gornell) Gennett, and grew up there, later moving to Charlevoix and attending Loeb School. He met his wife Margaret Martha Hunt and they married October 22, 1949. After living in Detroit for a brief period, they returned to Charlevoix where Max worked for Jess Penn Great Lakes Fab-

From humble roots, born in a log cabin and raised in Northern Michigan "Max" was recognized for his many years of service as head groundskeeper for the Belvedere Golf Course. His beauty and challenging course were something he was very proud of. In retirement, he took up small engine repair and tool sharpening — a lost art that he took pleasure in because he enjoyed working with his hands. On a daily basis, individuals would show up at his small shop with anything from lawn mowers to steak knives that were in need of some tender loving care. The door to Gennett Sharpening will close, but a new one to heaven has just opened.

Max is survived by his children, Judy (Tom) Sumner, Lyle (Gayle) Gennett, Dawn Gray, and his beloved dog Morgan all of Charlevoix; grandchildren, Jennifer and Paul (Erin) Sumner, Melinda (Matt) Spalding of Eagle, Michigan, Christie (Heath) Meir of Boyne City, Michigan; great-grandchildren, Benjamin, Alexis and Brianna Spalding, and Kaden and Koleton Meir; brother, Steve (Suzanne) Gennett; sisters Genevieve Brodin all of Charlevoix, and Mary (Ed) Stahulek of Joliet, Illinois.

"Max" was predeceased by his parents; his loving wife of 50 years,

Margaret (Hunt); his brothers Henry, Melvin and Richard, and sister Barb Russell. Max will be missed by his family, his customers and many friends including Vi Dinwiddie, Stella Pearl and Les Hurlbut.

A funeral service will take place Friday, August 21, at 11:00 A.M. at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where visitation will take place Thursday, August 20, from 6-8 P.M. Burial will take place at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix at a later date.

Memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Millard Logan Hand: May 31, 1940 - Aug. 19, 2009

Millard Logan Hand, 69, of Charlevoix, joined his Lord and Savior on August 19, 2009 at Northern Michigan Hospital after living with cancer for many years.

Millard was born in Petoskey to the late Millard and Alta (Bailey) Hand on May 31, 1940. He married Marian L. Croff on August 20th 1960. They had five children; Deborah (Raymond) Johnson of Rock, MI, Daniel (Peggy) Hand of Angier, NC, Michael (Jennifer) Hand of Charlevoix, MI, Marcia (John) Shue of Pueblo, CO., and Russell (Tracie) Hand of New Port Ritchey, FL. They also have nine grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

Millard is survived by his wife and children plus seven brothers; Gail (Paulene), Merle (Jane), Clifford (Suzanne), Robert (Myra), Louis (Elizabeth), Jerome (Margaret), and John (Becky) Hand and three sisters; Kate (Francis) Schantz, Edith (Don) Kellogg, and Carmen (Earl) Waite plus over 50 nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by one brother, Garthe (Joan) and three sisters: Betty (Al) Barber, Jean (Ernest) Archer, and Vera (Charles) Himebaugh.

Millard grew up on a farm in Bay Shore, Michigan. After marriage, he worked for US Plywood for a few years, and then Millard and his family dairy farmed for 30 years. When he became too ill to farm, he enjoyed remodeling and taking care of their home. Millard loved the Lord and was active in many ways at the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, serving on the church board for many years, and was also active in the Michigan Farm Bureau for many years.

Funeral services will be held today, Friday, August 21st, at 2:00pm at the Stone Funeral Home in Petoskey. Visitation will be held at the funeral home today from 12:00pm (Noon) until the time of service. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Petoskey.

Memorial contributions in Millard's name may be given to the Community Church of God of Charlevoix.

Arthur E. Emmons: Aug. 30, 1918 - Aug. 20, 2009

Arthur E. Emmons, 90, of Charlevoix, passed away at his home on August 20, 2009. He was born August 30, 1918, in Muskegon, to C. Lewis and Maud (Wagley) Emmons. Art graduated from Pellston High School, and served in the US Army 75th Infantry in Europe during WWII. He married Helen J. Light in Norwood, and they made their home in Charlevoix where Art worked for Kroger, having also worked for Kroger in Benton Harbor. Most of his life, he worked for Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering; retiring at age 65, he continued to work part-time until he was 80. Art loved to travel and had visited over 43 countries. He solved crossword puzzles and enjoyed music. Art loved all of his cats, especially Sister, who was always by his side and wild flowers. Art is survived by his wife, Helen of Charlevoix; daughter, Deborah Emmons of Central Lake; son Mark (Susan) Emmons of Virginia Beach, Va.; brother-in-law, George (Marian) Light of Norwood; many nieces and nephews and great-nieces and nephews. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Charlevoix Humane Society, Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Dialysis Center, Charlevoix Area Hospital, the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, or the Charlevoix Senior Center. Visitation will be from 2-4 PM, and 6-8 PM on Monday, August 24, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A private burial service will be in Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Larry Lee Roth: July 24, 1940 - Aug. 18, 2009

Larry Lee Roth passed away suddenly on Aug. 18, 2009.

He was born July 24, 1940, in Clio, Michigan, to Harland and Hattie (Fischer) Roth. He was raised in Clio and graduated from Clio High School in 1958.

He worked briefly for General Motors, then joined the Army Reserve and served six months active duty.

He later attended Central Michigan University, graduating in 1966.

He married Elaine Crennel on August 12, 1967.

She predeceased him on Aug. 30, 2007.

Larry spent 30 years in the educational field as a teacher, coach, counselor and summer job coordinator, working for Flint Beecher and Saginaw Public Schools, where many students will remember him for his wit and humor.

He retired from Saginaw Public Schools in 1996. He and Elaine enjoyed their retirement years living on Lake Michigan in Charlevoix. Larry enjoyed photography and wild flowers.

Surviving are brothers: Gordon (Virginia) Roth and Ronald (JoAnne) Roth, all of Otisville; Burton (Sharon) Roth of Clio.

Also surviving are his mother-in-law, Esther (Starr) Crennel, Saginaw; sister-in-law, Annette (John) Boyer and Carolyn (Marvin) Turner, all of Saginaw; Loreta (Harry) Meersma, Lansing; and brother-in-law Randy (Anne Marie) Crennel of Antioch, Tenn. Larry also leaves numerous nieces, nephews, and friends. A memorial service will take place at 1 p.m. on Sept. 2, 2009, at the Horizon Center, 6200 State St., Saginaw, MI, 48603.

An additional memorial service will be held in Charlevoix at a time to be announced later.

Those planning an expression of sympathy may wish to consider The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society or the American Heart Association.

Arrangements by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix, Michigan, (231) 547-2881.

OBITUARIES

Graham George Barton: Died Aug. 23, 2009

Graham George Barton passed away on Aug. 23 in Charlevoix, Michigan.

He was 80 years old. Born in Detroit, he graduated from Mackenzie High School in 1946.

Mr. Barton resided in Livonia, Michigan for more than four decades before retiring to spend his winters in Tucson, Ariz. and summers in Charlevoix.

Graham is survived by his wife, Betty, whom he married in 1952, and his sons Gregory G. Barton of Lafayette, Calif. and Michael B. Barton of Boulder, Colo. He leaves behind daughter-in-law Suzanne and two grandchildren, Samuel and Joseph Barton, also of Lafayette.

He is also survived by his twin brother Bruce of Charlevoix and Singer Island, Fla. and his family and brother-in-law Peter Perona of Tucson, Ariz. and his family.

Mr. Barton enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps on Sept. 13, 1946 and, after completing basic training, he was sent to the Army/Navy school to be trained in combat intelligence where he became a specialist in topographic mapping and aerial photographic interpretation.

He was then assigned to the S-2 Intelligence section of the 8th Marines, 2nd Division. Upon discharge from the Marines Graham took advantage of the G.I. Bill and entered Lawrence Institute of Technology where he received a degree in mechanical engineering. Graham began his career as a young man at Michigan Oven Company in Detroit, a major manufacturer of industrial heating equipment with facilities throughout the Midwest, Canada and the United Kingdom.

He retired in 1989 as Senior Vice President of Engineering and Manufacturing. Known as a leader and innovator in his profession, Mr. Barton's guidance was also sought by his family and many friends who valued his energy, ideas and can-do spirit.

Mr. Barton had many pastimes and hobbies including hunting, fishing and restoring military vehicles.

He was an active member of the Military Vehicle Preservation Association, the Tucson British Car Register, the Biwanna Hunt Club, the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity and the United States Marine Corps League.

Patriotic Marine, successful businessman, loving husband and father, loyal friend; Graham G. Barton will be missed by all who knew him.

Pearl G. Rowe: Died November 2008

1907 - 2008 ROWE PEARL G. (The Flower Lady)

With another passing summer we dearly miss Pearl tending to her flowers in Rowe's Garden on Park Street in Charlevoix.

She passed away in November 2008 at the remarkable age of 101 years young.

Over 40 years ago Pearl, with her husband John, retired from the city life and moved to Charlevoix from Livonia, MI.

Together they grew a fabulous garden of flowers and vegetables.

They sold fresh, organic vegetables and flower arrangements to generations of local residents, restaurants, and vacationers.

We often hear from generations of customers who reminisce of her famous $5 bouquets or the succulent raspberries they had when their parents brought them to "Rowe's Garden."

Even after the passing of her husband, Grandma continued to sell fresh cut flowers well into her 90s.

Grandma Pearl was a truly special lady and was loved and admired by all who came to know her.

Her love of life reflected in the beautiful gardens that she kept. She was the beloved wife of the late John E. Rowe. Loving mother of Violet "Dee Dee" (the late Norbert) Dittmar and the late John Tomaszewski.

Proud grandmother of Wendi era company. He had a significant career in voice as a leading bass at Lake George Opera in New York and St. Louis Opera Theater.

Joseph was a lifelong supporter of the arts, antique collector and animal lover.

He is survived by his sister Dr. Ann Robbins Poindeux and longtime friend Andre Aeme, at whose home he spent many summers in Charlevoix. In retirement he was a resident of Brunswick, Ga.

There will be a service at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix at 3 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 28.

In lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to the Muskegon Museum of Art, 296 West Webster Avenue, Muskegon, MI 49440.

Joseph Clemmer Robbins

Joseph Clemmer Robbins was born Jan. 15, 1936, in Conway, Ark.

He died in Petoskey, Michigan at Hiland Cottage, Hospice of Little Traverse Bay.

His parents were Joseph G. Robbins and Iva Mae Clemmer.

He graduated with a bachelor of art from Hendrix College and attended Chicago Art Institute.

He graduated with master's degree from Indiana University. School of Music in the New Opera Program.

He taught voice at Shenandoah Conservatory of Music in Virginia and at Lindenwood College in St. Charles, Missouri.

For more than 25 years he was a professor of voice and opera at Georgia Southern University eventually creating his own op-

and Katelyn and great great-grandmother of Tanner. Memorials may be made to Seedlings Braille Books For Children, P.O. Box 51924 Livonia, MI 48151

PUBLIC NOTICE OF STATE-OWNED OIL AND GAS MINERALS TO BE OFFERED FOR LEASE AUCTION

Lands under consideration for oil and gas leasing include acreage in the following counties: ALCONA, ANTRIM, BRANCH, CHARLEVOIX, CHEBOYGAN, EMERYVILLE, ELKLAND, GRAND TRAVERSE, ISABELLA, JACKSON, KALKASKA, MANISTEE, MIDLAND, MONROE, MONTMORENCY, OTSEGO, AND WASHTENAW.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) will offer at an oral-bid public auction, oil and gas lease rights to approximately 11,000 acres of state-owned minerals in these Michigan counties indicated herein. More detailed information regarding location of the nominated parcels can be found on the web at http://www.michigan.gov/dnr/0,1607,7-153-10371_14793_-00.html or by calling 517 373 7663.

Written comments by interested parties relative to the classification of any description must be received by Forest, Mineral and Fire Management (FMFM) at the address specified herein NO LATER THAN October 6, 2009. Any request for change in classification will be considered by the DNR prior to offering the lease rights at public auction, with final classification to be set at the sole discretion of the Director of the DNR.

Registration of bidders will be held from 8:00 a.m. to 9:00 a.m. on Tuesday, October 27, 2009, at the Michigan Constitution Hall, 525 West Allegan Street, Lansing, Michigan.

Bids may be submitted by individuals of legal age, a partnership, corporation, or other legal entity qualified to do business in Michigan. Prospective bidders should be prepared to submit such proof at the time of registration.

The total bonus must be paid on the same day for all lease rights which receive successful bids. Prospective bidders who do not have an established credit rating with the DNR through prior leasing of state-owned minerals, must pay at least one-half of the TOTAL bonus bid by cash, certified check, cashier's check, or money order. A credit rating may be established by filing with the DNR, Forest, Mineral and Fire Management (FMFM), Mineral and Land Management Section (MLMS), three letters of reference, one of which must be from a bank. In no instance will the DNR accept "late drafts" even if noted as a zero day site draft.

An auction catalog showing the legal description of the lands proposed to be offered and parcel classifications will be available after October 9, 2009, on the web at http://www.michigan.gov/dnr/0,1607,7-153-10368_11800-169044_-00.html or by contacting DNR-FMFM-MLMS, P.O. Box 30452, Lansing, Michigan 48909-7952, telephone 517-373-7663.

There will be a service at Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix at 3 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 28.

In lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to the Muskegon Museum of Art, 296 West Webster Avenue, Muskegon, MI 49440.

Martha Stewart loves mushrooms

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Designed by Earl Young in the 1940s, the fluid lines fool the eye like a funhouse mirror.

Stone erupts from the earth and fans out into a fence on Park Avenue near Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Beyond that, organic and fluxing, is the mushroom.

Charlevoix residents, Lisa and Andre Radandt own one of the several distinctive structures sometimes referred to as "mushroom houses."

The subtle facelift performed on their guest cottage prompted "Martha Stewart Living" to feature the results in their August issue.

"It's quirky but it's perfect," Andre Radandt told the magazine. "People walk by and think all we did was change the windows."

All but one of approximately 30 houses and other buildings designed by Young were built in Charlevoix.

They have been described as whimsical and unconventional, or as an undulating take on a 1920s bungalow.

Respecting the cottage's eccentricities, the Radandts worked with New York architect/designers Daniel Heighes Wismer and Gregory Dufner to lower the floors by about six inches.

This was done to preserve the sunburst-beamed ceilings—only seven and a half feet tall in some places.

The geometric stonework of the floor to ceiling fireplace was untouched, while the original concrete floor was replaced with a radiant heating system and slate from a quarry in Onaway.

A desire to be green with the renovation required few changes to the façade, aside from new sconces and windows.

Six geothermal wells beneath the lawn eliminate any visible mechanics.

Repairs were made to the rippling stone wall.

The photos of the finished project reveal a house that is both cozy and glamorous.

A harmonious blend of masonry and Marilyn, this mid-century mushroom has returned to its roots.

Charlevoix County CROP Walk

At 9 a.m. on Saturday Sept. 26—rain or shine—you can join in the Charlevoix County CROP Walk, a six-mile walk that will begin at three Charlevoix County locations, including Elm Point in East Jordan, Whiting Park in Boyne City and Charlevoix Middle School in Charlevoix. Each location will conclude the walk at the Congregational Church in front of where David Phillips will provide lunch for all walkers.

This year, we are walking in memory of Dorothy Steel of Charlevoix. Both Dorothy Steel and David Phillips were responsible for founding CROP Walk in Charlevoix.

Organized locally, the Charlevoix County CROP Walk has set a goal of recruiting 100 walkers to raise $20,000, which will work to combat hunger here in our community as well as around the world.

Twenty-five percent of all monies raised here in Charlevoix County will come back locally to The Good Samaritan of Ellsworth, Care 'n Share of East Jordan, the Charlevoix Food Pantry, Seventh Day Adventist and Trinity Pentecostal Church of God of Boyne City.

Last year, 87 walkers raised more than $15,500 for the Charlevoix County CROP Walk.

Four local food pantries each received $1,400.

The remaining funds helped to combat hunger and poor sanitation around the world, including the United States.

For more information about CROP Walk contact Marge Teske at (231) 536-3128, John Young at 547-2042 or Mary Richwine at 582-6035.

SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

After two years as the assistant to recently retired director, Barbara Godwin-Chulick, Molly Arnold has been named the new director of Charlevoix Children's House.

Arnold took the position at the end of the school year in June.

"I'm very excited," Arnold said. "We just finished our summer camp program and it was a great success."

Arnold grew up in Charlevoix, returning with a degree in Language Arts Elementary Education from Grand Valley State University.

"I thought it would be really great to come back to the community when I got my teaching degree," said Arnold. "I fell in love with the whole Montessori system and the school helped to sponsor my Montessori Primary age certification."

Charlevoix Children's House has offered area families a Montessori-based alternative to daycare for 30 years.

The program is for children 2-and-a-half to 6 years old, and provides the opportunity for each child to explore their environment and develop interests at their own pace.

"Kids at that age really want the chance to make their own decisions," Arnold said. "And, there are consequences—good or bad—for every decision. It teaches them a responsibility for the decisions they make."

Charlevoix Children's House is located at 08700 Mercer Boulevard in Charlevoix.

Arnold describes the "little red schoolhouse," the fenced play area and adjacent nature trail as an ideal setting for kids to learn and play.

"We call it a prepared environment," she said, explaining that the students also learn about community and independence. "The children can explore at their own pace."

Sept. 9 is the first day of the fall session, and Charlevoix Children's House is still accepting enrollment in all age groups.

For more information, call 547-5599.

United States Coast Guard Open House

From 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Sept. 4, the USCG Auxiliary will hold an open house at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station. Anyone interested in the Coast Guard or Boating is welcome. You can find out what the Auxiliary is all about, what they do to help keep boating safe and to meet local Auxiliarists.

You can participate in boating safety and rescue skill drills and see the Coast Guard Base and Facilities first hand. A limited number of visitors will be able to ride on an Auxiliary Vessel. Some of the things Auxiliary members do is camera derie with fellow members, vessel safety checks, assist Coast Guard with patrols, assist local boaters in disstress, Patrol watching for pollution, unsafe activity, floating debris and boating hazards, qualify local buoys and navigation lights, help staff the Coast Guard communications, train to gain and advance boating and rescue skills and much more.

The location of the Coast Guard Station is at the end of Coast Guard Drive to the right of Depot Beach, or, once on the north side of Charlevoix, simply follow signs to the USCG Station. Hope to see you there.

Don't miss the boat!

Relay a success

235+ area residents raised over $36,000 to fight cancer

This past weekend, over 235 residents and friends from around Charlevoix County rallied together in their fight against cancer by participating in the Relay For Life of Charlevoix County the American Cancer Society's signature event.

The 4th annual Relay was a tremendous success, raising over $36,000 to aid in the American Cancer Society's on-going programs of research, education, advocacy and service.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life, a team-based fundraising event, is a unique, empowering and fun way to make a difference in the fight against cancer.

This past weekend, participants spent 24 hours at Castle Farms in Charlevoix, celebrating the lives of cancer survivors, remembering loved ones lost to cancer and fighting back against a disease that has taken too much from too many.

"Relay was an inspiring event. The sheer number of people that came to support survivors as they took their victory lap and the families there to remember loved ones lost to the disease by lighting a luminaria truly offered hope that one day cancer will not be a major health problem," said Lindsey Malpass-Skop, PR/Media Chair for Charlevoix County "Overnight, lives were changed forever."

At the heart of Relay For Life were two opportunities to pay tribute to those who have battled cancer.

During the Victory Lap, 30 cancer survivors from the surrounding community walked a celebratory lap around the track together, signifying their victory over a disease which claims the lives of one in four Americans each year.

At sundown, 603 luminaria were lit in honor and in memory of those who have battled cancer. The candles continued to burn throughout the night, lighting a path that will one day lead to a cure.

The 2009 American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County was made possible by numerous community sponsors, committee members, teams, participants and donors.

"Relay For Life is a perfect example of the great results that can be accomplished through teamwork," said Jennifer Wilson, of Great Lakes Energy. "By joining together we built strong teams, raised money and united our community in fighting back against cancer."

Donations can still be made to American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County by visiting www.relayforlife.org and clicking on Find Relay Events.

As the Society's signature event, Relay For Life celebrates 25 years of bringing cancer survivors and anyone touched by the disease together. Held overnight in honor of the fact that cancer never sleeps, Relay For Life has grown from a single event in Tacoma, Wash., that raised $27,000 to the largest grassroots movement nationwide. More than 5,000 communities throughout the U.S. now host an American Cancer Society Relay For Life event and have raised more than $3 billion for the fight against cancer.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. Founded in 1913 and with national headquarters in Atlanta, the Society has 13 regional divisions and local offices in 3,400 communities, involving millions of volunteers across the United States. generations how to use draft animal technology."

He added, "They teach solutions which can be maintained in that region, not just bringing an expensive piece of equipment and saying, 'Here, go at it.' They have to be able to maintain and repair in their own economy to build self-sufficiency."

While the Tillers teach hand tool techniques, Maser said he is not a purist.

"I use plenty of electric tools when it's convenient and necessary," he said. "But, I do believe in self-sustaining. I have solar panels now and hope to get a windmill soon."

Inwood will eventually have a much larger garden, pasture and several more utility buildings.

A raising day and opportunity for people to get a free glimpse of what Tillers can teach is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday Aug. 27, Friday Aug. 28 and Saturday Aug. 29 at Inwood Farm on 17701 Ferry Road, five miles south of Charlevoix.

The small timber frame barn will be erected by Tillers and anyone who wishes to help over the three day event.

Call (616) 634-9802 for more information.

Tillers exists from class fees and donations. Anyone interested in supporting this program can go to www.tillersinternational.org and send their monetary donations to Tillers International, 10515 East OP Ave., Scotts, MI 49088. Earmark the donation for "Inwood Farm."

Charlevoix's Voisin to enter Michigan Motor Sports Hall of Fame

BY STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW

Faith is the ability not to panic.

That simple saying is written on the back of a clipboard Don Voisin stumbled upon and used as crew chief for his son and tunnel boat series champion Vince Voisin, a renowned racing champion who is followed in his father's footsteps.

"I use that saying all the time," Don Voisin said, glancing at that white clipboard at his office at Charlevoix Agency Inc. "We won a lot of races by just using our heads and not panicking.

If you're not prepared, you'll lose."

Losing wasn't something Don Voisin had to deal with much his own boat racing career.

A stellar career which ran just over 21 years and saw him win 10 Top O' Michigan Outboard Marathon National titles, Voisin will be inducted into the Michigan Motor Sports Hall of Fame at its annual ceremony Nov. 1 in Mount Pleasant.

Voisin, who'll turn 64 this month, will join the likes of Roger Penske, Jack Rousch, Henry Ford and Louis Chevrolet in the hall, which recognizes and pays tribute to citizens in Michigan who have given of themselves, whatever their roles in racing may have been.

Voisin is also believed to be the northern-most member to be selected into the Hall.

"It means something to me now more so than it did when I was (racing) back then," Voisin said. "It's nice to know that I've done something good and that I could give back to other racers.

"It's really going to be something."

Voisin, who was born in Cheboygan and grew up along the shores of Mullett Lake, is something himself. He's been involved in virtually every aspect of outboard racing including driver, race official, referee, boat builder, owner, mechanic and crew chief.

It started at the tender age of 10 when Voisin's father took him to watch the finish of the Top O' Michigan race.

From there, he was hooked and his career took off.

"I was a junior in high school and a group of people I knew had these crazy race boats," Voisin said. "Maybe it was those people that were my savior."

Voisin's first race victory came in 1968 at the Marathon National Championship in Trenton.

Following that, Voisin won various races across the country including stops in West Virginia, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

In 1972 and 1973, Voisin won 17 straight marathons.

"I had the will to win and I wanted to prove to people that I was good and that I was a winner," Voisin said.

Voisin began his career competing in Class B, and eventually moved to Class C and D. Piloting his famed No. 23 boat, the "Red Sled" won the Belle Isle Marathon for nine consecutive years and won that same marathon twice in 1973, running in Class C and D.

In the Top O' Michigan Outboard Marathon Nationals, Voisin won every race from 1970-78 (although no race was held in 1974 and 1975) and from 1980-82. Voisin had at least one win in every major marathon run in Michigan once he started racing.

"Some people must have noticed right away I was a really good driver and part of that reason is because I grew up right on Mullett Lake," Voisin said. "I learned how to drive really well in the rough water and that was my forte."

"I was never that fast until later in my career."

In 1968, Voisin was awarded the James Holden Memorial Award for scoring the most marathon points. Seven years later, Voisin was selected as charter inductee in the American Power Boat Association Region 6 Hall of Fame.

In 1982, Voisin was awarded the Joe Schwartz Memorial Award for sportsmanship in helping other drivers. Helping other drivers is something Voisin still cherishes.

"I've never charged anybody for my help," Voisin said. "I just like to help people out."

Former Top O' Michigan national champion and current race director Tom Fairbairn credits Voisin for helping him throughout his racing career.

Former boat racer Don Voisin shows off his numerous wins from the 70s and 80s.

"Don Voisin passed it down to me and I just want to pass it down onto the next generation of drivers," Fairbairn said. "I owe a lot of credit to him."

Following his career, Voisin built boats, motors and equipment won an additional 12 national championships. Voisin stepped aside from racing in 1982 because of chronic knee problems.

"Once I retired from racing, people would ask me and I'd let my secrets out," Voisin said. "I loved being prepared. Once I started winning and once Vince started winning, we were never once disqualified from a race."

"He (Vince) and I both had some driver's infractions and some fights on shore, but boats, motors and equipment was all 100 percent legal and I'm darn proud of that."

Voisin's also proud of his son's accomplishments, highlighted by Vince Voisin's induction into the Hall of Champions in 2003.

"I never went to inspection worried because I knew I was legitimate," Voisin said. "I built all of Vince's motors the same way I built my own. All that stuff is still in my pole barn."

It took Voisin, along with help from friend Cheri Hoffman, close to three months to compile his complete biography and racing accomplishments to send to the Michigan Motor Sports Hall of Fame.

From there, he anxiously played the waiting game.

"An old friend of mine, Jake McCourtie, called me and let me know I was selected," Voisin said. "He was on the committee and they said it was the best application they've ever received."

Voisin will be joined by his wife or 40 years, Vicki, and children Vince and Wendy Jensen, at the induction.

As for his speech, Voisin is still working on it.

"I have some things written down and I've started it three times," he said. "I have a legal pad at home, but I don't know what I'm going to say."

Voisin still is active in the Top O' Michigan Marathon Association, win which he serves as chair of the Classic Division and can be often seen roaming around the pits area.

Although he hasn't set foot in a race boat since 1992 helping Bryan Lauer to get his boat to turn on Lark's Lake or hasn't watched the finish of the Top O' Michigan Marathon since his driving days, Voisin said boat racing is still a big part of him.

"I just believe that boat racing over the years has helped me and helped a lot of other people," Voisin said. "I've been involved in boat racing for 40 years, but this (induction) really makes me feel good."

TOTALLY ONLINE SCHOOL

The State of Michigan Department of Education has given Northwest Academy approval to educate students who are of high school age and not attending school at the school's location. It will mean we will be able to provide resources for those students who are not attending a school and cannot, or choose not to, attend a school building to receive their education. We will be able to offer this program to all students that apply.

This means Northwest Academy will have the funding to provide:

1. Tuition for on-line courses.
2. Free tutoring
3. Free technical support
4. Computer provided if needed
5. Internet hook-up provided for work at home.
6. Northwest Academy transcript showing credits earned.
7. Northwest Academy Diploma for those meeting Northwest Academy's graduation requirements.
8. Textbooks, software and other materials to complete any assigned coursework.

Custer named northern Michigan sole Steelcase dealer

In addition to remaining the one and only authorized Steelcase dealer in West Michigan since its inception in 1981, Custer Workplace Interiors was recently named the exclusive Authorized Steelcase Dealer for the Northern Michigan and Upper Peninsula territories.

Scott Custer, Senior Account Manager and son of founder, David Custer, explained, "We're one of the most comprehensive workplace furniture and interiors dealers in Michigan. In addition to our partnership with Steelcase, Custer also represents over 200 additional manufacturers and suppliers of workplace furnishings, as well as a host of products related to workplace design and function."

From home offices and small businesses, to mid-sized companies and expansive environments like medical and educational facilities, Custer creates, enhances and manages workplaces top to bottom, start to finish.

"We take pride in being able to offer optimum solutions for a very broad variety of workplace environments," Custer said. "We not only deliver a complete range of products, including interior architecture, flooring and technology products, we also present a full suite of services like interior design, facility management, build-outs and interior enhancements."

Custer is known for a history of superior customer service - as evidenced by their recent Steelcase Exemplary Dealer Award recognition.

"It is important to my family that our actions always be guided by fairness and integrity, and that customer satisfaction is always our top priority," Custer said. "We look forward to really impacting Northern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula, giving them the service they expect and deserve."

Tour fall colors with evening cruises New business offers luxury charters

ECHT

A new charter boat service is coming to Charlevoix that will offer evening color tour cruises or take you anywhere you want to go.

Keweenaw Excursions offers a 100-foot power boat called the Keweenaw Star which can handle 149 passengers and offers a full bar, catered meals, restrooms, and several viewing decks.

"We've been operating in Houghton for the past 10 years and there is just not enough passenger base, so we want to get some place with more consistent tourist traffic, more consistent business," said Keweenaw manager Jason Funky.

Funky operates the Keweenaw Star with his father Fred and brother Craig, each of whom have their 100-ton master's license.

Tours will begin from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sept. 11 with sightseeing on Lake Michigan and Round Lake at a cost of approximately $25 per person.

The sightseeing tours will be

Wednesdays, Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays with charter service available any time.

The tours will continue through October or when the color change of the leaves has finished.

Funky said he also is planning some music cruises with live bands.

The Keweenaw Star will dock in Charlevoix where the Acacia center once called home.

Funky is formerly a third mate for the American Steamship Company and a graduate of the Great Lakes Maritime Academy.

For more information, call (906) 482-0884, e-mail krag@pasty.com or go to www.keweenawexcursions.com.

The company employs six people currently.

The company will begin heading toward Charlevoix on a light-house cruise beginning at 8 a.m. on Sept. 6.

Seats are still available. Call Terry Pepper at (231) 436-5580 for more information on this cruise.

Warning To Be Added for Pain Medicines

Within the last few weeks, the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) announced that over-the-counter (non prescription) pain medicines such as aspirin and acetaminophen (Tylenol) will be required to carry new and more prominent warnings related to the possible risk of stomach bleeding and liver damage from the use of these drugs. The liver damage relates to long term use of high doses of acetaminophen, or when this drug is taken by persons who also drink three or more alcoholic drinks each day. The FDA feels that it should warn consumers who often unknowingly take multiple products that contain these ingredients.

One report indicates that the new warning, which was first proposed over 2 years ago, will apply to the highly used prescription and nonprescription drugs known as NSAIDs (non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs). This group includes ibuprofen and naproxen. While some drug manufacturers have already changed their product labels, an FDA spokesperson indicates that all companies that make and distribute such products must do so within 12 months.

Charlevoix Public Library Booktalkers is a group of readers who love to read different books each month and then gather to discuss them.

The Booktalkers meet twice per quarter at 6 p.m. in the Armstrong Conference Room of the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St. New members are welcome. Sept. 14, The Shadow of the Wind, by Carlos Ruiz Zafon will be discussed. This coming-of-age tale of a young boy who, through the magic of a single book, finds a purpose greater than himself and a hero in a man he's never met "spins a web of intrigue so thick that it ensnares the reader from the very first line."

Nov. 9, The Booktalkers meet again to discuss Real Life and Lies, by Kristina Ruggie. This is a novel set in Charlevoix where the author has visited her grandparents.

The staff at the Charlevoix Library will also be offering two other book discussion events this fall. They will be participating in the 'Great Michigan Read' community discussion, 6:30 p.m., Oct. 13. This is a community reading program for the entire state, featuring the memoir Stealing Buddha's Dinner, by Grand Rapids native Bich Minh Nguyen. The library will also once again participate in the C.S. Lewis festival by offering a discussion of The Four Loves, 6:30 p.m., Oct. 21.

For more information about this or other library events, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call 237-7340.

SEPT. 18

Elfrieda Lewitt (middle) founder of the Joy 4 A Child organization is pictured with two cancer patients attending Camp Daggett's Camp Quality, a camp for kids suffering from cancer to enjoy the outdoors and numerous activities like fishing, hiking, crafts, swimming, boating and more. Lewitt is accepting puzzles, journals, games, lap and shoulder blankets or monetary donations to help those with cancer during her home visits for patients and elderly shut-ins.

Campers blessed at Camp Daggett

Camp Quality is a summer camp at Camp Daggett, this year hosting children from 4 to 19 who struggle with cancer.

This is the second year that Elfrieda Lewitt, Office Administrator at Zion Lutheran Church, and CEO of Joy 4 A Child, paid a visit to these wonderful children.

All of the campers were blessed with a choice of three items: Journals, kites, coloring books, T-shirts and shorts, also each child gets their choice of a stuffed animal or beanie baby to take back to their bunks to hug and remind them they are loved.

Joy 4 A Child visits children in hospitals and senior citizens or shut-ins in nursing homes with a smile, hug and a special gift of their choice.

There is wish list to help provide items to distribute to ill children and shut-in senior citizens.

Joy 4 A Child purchases most items and many from the Wish List, are donated by the caring people of the community.

A plea was made at the camp, for mothers, grandmothers or anyone who knit or crochet, to consider donating lap and shoulder afghans for our seniors.

Call Elfrieda Lewitt at Zion Lutheran Church of Petoskey at (231) 347-3438 for more information.

If you would like to drop off beanie babies or afghans, or any other items on the wish list, you may do so at Zion Lutheran Church, 500 W. Mitchell in Petoskey from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Get a copy of the wish list by e-mailing frieda@compnor.com.

If you have a senior citizen in a nursing home or private home, or an ill child in the hospital or at home, call and Joy 4 A Child will visit them, bring them Joy, and a special gift for the special people they are.

Four Norwood board members face recall

PROPOSED RECALL LANGUAGE FILED ON FOUR MEMBERS

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Proposed ballot language to recall four Norwood board members has been filed with the Charlevoix County Clerk.

This first step toward a recall election has been initiated by a group of Norwood residents unhappy with their board's overall performance.

"I turned in the petition to the county clerk for a group of people that actually drafted this (though) I was a part of the drafting process," said Norwood resident and former board member Denny Way.

"Many residents feel we are not properly represented, but are afraid to come forward — I'm not intimidated. I'm not afraid. This is simply a process at our disposal and people should stand up and say we are not happy with our township officials."

The four township officials of the five-member board who have been threatened with recall are supervisor Frank Hamilton, secretary Dana Pajtas, and trustees David Ridenour and Doug Warner.

The four recall attempts are separate and merely at the proposed language phase. Hamilton has been accused of serving "special interest group the Norwood Township Citizens For Health and Safety rather than the interests of the citizens of Norwood Township" in addition to alleged conflict of interest, Freedom of Information Act violations and placing the township at risk for lawsuits.

"The language is so vague I'm not sure how to respond," Hamilton said. "They've exercised their rights and I almost welcome it. If the people of Norwood are dissatisfied with the progress we've made so far, then they can voice it. If they're happy with what we've done, then they will have their say, also."

OKTOBERFEST HARVESTS BAVARIAN TRADITION

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The second annual Charlevoix Community Oktoberfest marks the end of summer with a day-long celebration on Saturday, Sept. 19, featuring music, entertainment, food and a Biergarten.

The Bavarian-themed festival begins with All-you-can eat pancakes at 9 a.m. in East Park. Admission is $6. Proceeds will be donated to the Forgotten Eagles of Michigan, in support of local veterans.

"What I appreciated the most about last year's Oktoberfest, from an attendee standpoint, is that it was a very family-oriented event," said Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority Executive Director Keith Carey. "We saw a lot of local faces and it was a nice way to end the summer."

Carey credits St. Mary Parish of Charlevoix for relocating their annual event to allow the city to participate.

St. Mary Parish hosts the event that is sponsored by local businesses.

"We're very pleased that they moved their event downtown," Carey said. "We're looking forward to the second year."

Kelli Kwapisz and Matthew Greimel co-chair this year's festival.

Greimel will also act as emcee for events throughout the day.

"Oktoberfest is an agricultural celebration that begins in the later part of September and culminates the first week in October," Greimel said. "It dates back almost 200 years."

Oktoberfest a celebration of family and community

Costume Contest proved to be one of the most popular features of last year's Oktoberfest.

The canine parade will be held at 3 p.m. in Bridge Park, with the races immediately following.

All proceeds will be donated to the Charlevoix Area Humane Society.

"We hope that people of the community will come down and enjoy a great family day," Kwapisz added. "And, support the local businesses that sponsor and the non-profit organizations that benefit from the event."

The dogs are encouraged to race short distances, usually between two owners, one of whom is holding a treat at the finish line.

Carey commended the organizers for a "unique and novel event."

He added, "The wiener dog races were a huge draw. The crowd stood eight-deep in some places. You could just tell by the look of the dog when (the owners) set them down that they were going places."

This year there will be a PA system to narrate the races and bleachers will be set up to accommodate the spectators.

A Kid's Tent provides a variety of activities for young attendees from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The $6 admission covers games, crafts, face painting, tattoos, a bounce house, music and interactive dances with the Edelweiss Dancers.

Shabby Girls local spa will be on hand for Bavarian hair braiding.

Following at 4:30 p.m., kids are invited to attend a free movie at Cinema III with a maximum seating of 175, so get their early.

Donations will be accepted and proceeds from the kid's tent benefit the Charlevoix Food Pantry.

Live music plays from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. Featured acts include Charlevoix Community Band, Edelweiss Volkstanzgruppe with Accompaniment, Northwest Academy Band, Brass Quintet, and da Li! Oompah Band and Siasswasser Tanzmusik.

Tug-O-War and Brat Eating contests will challenge the intestinal fortitude and strength between the Charlevoix City Police and Charlevoix Sheriff Departments and the Charlevoix Township Fire and Charlevoix City Fire Departments.

Attendees are invited to flex their own muscles in a cast iron pan toss and a keg roll.

Free programs with event itinerary, Bavarian recipes, Oktoberfest history and lyrics to the Schintzelbank sing-along are available from local merchants or on site the day of the festival.

"Oktoberfest was a great success last year," said City Manager Rob Straebel. "I think it's a great way to promote the downtown area during the shoulder season. Another great benefit is that the proceeds go to so many worthy causes in the community."

Recall wording must be approved

Hamilton

He added, "I'm very proud of our record."

Pajtas' recall language is nearly identical to Hamilton's with the additional allegation that she has improperly posted meetings.

"There are no specific facts presented. There is no basis for their allegations," Pajtas stated in an e-mailed response to questions from the Courier. "It is a waste of taxpayer money as the voters have spoken less than a year ago."

Ridenour's proposed recall petition is similar to the two preceding.

"I don't understand it," Ridenour said. "I don't think it's going to go anywhere. I think this board has done an excellent job. We've done more than has been done in 20 years, especially with the beach clean-up and some other things."

He added, "It has always been my contention to keep the township out of any lawsuits."

Warner, whose proposed recall was similar to the other three, did not return messages by phone or e-mail by press time.

A clarity hearing by the canvassing board which oversees events like recalls is scheduled for 3:30 p.m. on Sept. 9 in the Charlevoix County Board's chambers located at 301 State St.

The canvassers will check the language for clarity at this hearing open to the public.

If approved, the petitioners will have 90 days to collect 95 signatures to force the recall.

If petitioners are successful, all four seats will be open for a public election in

EDITORIAL

Ah the end of summer, a time when that long-forgotten snow shovel in the garage begins eyeing you with the smugness of a Vegas blackjack dealer — it knows you'll be back and it knows you're gonna do the heavy lifting.

The end of our three months of bad shoveling seems to be bittersweet, on one hand the time for barbecues, days at the beach, nights camping and roasting marshmallows and lighting fire works is over; on the other hand, the town will quickly become the serene haven devoid of celebratory crowds that we 12-monthers tend to know and love.

And that's where we find ourselves, on the edge of the Little But Mighty Bridge Walk. A celebration of the end of summer in Charlevoix with a short trip across our little bridge.

Folks are encouraged to gather at the Townhouse Bar, a favorite watering hole for some of us, and eventually meander up to the Weatherlane for the annual walk.

We love that the walk raises funds for good causes like the Charlevoix Community Food Bank — what we do not like are the cries of "Fudge go home" and signs that belittle our summer guests as if a traveler, a vacationer to this region were a negative thing.

We're all for a good time with good-natured fun, but let's please, please keep it civil.

Pied Pipers are needed for driving out snakes, not tourists.

This year's Little But Mighty Bridge Walk begins at approximately 1 p.m. on Sept. 7, on the north side of the bridge in downtown Charlevoix.

To help this year's cause, buy a 2009 Bridge Walk T-shirt for $13.

Hope you all had a great summer. We'll see you at the bridge.

Simply enjoying life

A LOOK AT LIFE
Gayle Gennett

If life wasn't hard enough with economic concerns, there seems to be something in the air that's taking some of my family and friends away.

Actually it's not only in the air but it may be in the food we eat, our lifestyles or just the luck of the draw.

The Relay for Life in Charlevoix County has raised money to fight it and our family appreciates all the dedicated volunteers and their personal time spent on eliminating it as a major health problem.

Cancer is a disease that doesn't seem to be fussy about whose life it wants to complicate.

Weddings and baptisms brighten my weekends but the number of funerals we've attended this summer is really making me take notice.

I started thinking about things my mom said before she passed as well as my favorite columnist Erma Bombeck, whose own life ended much too soon from cancer.

They both stressed the importance of reducing the clutter in life so you can focus on living life simply and enjoying it more.

They both felt the secret to happiness is not in getting more but in wanting less.

I haven't been listening. My own planner is bursting with to do lists, meetings and goals.

Life can become complicated just because we let it. To keep my spirits up I only need to re-read Erma Bombeck's, If I Had My Life to Live Over, and re-reading Simplify your Life by Elaine St. James.

I personally should have taken the time to listen to my grandfather ramble about his youth.

I should have gone to bed when I was sick instead of pretending the earth would go into a holding pattern if I wasn't present and active for the day.

I've started using the good linens and napkins for every day use and even brought out the candles I felt should only be lit for holidays.

As a planner I am learning that the planning of our lives is good to a point such as what should I fix for dinner or what things can I do to keep my house up or what can I do to keep my family intact?

Other than that it's in God's hands.

So everyday appreciate the small pleasures in life, give away your hugs freely and be kind to others.

Start each morning with, "Yay I'm alive" like it's your own surprise party.

Have a date night or a night out with friends, see your child's sporting events, visit your parents, take your animals for a walk, look up in the night sky and see how truly beautiful a Northern Michigan panorama is.

Before I forget, remember to be in bed early at least one night a week.

Once you slow down you will realize that life goes on and we create our own chaos.

If you listen to others rather than trying to fix them when they don't want fixing, your life becomes simplified and gives you more energy to spend on productive pursuits. Sometimes being in a constant rush, meeting demands of others, or completing deadlines seem endless, so spend one day each month away from your distractions.

While I don't necessarily mean getting away from people I definitely mean getting away from people who make the demands.

Trying to follow my own advice, I'm off to Mackinaw Island to spend a day with my husband.

Traveling simplified: a day trip to Mackinac Island complete with biking, visiting the Butterfly House, feeling the wind on my face and not answering a phone.

Of course taking in the smells of fudge wafting through the open doors of fudge shops helps too.

I want to thank everyone for their kind words and cards as we said good-bye to my father-in-law last week.

He felt he was becoming a burden but we assured him he wasn't.

When you have faith and know there is a different life after this one on earth it is easier to let go.

Our neighbors, friends and family members who have passed this summer will be missed but we are keeping them alive by learning to live simply and enjoy what we have instead of worrying about what we don't.

Gayle Gennett's column appears twice a month in the pages of the Charlevoix Courier.

Hope in a jar

MORE OR LESS
Christine Gwidt

"Where's my man-bag?" My husband is rifling around under the bathroom sink. His voice is muffled, but I'm pretty sure I heard him correctly. Even so, I just have to hear it again.

"What?" I holler. "What did you say?"

"My man-bag. I thought it was in here. Did you move it?"

If I can keep it together, he'll say it at least one more time.

"I'm sorry, babe. I didn't hear you."

He appears in the doorway, looking exasperated. "My man-bag," he says, and I lose it.

"Whaaaat?" He's laughing at me laughing at him. "Do you know where it is or not?"

"Ha-ha-ha-ha! Phew. HA!" I answer. "What is your man-bag?"

"You know," he says, a tad defensively, "that little black bag with the zipper that I use for, um, stuff, when I travel."

"Stuff?"

"My razor and stuff."

"Your toiletries?" I am gleeful. "Your toiletry man-bag is missing?"

I know it's childish, but I have a really long memory and it's payback time.

Early in our marriage, my baby-faced husband didn't even use after-shave. "What

See HOPE, page 5

OPINIONS yours & ours

The magical man bag

is all this stuff?" he would ask, opening the cabinet to look for dental floss. "Geez, you've got six different jars of goop to wash your face. And what's this cucumber toner stuff? Why don't you just use soap?"

I know that he viewed my collection as frivolous. He probably thought that I had enough money tied up in products to pay for season tickets for the Packers, and he was probably right.

"You don't need all this stuff," he told me. "You are beautiful. You'll always be beautiful to me." (Read: "You don't have any wants. Let's divert these funds into season tickets for the Packers.")

"You only think so because you have astigmatism, and I'm diligent with my routine. If I were to skip a week, I'd be unrecognizable. It's all smoke and mirrors, my friend. Exfoliation and emollients."

"Never mind. Just be grateful that I'm on top of it."

Some anniversaries later, I noticed a change. I'd catch him studying his face in the mirror a little too carefully when he brushed his teeth, zooming in for a close-up and covertly prodding the skin at the corner of his eye. Then the tubes, bottles and jars appeared one day, on mass.

They were packaged in mainly forest-green containers, but they promised to turn back time. Just like mine. They were loaded with papaya and enzymes to fight free radicals. There was a little tub of exfoliating grains in an herbal-smelling jelly, age-defying night cream, an SPF 30 day lotion and a tube of de-puffing eye gel. I tried them all. They were nice.

I can't deny the feeling of vindication - a little wrinkle of satisfaction, if you will, when he capitulated and joined me in the maintenance business. And I empathized with his fledgling hope even as I braced myself for the aftermath. The realization that jars and tubes do not contain the Fountain of Youth would be disappointing. I was there for him.

"Let me give you a facial," I suggested. "You'll like it." Surprisingly, the man who has always balked at even my most rudimentary attempts at domestication agreed.

I lassoed his hair with a stretchy headband and slapped a hot towel over his face before smearing a layer of green mud over his stubble. He lay frozen on the bed, cotton balls moistened with Witch Hazel over his closed eyes.

"Just relax and don't move your face until it dries," I told him. I went downstairs to let the dogs out.

Forty minutes later, when I remembered what I'd been doing before I started staking the tomato plants, I re-turned.

My husband looked like a turtle on its back - helpless, wizened and reptilian. The green mud had dried and cracked, drawing his features into a pucker. His mouth was open and he was snoring gently.

"Wake up, darling. You're beautiful." I pressed the hot towel over his face to loosen the mask and wiped it away in stages.

"Did it work?" he asked. Silly boy.

"It's a miracle!" I told him. "It took off 30 years. You have chin acne and a mole."

He reached for his glasses, but I intercepted the pass. "Oh no. The most important part of the treatment is to critique the results with the naked eye. The success of the whole experience hinges upon a deliberately feeble examination of the rejuvenated epidermis."

"Huh?"

"Just take off your glasses when you look in the mirror."

PUT OFF BY PETUNIA LAND

Editor:
I would like to share my story with you about my trip through beautiful Charlevoix.

After a surprise engagement on Friday night, my fiancé and I decided to celebrate and drive up north.

After looking at the map we decided to drive up US-31 for a beautiful scenic drive. We first stopped in Honor MI at the Coho Festival.

Everyone in this cute little town was so friendly and inviting.

We decided to continue north and visit Charlevoix because we had both heard that it was a great town to visit.

We were looking forward to shopping and having lunch some where.

We arrived in Charlevoix and decided to park in the first parking lot we saw. There were several shops in this strip mall, amongst these was Oleson's. The moment we stepped out of our car we were approached by a man that simply stated, "you can't park here if you are going downtown."

This man did not greet us, there was no good afternoon folks, or welcome to Charlevoix. Our first impression of Charlevoix was, "you can't park here."

So I am writing you to offer a few suggestions, because I find it hard to believe this is the first time this has happened to tourists. Now I am not sure if there were any signs posted, but perhaps posting one right in the entrance off of US 31 would be helpful to tourists to know where the appropriate parking is for certain shopping areas. Perhaps giving this scary little man that is trolling around this parking lot some sort of uniform or badge so he could feel more official and powerful. And more importantly teach him some manners and some politeness.

Also it probably would be helpful to give him some maps of optional parking to hand to tourists as he tells them to get out of his parking lot.

We decided that Charlevoix was not the right atmosphere for what we were celebrating. We continued driving north to Mackinaw City. We went to dinner at Audie's Restaurant. Even knowing that we were tourists the staff was one of the most welcoming warm and friendly staffs we have ever met. Perhaps your little parking attendant needs to visit!

BEAUTIFUL

Editor:
An Open Letter to Mayor Carlson, Council Members, and the Good Folks of Charlevoix:

I was raised in Charlevoix some 81+ years ago and resided there for a few years in the late 70s/early 80s, so I am not a stranger to Charlevoix, but I am an overwhelmed visitor having just spent the month of July in your beautiful City.

Why overwhelmed? Let's start with the new park and boat slips. It appears to me that a project started in the late 1930s has now been completed. What a superb park indeed! And the new band shell complete with the Tuesday evening "Gary Stutzman Orchestra."

What a great group of musicians and to listen to live, "real" music.

I wonder what people driving through Charlevoix must be thinking when entering the city limits lined with petunias, the hanging baskets and lighted trees?

My guess is that many of them turn on to a side street and come back for a real look.

And while downtown, what about the new library. What a beautiful building and grounds.

I can't believe it is the same building that I spent a couple of years in the sixth grade back in the 1930s.

And speaking of buildings: Although the renovated City Hall may not be new to y'all, it was to me.

Hats off to Deano and Arlene on the fine job with the mayoral photo display on the Council Chambers wall.

If you have not seen your fire station lately, go have a look. Charlevoix's fire station, trucks EMS, would be the envy of hundreds of cities two to three times larger than Charlevoix.

Oh, I realize I am probably forgetting some important folks and projects, but there is one other thing, last, but certainly not least.

You homeowners. I drove throughout the streets of Charlevoix. Not just Boulder Park, Dixon, Michigan Ave., but all streets.

I was impressed with the well maintained homes and yards; the flower gardens were most impressive.

Everywhere I drove, I sensed a feeling of great civic pride.

"Charlevoix the Beautiful" is not just a slogan, it is a fact. Y'all can stand proud.

BUILD AN ARENA

Editor:
Are you an active sports player and bored in the winter time, just sitting around watching T.V. and playing video games.

If there was a Sports Arena kids or adults could play catch with a baseball or a football indoors where there's lot of room instead of outside in the cold snow. We need a Sports Arena open to the public. A place for all ages who like to stay active in the winter time.

The Sports Arena would bring business to the City of Charlevoix by attracting tourists that are active. You will be charged to get in, but there will still bring lots of active customers.

The reason a Sports Arena would be good in Charlevoix because, there's room for it. A lot of kids and adults are active and need a public gym to stay active. Since the Charlevoix Public Schools gyms are not open to the public, now there's a gym for the public could go to.

KUDOS, COURIER COLUMNISTS

Editor:
Kudos to writers Knutson, Gwidt, and Gohs for their articles in the Aug. 26 Charlevoix Courier.

Roger Knutson's articles have intrigued me for years, and it is my hope to one day become his neighbor in Charlevoix after I, too, have completed my professional career.

His range of knowledge on interesting subjects, including — in his latest essay — the psyches of Charlevoix's summer visitors and their needs for various Charlevoix "fixes," is impressive, and I am sure that in-person chats with him over a coffee would be as enjoyable as reading his columns. What do you say Professor Knutson? I'll buy Ms. Gwidt has impressed me with her deft turns of phrase, her ability to insert comic timing into her word art, and her skill in piercing the mundane with her sharp and funny observations.

Thanks for your column on giving advice to teens. My wife and I have largely survived our own anxious times with our kids as teens, but you brought them back to life for us.

And you, Mr. Gohs, you have provided us with many episodes of sheer joy with your zany articles, but the "Good Deed" piece brought the most tears of laughter.

Send letters to: Charlevoix Courier, P.O. Box 117, Charlevoix, MI, 49720. fax to (231) 547-4992 or e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Your depiction of Jacob doing a lap around the house and attempting to speak with his "bumblebeed" tongue left us unable to talk.

Keep those articles coming.

There's a Gohs book of collected essays in the making I hope.

Congrats to you all.

BUTTS-OUT

Editor:
Have you every placed your towel down on Fairy Beach and seen nothing but cigarette butts? Does it bother you like it bothers me? In my opinion, littering cigarette butts should be illegal.

From my point of view, there are many different hazards of cigarette butts.

When cigarette butts get wet, it makes our town smell bad. Animals can eat them and have a chance of dying. In effect to littering cigarette butts, it can cause bad fires.

Plant sale

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club will host its ninth annual Labor Day Plant Sale from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday Sept. 5, at the Ferry Avenue Beach Pavilion.

A variety of shade and sun tolerant perennials and other garden plantings will be offered along with miscellaneous garden items many of which have been donated by area nurseries and businesses.

Master gardeners will be present to answer questions and provide gardening information.

The Charlevoix Evening Garden Club, a member of the Michigan Garden Clubs, Inc., was organized in 1998.

The Club maintains the gardens at the "Welcome to Charlevoix The Beautiful" entrance signs on M-66, and U.S. 31 North and South.

The pondless waterfall feature at the Charlevoix Public Library Children Garden and the xeriscape garden at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport entrance sign were co-sponsored, designed and constructed by the Club.

These two gardens and a portion of the Depot Heritage Garden are also maintained by the members.

Meetings are at 7 p.m. the second Tuesday of the month and membership is open.

Meetings consist of an informational program related to gardening and landscaping topics followed by a business meeting.

For additional information please call Margaret at 547-5199.

Hi-tech teacher training

Eight area teachers recently completed a four-day institute on technology in the classroom.

Participants included: Shelly Novotny, Charlevoix Middle School; Kris Rasmussen, Charlevoix Northwest Academy.

The institute was held by Top-of-the-Mitt, Michigan State University's satellite of the Red Cedar National Writing Project, hosted by North Central Michigan College. Now in its fourth year, the Petoskey satellite program is part of a $22 million federally funded national grant started in 1974.

This special outreach tech institute encourages the use of new digital literacies in area classrooms. Teachers learned how to use specialized educational software ranging from blogs and voice animation to digital and video editing, as well as other social networking programs designed to enhance student classroom learning. They will meet again in October to share successful technology experiences.

"Over 30 years of research supports the belief that 'teachers teaching teachers' is the most powerful and effective professional development that exists in American education," said satellite director Toby Kahn-Loftus of East Jordan and Western Michigan University. Teacher consultants working with polleys in the tech institute were Top-of-the-Mitt co-director Stasha Simon and Suzanne Nayback of the Public Schools of Petoskey, and Ken Winter of North Central Michigan College. Cernudo, also NCMC Information Systems Manager, assisted technology usage.

Nayback also serves as director of another summer Top-of-the-Mitt program, the Spartan Writing Camp North that was launched three years ago for children ages 8 to 10.

Auxilliary Coast Guard hosts open house

From 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Sept. 4, the USCG Auxiliary will hold an open house at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station.

Anyone interested in the Coast Guard or Boating is welcome.

You can find out what the Auxiliary is all about, what they do to help keep boating safe and to meet local Auxiliary members.

You can participate in boating safety and rescue skill drills and see the coast guard base and facilities first-hand.

A limited number of visitors will be able to ride on an Auxiliary Vessel.

Some of the things auxiliary members do is camaraderie with fellow members, vessel safety checks, assist local boaters in distress, patrol watching for pollution, unsafe activity, floating debris and boating hazards, qualify local buoys and navigation lights, help staff the Coast Guard communications, train to gain and advance boating and rescue skills and much much more.

The location of the Coast Guard Station is at the end of Coast Guard Drive to the right of Depot Beach, or, once on the north side of Charlevoix, simply follow signs to the USCG Station

Stupak to hold call-in town hall meetings

PROGRAMS WILL AIR LIVE ON WNNM-TV AND WCMU-TV

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) announced he will hold two televised call-in town hall meetings across the First District focusing on health care and the economy.

The programs will air live on WNNM-TV on Sept. 2 and on WCMU-TV on Sept. 3.

"These call-in town halls are an opportunity for me to address the questions and concerns of people across Northern Michigan on a number of critical issues, including health care reform and the economy," Stupak said. "No matter how many communities across the First Congressional District I have visited over the past few weeks, I cannot physically reach every one. With the help of our area's public broadcasters, these events will reach the homes of nearly every resident in the First District."

Program information is as follows:

* 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. on Sept. 2 on WNNM-TV

WHAT: Congressman Stupak will respond to questions about health care reform and the economy submitted by telephone and e-mail. WNNM-TV newsman Bill Harter will serve as the moderator for the program, which will be available to most residents of the Upper Peninsula and Northeastern Wisconsin and will originate from the WNNM-TV studios on the campus of Northern Michigan University in Marquette.

WHERE: This program will air live on WNNM-TV (Channel 13.1) with simulcast on WNNM-FM Public Radio 90 (90.1).

HOW: Individuals will be able to call the program toll-free at a number that will be provided during the program. An e-mail address will also be provided for those who wish to submit their question by e-mail. The phone bank will be staffed by NMMU political science students.

WEBCAST: The program will also be streamed live on the Internet.

The video stream can be found by visiting www.nmmu.edu/wnnm.

"These ... are an opportunity for me to address the questions and concerns of people across Northern Michigan on a number of critical issues."

U.S. CONGRESSMAN BART STUPAK

WHAT: Congressman Stupak will respond to questions about health care reform and the economy submitted by telephone and e-mail. WCMU-TV news director David Nicholas will serve as the moderator for the program, which will be available to most residents of Northern Michigan and will originate from the WCMU-TV studios on the campus of Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

WHERE: This program will air live on WCMU-TV (Channel 24) in Alpena and WCMU-TV (Channel 26) in Mount Pleasant. It will also be simulcast on WCMU-FM 89.5 in Mount Pleasant, WUCW-FM 90.1 in Bay City, WCMU-FM 91.7 in Alpena, WCMU-FM 95.7 in Oscoda, WCMU-FM 96.9 in Standish, WCMU-FM 98.3 in Sault Ste. Marie and WCMU-FM 103.9 in Harbor Springs.

HOW: Individuals will be able to call the program toll-free at a number that will be provided during the program.

An e-mail address will also be provided for those who wish to submit their question by e-mail.

Woman's joy is giving

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

On New Year's Day 2007, Elfrieda Lewitt and a friend were sitting around talking.

"We wanted to do something for cancer patients and hospitalized children," Lewitt said. "We came up with the name 'Joy 4 A Child' and that's how it started."

Her friend went on to serve the Charlevoix area with her own group, but Lewitt, the office administrator at Zion Lutheran Church a "High School Musical" or "Hanna Montana" tee shirt and a pair of shorts to each camper at Camp Quality.

They also received their choice of another toy such as a kite, a journal, puzzles, hobbles or a coloring book. Camp Quality is an annual program for children with cancer.

Joy 4 A Child is funded by Lewitt herself and by contributions from donors.

"When I was buying the tee shirts and shorts for Camp Quality, I knew I'd Joy 4 A Child also visit its nursing homes, hospitals and residences bringing gifts and visiting with patients and shut-ins.

"I remember when my grandmother was in a nursing home," said Lewitt. "She used to listen for the foot steps of someone coming to visit. That's why I want to expand Joy 4 A Child. Camp Quality is only one week out of the year."

The program has hit a few bumps since its inception, but they were nothing that Lewitt couldn't tackle with faith and perseverance.

Lewitt smiles when she remembers wondering how she would be able to find or fund the small toys and gifts, only to receive 500 Beanie Babies from a generous donor 24 hours later.

She gives them to the people that she visits as reminders that they are loved.

"I'd love to see Joy 4 A Child earn the opportunity to serve more people," Lewitt said. "If someone knows of a way that we could be of help or someone we could visit, I'd like them to think 'Hey, let's call her.' That's the sort of thing I'd like to see happen."

For more information, or to donate items on the Joy 4 A Child wish list, contact Lewitt at 347-3438, or e-mail her at frieda@comp-nor.com.

Items may be dropped off 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday at the Zion Lutheran Church, 500 West Mitchell, Petoskey.

in Petoskey, has made it her business to see that Joy 4 A Child plays a part in the lives of all area children battling cancer and others.

This summer, Joy 4 A Child brought a stuffed toy, have to find them for a good price," she said. "And I did." She laughed, and added, "I was to ever to play and win the Lotto, I'd do much more for the kids and seniors then."

Keep Your Money Working Hard for You

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

Labor Day is upon us. We honor the contributions of working men and women — in other words, people just like you. Of course, it doesn't have to be Labor Day for you to be aware that you work hard for your money — and you'd like to know that your money is working just as hard for you.

How can you keep your money employed? Consider these suggestions:

• Keep your money working for the future. The financial markets have been through some difficult times over the past two years. As a result, many people pulled money from their investments and stuck it in savings accounts — some of which paid around one percent interest — or Treasury securities — which may have paid even less. While the need to feel "secure" is understandable, it can also be detrimental to long-term financial goals, such as a comfortable retirement. To help achieve these goals, try to own an array of quality investments that are appropriate for your specific objectives, risk tolerance and time horizon.

• Don't interrupt your money while it's working. You want your investments working to help you achieve your long-term goals. But this work can be interrupted by short-term needs, such as expensive car repairs, large doctor's bills or costly new appliances. To avoid dipping into your investments — and thereby reducing their growth potential — to pay for these needs, you'll want to establish an emergency fund containing six to 12 months' worth of living expenses, kept in a liquid account. Also, if you know you're going to need a large amount of money within the next few years — perhaps for college tuition, a wedding or a long vacation — you may want to remove some of your investments from the ups-and-downs of the financial markets and place the money in vehicles that can protect your principal.

• Have your money work for you — not your creditors. Too much debt — specifically, too much of the wrong types of debt — is both a cause and a consequence of the economic malaise we've experienced. Try to reduce or consolidate your debts. For example, despite all the talk about a "credit freeze," many reputable lenders are eager to help qualified borrowers refinance their mortgages. And since mortgage rates are still low, a refinance could free up hundreds of dollars per month for you — money that you could put to work investing for your long-term goals.

• Make it easier for your money to work harder. By making these moves, you can help your money work harder for you. For starters, defer enough of your salary into your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan to earn the employer's match, if one is offered. Here's another step to consider: Reinvest any dividends you may receive from your investments back into those investments. You probably won't miss the money because you never actually had it in your pocket, and by automatically reinvesting dividends, you'll increase the number of shares you own.

Labor Day can be an enjoyable respite for you — but try not to let your money take a day off.

CCCF grants available

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is inviting nonprofit organizations, educational institutions, and municipalities who are in need of funding to submit grant requests in support of their projects.

Programs chosen for funding must serve residents of Charlevoix County, meet an urgent need, or enrich life for local residents in some way.

The deadline for grant requests is Oct. 1.

Grant applications are available by calling the community foundation office.

All applicants must call and discuss their proposals in advance.

Foundation staff is available to offer advice and assistance to organizations interested in applying for funds.

The funds are held in permanent endowment, so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County, now and for generations to come.

For more information about the grant-making process, establishing a fund or making a gift, please contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI, 49727, by phone at (231) 536-2440, or online at www.c3f.org.

Possible Entergy name change

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Entergy officials say transferring nuclear reactors to a new company will not affect the Hayes Township nuclear waste site.

While on hold until at least early next year, Entergy Corporation of New Orleans is forming Enxus Energy Corporation, a publicly traded stand-alone nuclear energy provider based out of Jackson, Miss.

"The spin-off for Palisades obviously will affect Big Rock Point (but) it will not change anything," said Mark Savage, communications manager at Entergy's Palisades power plant in Coventry.

The New York Public Service Commission is holding the deal up pending Entergy's ability to prove the plan is financially viable since three of the nuclear plants are located in New York. The James A. Fitzpatrick station in Oswego County and two reactors at Indian Point Energy Center in Westchester County.

The other three power plants include the aforementioned Palisades plant in Michigan, one in Vermont, and one in Massachusetts.

"It basically is a name change only," Savage said. "So, security personnel would stay the same, the ownership of the facility will change and basically the only thing people will see is a change in signage on the site."

Entergy took ownership of the Big Rock site from Consumers Power in spring, 2007.

Consumers sold the Palisades plant to Entergy for $380 million at the same time Entergy took over. As a part of the Palisades deal, Entergy received $30 million to oversee the 107-acre Big Rock waste facility.

Savage said the transfer could happen as early as spring, 2010.

Nearly $3 million in EJ water, sewer loans

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) announced the city of East Jordan will receive $2,375,000 for two projects to make necessary investments in water and wastewater infrastructure.

The loans are being distributed through the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development program.

"This funding will help ensure East Jordan residents have access to safe drinking water while protecting the surrounding environment from untreated wastewater," Stupak said. "These are the types of infrastructure projects that will help create jobs and strengthen rural communities in Northern Michigan for years to come." The projects will help to provide safe drinking water, improved wastewater treatment systems, and environmental protections for the city of East Jordan.

The projects are: • $1,700,000 to make improvements to the municipal water system. This project will replace about 9,000 feet of water main in various sections of the city.

• $675,000 to make improvements to the existing sanitary sewer system. This project will extend the sanitary sewer system, including construction of 4,100 feet of gravity sewer with a new lift station.

Joy swings Hickory Hundred for youth golf program

The Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association announces all winners in this golf event.

Someone should contact the Guinness World Record people.

Marty Joy, teaching professional at the Belvedere Club, may have set a golf record.

No, it has nothing to do with his golf scores, although they are remarkable when you consider everything.

Joy recently completed the fundraiser for the Charlevoix County Junior Golf program when he took pledges for the 100 holes he played in a single day.

The record may be in that he played in a remarkable time-of-eight hours and used Hickory

Clubs and dress attire from the 20s and 30s.

His 6:30 a.m. round was a 73.

His highest round followed as the greens begin drying out and he scored an 80.

He followed with scores of 76, 76, and 79 and finished in a flurry carding a one under par for the final 10 holes.

"I enjoyed the challenge, and it was exciting when a gallery started following me for the final 19 holes. It was the first time I had played that many holes in a day with my 'hickory clubs' and I was pleased to score that well as the day wore on," Joy said.

He thanked his cart drivers Tom Bickersteth, Bill Baten, Jim Grant, Bob Heath, Bruce Herbert and Stuart Goldblatt.

He also saluted the many Belvedere Club members that cheered him on and also made monetary pledges.

"Marty's great golf swing makes up for the fact that his clubs lack the technology enjoyed by today's golfers. His scores are amazing considering how fast he played his 100 holes, averaging just less than 5 minutes a hole. Our scholarship program will reap the good fortune of Marty's effort," said Dean Davenport, Program Director.

Pledges still may be made to the Junior Golf Program by calling Davenport at 547-6433 or Marty Joy at 547-2611.

Alumni hammer alma mater

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

In high school they called themselves "The Crew."

They worked together on projects in their building trades class and formed friendships based upon their mutual interest in woodworking, and recently, the six friends reunited for a job that took them back to school.

"There were a lot of memories of the fun we had," said former Charlevoix High student Trevor Cole. "Especially in the construction room at the high school. We'd all spent a lot of time there and it was cool to see the changes — like the lumber storage area — made to that room."

2008 grads Corey Gotshall, brothers Cliff and Kyle Jones, Cole and Jake Hunt, along with Josh Wolletz of the class of 2009, worked this summer as carpenters, renovating the elementary, middle school and high school buildings.

Hunt, Cole and Kyle Jones are all entering their sophomore year as construction management majors at Ferris State University.

Gotshall and Cliff Jones are sophomores with the same major at Michigan State University. Wolletz is a freshman this year at Ferris, also majoring in the field.

"It was great for us to come back and have the opportunity to use what we learned," said Kyle Jones. "I took a lot of woodworking and construction classes. It's just something that I've always liked to do. I really key on seeing what I've accomplished at the end of the day."

He added. "There aren't a whole lot of jobs where you can do that."

Carlson's Home Improvements, subcontracted by the project's general contractor, Integrity Construction, hired The Crew.

"I was lucky enough to have Brian Certi (Charlevoix High building trades teacher) involve me in the program by recommending some of his former students," said Norman Carlson, Jr. "Every one of them did a great job. I'd love to have them work for me for however long they'd want to."

Gotshall said, "It was kind of weird going back, especially to the middle school and elementary. We did a lot of demo and put up all of the light boards and smart boards."

Hunt recalled his experience in middle school when he took a cabinet shop class.

"It was my eighth-grade year and I just fell in love with it," he said. "We talked about how cool it was to be able to work this summer on the schools where we got our education."

For most, it's only a fleeting thought. Just an idle fantasy concocted in protest to spending a beautiful day cooped up in a classroom. But Josh was able to live the dream.

"It was really fun to demo the walls in the high school," he said.

The construction projects the former students worked on were part of the $5-plus million bond approved by voters last year to overhaul buildings, replace buses, upgrade technology and increase energy efficiency.

Former Charlevoix High School building trades class student Corey Gotshall works on a window casing outside Charlevoix Middle School recently. Gotshall is one of several building trades students who now work as carpenters for Carlson's Home Improvements.

Kiwanis: 75 years of community outreach

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

"Serving the children of the world" — to them it's more than a mere motto.

Now getting ready to celebrate 75 years of Kiwanis in Charlevoix, Kiwanians reflect on the organization's decades of accomplishments and what Kiwanis means to them.

"I've been a member for five years, and from the beginning I've been so impressed with how will all the members are to participate and volunteer when you ask them," said Charlevoix Kiwanis president Carolyn Navarre.

With their focus on helping children near and far, the Charlevoix Kiwanis continues to support youth outreach services like BASES Teen Center, Camp Quality, Camp Daggett, Charlevoix Area Community Pool, Charlevoix Public Library, Junior Achievement, Bergmann Center, Special Olympics, Toys for Tots and more.

Kiwanis member Ed Buday said his group's heritage is steeped in community involvement.

"Kiwanis is derivative of an Indian word that means to make noise; to let people know who you are," Buday said. "And that's what we want to do: Let people know who we are and what we do and that we're here to help."

Charlevoix Kiwanis was formed in 1915 by 28 community leaders.

"Kiwanis was founded in Detroit by a group of businessmen who wanted to provide the community with service and enhance business relationships," said member Bill Lovette. "From that beginning we're now in over 80 countries, and what I find particularly interesting and noteworthy is they're all part of Kiwanis."

International. They all have the same mission whether they're in Indonesia or India or Indiana."

Navarre said anyone interested in joining Kiwanis is welcome to attend a meeting.

Kiwanis meets for lunch at noon each Tuesday in the lower level of the Westhervane Restaurant in Charlevoix.

In celebration of their 75 years of service, Kiwanis is hosting an evening of entertainment and dining from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Thursday Sept. 10 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

In addition to a catered dinner there will be music by Churchill Drive.

Early 1900s Kiwanis members give eager school children rides in the big wooden Kiwanis sleds. For nearly 75 years Kiwanians have been reaching out to area youth to help them with everything from Christmas presents to reading.

Miracle Heater, or Just Hot Air?

Some claim to slash your heating bill up to 50%!

INDIANAPOLIS, IN - Chances are you've seen certain "Miracle Heaters" being hawked in your local papers claiming to "cut heating bills 50%". Hard to believe? One Indiana company is now offering a TRII trial to new customers who want to try the heater for themselves. If you've always wanted to test one of these miracle heaters, now is the time to try it. However, only ask that you pay for the postage. If you like it you have the option to purchase it, if not simply return it and you owe nothing. You have nothing to lose. Call 1-888-978-4439 now to claim yours. Quantities extremely limited.

Ferry horn policy reverted

By Steve Zucker News-Review Staff Writer

After a group of nearby residents made enough noise of their own, Charlevoix County officials have reversed course on the Ironton Ferry horn-sounding policy.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said a large group of Ironton-area residents turned out at the Wednesday, Aug. 26, county board of commissioner's meeting to sound-off on the county's recently-instituted policy of requiring ferry operators to sound the vessel's horn each time it departs from shore.

The commotion began a few weeks ago when someone — Schneider says he doesn't think anyone knows who — called U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix complaining that the ferry was not sounding its horn each time it departed, as required under U.S. Coast Guard's Inland Lakes Navigation Rule #34.

After some investigation and discussion with Coast Guard officials about the possibility of an exemption for the ferry, the board's civil council, county prosecutor John Jarema, recommended that ferry operators follow the law and sound the horn at each departure until such time that the law is changed or a waiver is granted for the county.

Previously, ferry operators only sounded the horn in foggy conditions or in the case of imminent danger.

Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Chairman Chris Christensen said after hearing the residents' complaints, the board came to a consensus to direct ferry supervisor Vance Wood to "operate the ferry in the safest manner possible" and suggested that he return to the previous horn-blowing policy. The direction was not in the form of a motion.

Jarema said the board reverted to the previous horn-sounding policy against his advice.

Doug Way, who is both the chairman of the Charlevoix County Road Commission and serves on the county's transportation authority which oversees the ferry's operation, said a call was placed to the on-duty ferry operator after Wednesday's meeting and the every-trip horn-sounding policy was immediately placed on mute.

As justification for its direction, Christensen said board members pointed to the fact that the county has an appeal pending on the matter; that the ferry has operated for decades on the old policy without problems or previous complaints; and concerns that sounding the horn with each crossing (sometimes as often as every few minutes) will desensitize boaters to its sound and decrease its effectiveness as an emergency warning device.

Christensen said the board also put the Ironton residents on notice: If the county's request for a waiver or change in the law is denied, the county will be forced to once again blow the horn for each crossing.

This view of the Ironton Narrows from the rear of the Ironton Ferry shows the nearly 600-foot stretch the ferry traverses up to 60 trips each day. The United States Coast Guard rules and regulations demand the ferry's horn be blown before each trip, to the annoyance of nearby residents.

Charlevoix Public Library Booktalkers is a group of readers who love to read different books each month and then gather to discuss them.

The Booktalkers meet twice per quarter at 6 p.m. in the Armstrong Conference Room of the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St.

New members are welcome.

Sept. 14, The Shadow of the Wind, by Carlos Ruiz Zafon will be discussed. This coming-of-age tale of a young boy who, through the magic of a single book, finds a purpose greater than himself and a hero in a man he's never met "spins a web of intrigue so thick that it ensnares the reader from the very first line."

Nov. 9, The Booktalkers meet again to discuss Real Life and Liars, by Kristina Riggle. This is a novel set in Charlevoix where the author has visited her grandparents.

The staff at the Charlevoix Library will also be offering two other book discussion events this fall. They will be participating in the "Great Michigan, Read" community discussion, 6:30 p.m., Oct. 13. This is a community reading program for the entire state, featuring the memoir Stealing Buddha's Dinner, by Grand Rapids native Bich Minh Nguyen. The library will also once again participate in the C.S. Lewis festival by offering a discussion of The Four Loves, 6:30 p.m., Oct. 21.

For more information about this or other library events, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call 237-7340.

Hearing on rec' plan

County to look at four-year recreation priorities is holding "The Walk" is at 8 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 26, in the Historic Bayview Resort Community, Petoskey.

The Walk is at 10 a.m. and registration fee is $20.

The Walk 2009 is right around the corner. Recruit a team, create a name and register. You can even set up a personalized fundraising page where friends and family members can support you and The Walk by making credit card pledges.

Each registered participant who raises $100 or more will be eligible for an official 2009 The Walk T-shirt and prizes. Your $20 registration fee will go toward the $100.

Register online at www.leukemiainchicago.org, or call (800) 825-2536. On-site registration will also be available. Lunch will be available to all participants immediately following the walk.

Comments will be taken on the plan which commissioners seek to use as a guide for future recreational development.

"Basically what it does is it lines up, for the next four years, what the priorities are for the county," said Charlevoix County Planner Larry Sullivan. "The main priorities ... are first to acquire lands to increase recreational opportunities across the county with emphasis on large parcels of property adjacent to recreational parks as they become available."

Other priorities in the plan include acquiring easements and outright ownership along areas where the plan is recommending non-motorized trails in the future.

Sullivan said commissioners have no plans to seek additional funding through local taxes or millages, but rather would seek to use existing recreational grants and other funding sources.

The hearing will occur in the Pine Lake Room located in the basement of the Charlevoix County Building at 301 State St.

This meeting is open to the public.

A copy of the proposed recreational plan can be found at www.charlevoix-county.org or by calling

Montessori, NWA schools merger approved

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Northwest Academy, a tuition-free public school, and Montessori-based Charlevoix Children's House have announced a partnership that will offer Charlevoix students another option.

"By becoming a partner with Northwest Academy, Charlevoix Children's House Montessori becomes a public school," said Northwest Academy Chief Administrative Officer and Director of Development, Gary Stutzman. "It's a privilege for us. We're in a position to offer outstanding quality education."

No longer will parents have to pay nearly $6,000 to send their child to Montessori kindergarten class, though the pre-school is still fee based.

"My experience with the Montessori Philosophy began 31 years ago when my son entered the first Montessori class in the City of Charlevoix," said Diane Dreyer, administrator of Charlevoix Children's House. "My children's confidence and self-worth grew with each year in Montessori," Dreyer added. "I am thrilled about the partnership of Charlevoix Children's House and Northwest Academy. This will enable

Coast Guard to county: Ironton Ferry must sound off or else

BY STEVE ZUCKER NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

After a little more than a week of relative quiet in the Ironton Narrows, Ironton Ferry resumed using the vessel's horn at each crossing under orders of the U.S. Coast Guard.

At Thursday's Charlevoix County Planning Commission meeting, commission chairman Denny Jason informed the rest of the board that the ferry resumed sounding its horn on each departure at about 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Jason said officials with the U.S. Coast Guard in Grand Haven informed the county that the ferry must comply with a navigation rule that requires vessels to sound their horns for six seconds each time they leave a dock, regardless of the county's pending application for a waiver of the rule.

For many years the operators of the ferry have used the horn only in very poor visibility or to warn other vessels in the event of an emergency situation.

However, a few weeks ago, an anonymous person called the U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix to report that the ferry was not sounding its horn on each departure as required by the rule.

After some research by county officials, the county board of commissioners initially instructed the ferry operators to use the horn as required by the rule.

At the commission's Aug. 26 meeting a large group of Ironton residents complained to the board about the disturbance the ferry's horn creates — especially during busy times when it can sound every few minutes. After hearing their complaints, the commission suggested that ferry operators return to the previous emergency-only horn sounding practice, at least until they received an answer on their request for a waiver of the rule.

Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Chairman Chris Christensen said on Monday that the commissioners put the Ironton residents on notice that the county would be forced to return to following the horn-sounding rule if its request for a waiver was denied.

Crush raises more than $64,000 for Children's Leukemia Foundation

More than 100 people attended the first CRUSH Northern Michigan 2009 Wine & Food Classic Aug. 15, and more than $64,000 was raised to benefit Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan, a statewide agency whose mission is to help families cope with leukemia, lymphoma, and related blood disorders. The money raised will support more than 40 Michigan families for an entire year. Hosted at the private Boysie Falls home of Kathryn Kircher, the event offered the novice and connoisseur alike the opportunity to savor the very best food and wine while enjoying the timeless beauty and charm of Northern Michigan. "CRUSH Northern Michigan was a success in every sense of the word," said William Seklar, President and CEO of Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan. "We couldn't have asked for a more picturesque setting than Kathryn Kircher's home on the Boysie River, and we're so thankful to everyone who made this great event possible. We continue to be humbled by the generosity shown by our guests and supporters, and we look forward to hosting CRUSH Northern Michigan again next year." Other honored guests included Vicki and Tom Celani, Proprietors, Celani Family Vineyards; Jeremy Kittelson, Executive Chef, Restaurant Avondale in Vail, Colo.; and Ron Edwards, Master Sommelier, CRUSH Northern Michigan was based off of the CRUSH Birmingham event that debuted last year, also presented by the Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan. This year's event is scheduled for Oct. 3 at The Townsend Hotel in Birmingham. For more information, visit www.crush2009.com or www.leukemiamichigan.org.

Vehicle rollover

At approximately 9:50 p.m. on Saturday Aug. 22, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office responded to a vehicle roll-over on Black Road in Charlevoix just south of Klooster Road.

Chadwick York Allen, 30, was traveling southbound driving a 2006 Chevrolet pickup on Black Road when he lost control of his vehicle rolling multiple times before the truck landed on its side in a ditch.

Passenger Grant Edward Meggison, 29, of Charlevoix, was extricated from the truck by the City of Charlevoix Fire Department using the jaws of life.

Meggison was transported to the Charlevoix Area Hospital and treated for his injuries by the City of Charlevoix EMS who also assisted in the accident.

This incident remains under investigation; alcohol is thought to be a factor.

all children to benefit from the Montessori experience." Stutzman stated that no financial consideration from Northwest Academy was involved in facilitating the agreement. The Montessori classes will be funded by the state foundation grant for public education.

"It was simply a common-sense educational decision we made," Stutzman said. "I approached Charlevoix Children's House a year and a half ago with this proposal. These are tough times. You can compare what's happening in the auto industry with what's happening to education in this country."

Curriculum Director and Literacy Programs Director of Northwest Academy, Phoebe Gohs, calls the Montessori program "another choice" for parents.

"While the Montessori method differs in how students are taught, the content remains the same," said Gohs, who also teaches first and second grade at Northwest Academy. "As Curriculum Director, I want to assure prospective parents that our students in the Montessori kindergarten will still master the state Grade Level Content Expectations that they have consistently met in the multi-age classroom at Northwest Academy."

Northwest Academy's curriculum is based on the standards adopted by the State of Michigan and is held accountable for these standards through Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) testing and the No Child Left Behind Act.

"I am very excited about coming together with Northwest Academy to create an ultimate educational opportunity for children in this area," said Charlevoix Children's House Director Molly Arnold. "This partnership allows us to share the Montessori method with a larger range of families. We will continue to see the amazing results of allowing children to grow and learn in an environment that promotes both the academics and many lifelong skills such as responsibility and self-confidence."

Citing the progressive impact of both schools in the community, Stutzman also conceded that any change is usually met with opposition. He believes that the hybrid will prove to enhance the way that education is delivered to children.

"We have put together what can become an educational juggernaut for this area, not just Charlevoix," said Stutzman. "Grand Rapids Public Schools sponsor a Montessori program K-12 and are one of only two in the country that have a high school. We could very well do the same thing in the future with Northwest Academy."

Stutzman called public school academies the "change agent for public school reform."

"There are many people in the traditional educational fields that lay blame on the Charter Schools for being the reason that the public schools are in trouble with declining enrollments, etcetera," he said. "Charter schools give students and families an option for pursuing their educational opportunities."

Stutzman added, "The fact that Northwest Academy and Charlevoix Children's House have come together shows that we are able to think outside the box and move forward with something that will really be great for the children of this community."

Camp Daggett presents Eco Challenge

At 1 p.m. on Sunday Sept. 20, 15 teams of six individuals will compete in the first Eco Challenge Event at the Camp Daggett Adventure Center (CDAC).

This light-hearted competition, a fundraiser for the Adventure Center, will consist of teams working together to complete an Eco Challenge course including a canoeing obstacle course, adventure ropes course challenges, and more.

The competition is not restricted to the extreme athlete; any individual or organization can put together a team to participate.

Teams can be a mix of six men and women age 18 and over. The cost to participate is a minimum of $50 per person, or $300 per team.

Teams can invite other "spirit team members" to pledge support for their team.

The team that raises the most money will receive an award along with many other awards of recognition during the closing ceremony.

To date, there are still openings for five teams.

"The Camp Daggett Adventure Center offers adventure education programs for participants of all ages and populations," said Karen Manetti, adventure center director. "Our programs build self confidence, enhance self esteem, promote teamwork and develop leadership qualities in our participants. The Eco Challenge teams will experience new challenges, in a surprise course, and learn a lot about themselves, leadership and cooperation."

The Adventure Center is open year-round for groups, organizations and businesses.

Teams can pre-register for the Eco Challenge by calling Karen Manetti at (231) 347-9742 extension 117 for a registration form.

The event begins at 1 p.m. with team registration, with the competition beginning at 1:30 p.m.

The event will come to a close with a barbecue dinner at 5:30 p.m. followed by the closing ceremonies and awards presentations.

"Come for the challenge, come for the fun," said Manetti. "Teams and their supporters will have a great afternoon, enjoy the natural beauty of Walloon Lake, and experience all that Camp Daggett has to offer, all while raising money to support our programs. It's a win-win for everyone."

Puddin' on the Ritz: The return of Lucian

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwidi

Lucian and Dora have arrived for a visit of an unspecified duration. There is a 14-pound frozen turkey in one of the two industrial-sized coolers that they've pulled from their filled-to-bursting mini-van. "I've cleared my desk at work," Dora announces. "We can stay 'til we stink!" "Oh, good. Let me help you with that steamer trunk."

Once they've settled into the guest room, Lucian commandeers the CD player, cranking the volume until the windows rattle. "What a great band," he says when Foghat's "Fool for the City" blasts from the speakers. "What's for dinner?"

"I made pizza with grilled veggies and crumbled bacon, and..." "Bacon?" Lucian scowls. "I don't eat bacon. You put bacon on the pizza?"

My husband looks at Lucian—all 280 pounds of him—and grins. "Really, Lucian? No bacon?"

"Nothing with a face, my man, except turkey and chicken. Also fish."

"Well, I made another kind," I say. "It's all vegetables. It's got feta and mushrooms..."

"I hate mushrooms."

Wait a minute. I feel a tiny surge of... what is it? I've felt it before. It's been a while, but I remember the sting, the moment of odd hopeful dizziness when I think, optimistically, that I'm going to black out. Oh, yes. I remember this feeling. I want to slap Lucian until he cries.

"Sorry, Lu-Lu." (He hates to be called Lu-Lu. Who wouldn't?) "I made things I thought you'd love. What old hippie doesn't love mushrooms?"

"Nobody asked me. You made things that you like and just assumed I'd like them, too."

"Yeah, because you're not nine."

"I brought things you like, Lucian," says Dora. The Peacekeeper. She looks back and forth between Lucian and me. "Don't worry."

"But I want pizza," Lucian says. He narrows his eyes. "Without bacon or mushrooms."

"You can pick off the mushrooms," I tell him through clamped molars. "Or just have salad."

At dinner, Lucian piles shiteakes on the edge of his plate and talks about what his life will be like when he wins the lottery.

"I'll use it to buy myself a career in music," he says. "I'll have my own studio and make albums and tour." "I suppose we'll never see you again," my husband says. "You'll be busy with your new better friends."

"Nah, I'll take care of you guys. You know that. Not if I only win a couple of million, though. That's just enough for Dora and me to fix up the house - add another bedroom. You understand. But if it's 15 million or more, you're covered."

Dessert is another disappointment. "The frosting's good," Lucian says. He begrudgingly dissects it from the cake with his fork, growing thoughtful for a moment while the sugar dissolves in his mouth. "I like puddin'," he announces as if someone had asked him to name his favorite thing. As though just the thought of it is ecstasy.

I snort and redirect a mouthful of wine into my nasal cavities. Puddin'? The word is fat and absurdly joyous. I picture Lucian on a blind date, expressing his proclivity for pudding without a 'g' to a nervous woman who is checking her watch.

One of Lucian's great talents has always been his unconscious ability to surprise me into appreciating the moment. The ridiculous and the sublime are two sides of the same coin. I have to remember to stop struggling.

"Draw a cartoon, Lucian," I say when the dishes are cleared. "Draw yourself saying, 'I like puddin'.'" And he does.

Eventually, perhaps sometime before the snow flies, Dora and Lucian will pack up the van and disappear down the road I miss them already.

ART BY CREIGHTON "LUCIAN" HOLDEN

Christine Gwidi's friend Lucian depicts himself in this self-portrait on a first date proclaiming his love of puddin'.

Ear looks at plant growth

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

How plants managed to grow was a mystery to people for centuries. Animals grew by eating food. What did plants eat? The first person to suggest an answer was the Greek philosopher Aristotle, about 300 B.C., who did not do experiments, but simply observed and reasoned.

Every farmer knew in that long ago time that repeated growing of crops on the same land exhausted the soil and plants would no longer grow well on it.

Aristotle concluded that plants must use soil for food.

They somehow converted the humus of the earth into plant material.

His conclusion was so convincing that it was accepted mostly without contradiction for 2,000 years.

Few explanations have that kind of longevity.

In the mid-1600s a Dutch man named Jean Baptiste van Helmont performed what has been described as the first experiment in the history of science.

It is much like the annual experiment here in Charlevoix with the Petunia baskets along Bridge street. Van Helmont carefully weighed out 200 pounds of soil, placed it in a tub, planted a small willow twig in it and covered the soil with a thin layer of lead to exclude any dust that might come by.

For five years he added only rain water to the tub.

The willow twig thrived and at the end of five years weighed 164 pounds.

The soil, carefully removed from the roots and tub still weighed 198 pounds and 14 ounces. Van Helmont concluded that plants clearly did not make themselves out of soil.

They must make themselves out of water by some yet to be understood mechanism.

Our Petunia baskets clearly weigh more at the end of summer than they do at the beginning, and we have only added water - amazing.

Van Helmont's explanation was so good it was accepted as truth for more than a century.

But his approach of measuring everything would finally turn out to be his undoing.

In the early 18th century a Reverend Stephen Hales in England noted that plants, like people and other animals, perspired.

They evaporated water into the air. He carefully measured how much water plants took from the soil and how much they perspired off into the air.

To his surprise, the amounts were very nearly the same. Plants must not be making themselves out of water.

They must be making themselves out of air, unlikely as that seemed at the time.

Within the next 50 years, Hales' explanation was also seen to be incomplete.

And we finally could conclude on the basis of many experiments done by many people, that plants make themselves out of light, a special kind of air called carbon dioxide, a tiny amount of water and an extremely small amount of material extracted from the soil.

All those early observers and experimenters were partly right. We now know that plants produce the oxygen we animals need to survive.

And it only took about 2,000 years for that understanding to develop. Science, as they say, marches on.

It just does not march as fast as we might like or appreciate.

Next time you look at the burgeoning summer growth in our Petunia baskets, give a thought to the history of our understanding of that remarkable set of processes we now call photosynthesis: the processes by which plants make themselves out of things as nearly immaterial as light and air.

Char-Em kicks off annual Day of Caring

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The Char-Em United Way's 2009-2010 fundraising campaign is underway.

"This is going to be an extremely challenging year in which to raise funds. However, with the economy in such bad shape, the need for the programs which United Way supports is greater than ever."

MARTHA LANCASTER, CHAR-EM UNITED WAY DIRECTOR

In 2008, the group provided over $200,000 in Community Investment Allocations and designated donations to 35 local health and human service agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet County.

"Our campaign theme this year is 'Live United: Give, Advocate, Volunteer,' which encourages people to become engaged in many ways and create lasting change in our community," said Board President Bob Carlile.

Co-chairing the campaign are Dale Hull, of Dale Hull and Associates, and Joanne Curtis, Financial Advisor with Raymond James Financial Services in Charlevoix.

"In this country, we have a tradition of helping people — that is the United Way," Hull said. "Philanthropy is unique in America. We give, advocate, and volunteer in impressive amounts. The programs which United Way supports in our community are so important."

On Sept. 17, the organization's Day of Caring presents an opportunity for members of the community of our Board of Directors, members have already made their pledges."

The Frey Foundation is one of Michigan's largest family foundations.

Grants are provided primarily to non-profit organizations in western Michigan for projects to enhance children's development, protect natural resources, promote the arts, and expand philanthropic and civic action.

"This is going to be an extremely challenging year in which to raise funds," said Char-Em United Way Executive Director, Martha Lancaster. "However, with the economy in such bad shape, the need for the programs which United Way supports is greater than ever."

She added, "We know that many people won't be able to contribute as much as they have in the past, so we need to expand our campaigns into additional workplaces, increase the percentage of employees donating in each, and also increase our leadership, residential and small to volunteer for a variety of projects. Help is needed to perform tasks for seniors, church groups, Little Traverse Conservancy, Planned Parenthood, the YMCA and more. A complete list of projects, along with information for those wishing to participate, is available on the Char-Em United Way's Web site: www.charemunitedway.org

"We're excited to announce our campaign goal of $333,000, an 8.5 percent increase over what was pledged last year," Carlile said. "The Frey Foundation is once again offering us a $20,000 challenge grant when we reach that goal. I am especially pleased to be able to say that 100 percent

business mail fundraising."

The Char-Em United Way campaign activities begin in early September with presentations and mailings to local businesses and mailings to families and individuals in Charlevoix and Emmet County. Many employers offer their staff the option of payroll deductions, and donors can also contribute by credit card and online. Funds raised through the annual campaign support health and human service agencies in the community.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts presented the first annual Barbara MacArthur Environmental Recognition Award this year on June 26.

Conceived as a tribute to the memory of MacArthur's tireless efforts to focus awareness upon local and global peace and environmental concerns, the award was given to Lake Charlevoix Association in acknowledgment and appreciation of their role as guardians of Lake Charlevoix.

"We're thrilled to be the recipients of the Barbara MacArthur award," said Dan Mishler of Lake Charlevoix Association. "I think that's such an honor."

For 17 years, Lake Charlevoix Association has annually rented the Beaver Islander ferry for two days to take four groups of middle school students on a half-day educational exploration of Lake Charlevoix. Water samples are collected and insects, fish and wildlife indigenous to the lake are observed and discussed.

The objective is to foster appreciation for the beauty of the area while instilling a sense of responsibility for the environment.

"I approve of the first recipient," said Bruce MacArthur of the commemorative honoring his late wife. "I think it's well deserved. I'm aware of their mission and it's commendable."

Barbara died on Dec. 14, 2008.

"Barbara came to our grand opening in June 2008," said Kathryn Lobenherz, president of the board of directors of Charlevoix Circle of Arts. "She was frail, but very excited and supportive. She said, 'You should do a recycled art show,' and gave us a Bonsai tree made from old metal coat hangers as inspiration."

In April, Charlevoix Circle of Arts mounted the Earth Day show featuring recycled art. The Bonsai tree remains as a loving reminder of MacArthur and motivated the group's decision to create the annual award in her honor.

"She was an activist 30 hours a day. She was so amazing," said friend and fellow activist Jo Anne Beemon. "Barbara had magnets made up that said 'Water is Life.' And Lake Charlevoix Association is a fabulous group. I think she would be pleased to be recognized as a conservationist."

Beemon and MacArthur were members together of the Women in Black movement.

They stood with others on the corner of Bridge Street and Clinton Avenue every Friday, dressed in black clothing, as an appeal for an end to the war in Iraq.

"The first thing about Barbara is that she was a gentle lady. Kind and determined to make the world a better place for everybody," Beemon said. "She never raised her voice or was ever anything but polite and caring, but she was one of the most radical women I've known."

Beemon recalled that MacArthur chalked peace messages on the sidewalk and wrote "End War" on the bottom of tiny toy soldiers that she would then disperse around town.

"Barbara was elegant and she sold the ideas of disarmament and a Department of Peace and environmental responsibility over tea served in delicate cups with cookies or beautiful cake," said Beemon. "And I miss her."

OBITUARIES

Frances "Kay" Themm: April 20, 1935 - Sept. 4, 2009

Mrs. Frances "Kay" Themm, 74, of Fruitland Park, Fla. passed away on Friday morning, Sept. 4, 2009.

Kay was born Frances "Kay" Cunningham in Charlevoix on April 20, 1935, to Albert "Mick" Cunningham and Helen Grace (Shores) Cunningham.

She attended the Charlevoix School System, graduating in 1952; then went to tele-type school in Chicago.

She married Winston Dale Mathews in Sept. 1953. To that union Dale L. Mathews was born in June, 1954 at the Air Force Base in Puerto Rico.

Mr. Mathews died in a plane crash in June 1956 while living in Almont, MI. She and her son Dale then returned to Charlevoix where she was a cashier in the Edward's IGA Grocery store. Kay and Charles F. "Chuck" Themm were married on July 25, 1964 at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix by Rev. Harold Kohn. Kay and Chuck settled in Imlay City, MI where Chuck was a finance officer-banker until they moved in June, 1969 to Island View, Charlevoix.

They raised their three children, Dale, Cynthia and Geoffrey with the views of Lake Michigan. Kay, Chuck and Cynthia moved to Orange Blossom Gardens (now the Villages) in October 1987.

Kay worked at Sharon's Hallmark for three years, then the Pro-Shop at the Country Club Hills and on Bichara Blvd., The Villages. When that retail store closed and became Banner Mercantile in 1999 she continued her association with that "Signature" Store, working recently on the first floor of the LaReina Building.

Kay was featured with the full page photo and story in the August's The Villages

Kay was highly regarded by all who knew her and very much loved by her co-workers. Kay and Chuck are members of the New Life Presbyterian Church, Fruitland Park, Fla.

Kay is survived by her loving husband, Charles "Chuck" Themm, their oldest son, Dale L. Mathews and Connie, Cynthia Dawn (Themm) Mianulli and Joe, and Geoffrey Charles Themm and her grandchildren Audrie L. Themm and Austin G. Themm. Three Step-grandchildren, Adam Moore (and Elizabeth) of Fruitland Park, Joe Mianulli and Jimmy Mianulli, of Chicago. "Kay" is also survived by her 95 year old mother, Helen Grace Cunningham, three sisters, Bev (John) Sladek, Janice (Phillip) Farmer, and Sharon (Neil) Woodbury all of Charlevoix, as well as many cousins and three aunts. Also dear friends, Heather Bray and Eric James of Exmouth, Devon UK and The Villages. Her father passed away in February, 1975.

Visitation was held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 8, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

A funeral service will be 1 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 9, at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, with the Reverend Neil Wilson officiating.

Burial will take place at the Barnard Cemetery in Charlevoix.

In lieu of flowers memorial donations may be made in Kay's name to the North Lake Presbyterian Church Lady Lake Food Bank; 975 Rolling Acres Road, Lady Lake, FL 32159 or New Life Presbyterian Church 201 E. LaVista St., Fruitland Park, FL 34731.

Dolores T. Webster: Feb. 20, 1927 - Sept. 3, 2009

Dolores T. Webster, 82, of Charlevoix, passed away Thursday, Sept. 3, 2009, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

A service was held on Tuesday, Sept. 8, at the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix.

The Reverend Michael Arp of the Family of Faith Ministries officiated at the grave side.

Dolores was born February 20, 1927, in Hamtramck to Frank and Stella (Yucha) Grzeskiewicz.

On April 21, 1950, she married Allan K. Webster in Toledo, Ohio.

They made their home in Royal Oak before Dolores moved to Charlevoix in the early '80s.

Allan preceded her in death on Nov. 6, 1983.

She is survived by her sons, Allan Harry (Susan)

Webster of Royal Oak, Timothy (Susan) Webster of Charlevoix, Terry Lee Webster of Romulus; daughter, Lorrie (Ken) DeLong of LaPeer; grandchildren, Jamie, Kyle, and Kevin Webster; Keith Webster, Geraldine Hulsey, Kristy Vorac; Michael, Matthew, Nathan DeLong; great-grandchildren, Jaden, Ryan, Allen, Samantha, Kirsten, Aleah, Gavin, Luke, Carleigh, and McKenzie; sister-in-law, Janet Louisselle of Charlevoix. Dolores enjoyed football and the Lions, and baseball and the Tigers.

She was a loving mother, and was the best Granny anyone could ask for.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling arrangements.

LETTERS to the editor

LETTERS Continued from page 5

Much appreciative

Editor:

I want to express my deep thanks and appreciation to that group, or persons, who have dyed dark green the old white plastic milk jugs that are hung on the cemetery water taps.

What a great idea for community beautification.

The dark green jugs blend into, and do not detract from, the natural beauty of the green wooded cemetery, as the white plastic gallon jugs used to do.

At the same time the convenience of the handy water jugs is not impaired, and are close at hand for family members caring for their family's plots.

One of the most beautiful days to visit Brookside Cemetery is Memorial Day when it is covered with American flags marking veteran's grave sites, and families decorating their loved ones' burial sites with flowers.

It moved me to tears this year. Charlevoix's Brookside Cemetery is a unique jewel for its location, natural beauty and excellent maintenance, thanks to the dedicated families, citizens and workers, who love and care for it.

Support appreciated

I recently helped a friend and her family through the birth and passing of my friend's granddaughter. During such a difficult time it was so great to be involved with so many wonderful people that were not only willing but gave of themselves in a very wonderful way.

I feel so much the need to send out Kudos to these people in thanks: Northwest Michigan Regional Hospital, obstetrics, especially Linda, for all the extra thought in the preparation for the birth of this little girl.

Making sure all the family had what they needed and making all the memories of her 35 minutes of life ones that will remain in their hearts.

Hospice of Little Grand Traverse Bay, especially Megan, for allowing us to have the luncheon for family and friends for the service.

It was such a beautiful room. And for helping with setting up and clean up.

Terry Amick, for donating the subs to feed the family and friends at the luncheon.

I could not have done everything I did to help without the help of these people, and Aunt Jean.

I know the family is super thankful for everything as well.

Examining independence

Editor:

As we begin the 233rd year of American independence, we desperately need to ask ourselves, "What truths do we still hold?" When the Founders said, "We hold these truths to be self-evident . . .", it was 18th century talk for, "Any moron ought to be able to get this."

You were probably as incensed as I was when Resident Obama recently told Turkish officials, and the watching world, that "... we do not consider ourselves a Christian nation" or on a recent trip to Egypt that America is "one of the largest Muslim countries in the world."

Never mind that the government's own statistics show that less than one percent of Americans claim the Islamic faith. The technical term for what is happening is "historic revisionism."

In everyday terms, it is the practice of telling a lie loud enough and often enough that an entire population begins to believe it.

We know beyond any doubt that America was founded on the bedrock of Biblical truth and no matter how distorted a view revisionists take on this subject, those who shaped our republic were God-fearing, Bible-believing statesmen who wanted this Nation to embody the governmental principles of God's Word.

John Adams said, "Our Constitution was made only for a moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other."

Today when historic revisionists are determined to cast off the bands of the Christian religion in our nation and tell lies like, "America is not a Christian nation," we need to set the record straight.

I believe the founders would be turning in their graves if they could hear some of the gross distortions of their deepest beliefs and dearest hopes.

If the fiery Patrick Henry were still on the scene, he would be delivering powerful messages against these assaults on liberty and would, no doubt, be organizing his company of volunteer "Minutemen."

If you want to know what the U.S. Constitution means, you must read the Declaration of Independence that explains what the founders intended, because our nation was founded to attain religious freedom, for all Americans, from the Church of England.

Wake up America before its to late and all our freedoms are gone.

Fear not reform

Editor:

As Americans we believe our values of morality and generosity make this the greatest country in the world. After World War II we wisely created the Marshall Plan to help rebuild a devastated Europe and Japan, understanding that it would prevent a future disaster.

Why are we now struggling to apply these values to a basic health care plan for everyone? Crowds of angry people have been shouting down our representatives at town hall meetings. The stunning fact is they are not shouting because 47 million people don't have health care. They are shouting because they fear change in the health care system.

They claim we have the best health care in the world, yet we are ranked 37th. That means 36 countries have better health care. We are ranked 50th in life expectancy. We are first in one category: We pay more than any other country.

They are worried that a public health care plan would have government bureaucrats making decisions about what doctors and services patients receive. Apparently they prefer private insurance company bureaucrats making decisions based on profits and investment returns, resulting in policies being canceled and patients being denied services.

The current health care cost system is a major threat to our economy. People who are fortunate enough to have insurance pay higher prices for premiums and services because the costs for treating people without insurance get passed on. Patients without insurance end up being treated in crisis mode at the most expensive delivery point ... the emergency room and hospital. Most bankruptcies in our country are brought on by staggering medical bills, and most of these people had insurance

A public option plan would allow people the choice of a Medicare-type insurance: Insurance that wouldn't cancel you, wouldn't exclude you for pre-existing conditions, insurance you wouldn't lose if you lost your job, and you could take with you anywhere in the country. Medicare, a government insurance program, uses private doctors, private medical delivery systems, and doesn't tell you what doctor to choose. This will not change.

Rebuilding a devastated health care system should include: Prevention and wellness programs, competitive drug prices, cost controls, and compensation to doctors based on the improved health of their patients.

Anger and negativity is being incited by talk show hosts like Rush Limbaugh.

Rush is paid millions of dollars to create fear and anger, not morality and generosity.

His success is based on ratings, and the more he rants, the more money he makes. Would this fear and anger have rebuilt Europe and Japan?

Accessible, affordable health care respects the value of each life. Which America do you want to stand for? The America with the morals and foresight to create a "Marshall Plan" for health care as a fundamental right, or the America supporting health care as a privilege, protecting profits for insurance, medical, and pharmaceutical companies, threatening America's health and economic security.

"Fifteen percent of my awareness is saying, 'You won.' And the other 85 percent is saying, 'You idiot,'" JON GOLDSTICK awareness is saying, 'You won.' And the other 85 percent is saying, 'You idiot,'" Goldstick said. "The check looks so real. It has watermarks and everything."

Accompanying the check was a flyer with the heading "Equity Trust" which year-old said. "A $30 bounced check fee is bad."

The scam works when an unwitting check recipient deposits the realistic check in their bank account. They are then directed to send differing amounts of money back to the contest provider in order explained that Goldstick had won $200,000. According to the flyer, which carried a Las Vegas P.O. Box and a Canadian phone number, Goldstick was given the $4,980 check to help cover the "administrative fees ... meant to satisfy official laws and income tax protocols as mandated by the U.S. Government."

In addition to being liable for the amount of money deposited from a bad check, participants could also face overdraft fees from their bank.

"Both me and my mom are on a fixed income," the 60-to satisfy the alleged administrative fees and income tax requirements.

"My sister knew a person that had basically the same thing," Goldstick said. "They said, 'Send us $300' and she did not have that so they said, 'Send us $200' and we'll release a million and you can pay back the other hundred."

He added, "They made it sound so good."

Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema said finding and prosecuting these cheaters is nearly impossible, but you can protect yourself.

"Be careful not to give any information to these people."

Find help and healing for the hurt of separation and divorce through Community Reformed Church's DivorceCare program

• Free • Non-Denominational • Open to everyone

You don't have to go through it alone...

A Seminar with Experts

A Support Group with Focus

DivorceCare is a friendly, caring group of people who will walk alongside you through one of life's most difficult experiences. Don't go through separation or divorce alone.

Most people will tell you that separation and divorce are the most painful and stressful experiences they've ever faced. It's a confusing time when you feel isolated and have lots of questions about issues you've never faced before. Our DivorceCare group meets weekly to help you face these challenges and move toward rebuilding your life.

During the first 30-40 minutes of the meeting, each DivorceCare group watches a video seminar featuring experts on divorce and recovery subjects. These videos are produced in an interesting way to watch television, a magazine format featuring expert interviews, real-life case studies and on-location video.

Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix offers DivorceCare recovery support group that meets on Thursday evenings, beginning September 17, from 7-9 p.m. for 13 weeks (join anytime) at the "Serenus Quarters" 100 Oak Street (Located next door to the Community Reformed Church, one mile north of the bridge.) A light dinner is provided.

231-675-1925

After viewing the video, a DivorceCare group participants spend time as a support group, discussing what was presented in that week's video seminar and what is going on in the lives of group members.

Strong start for Rayder varsity football

BY STEVE FOLEY
NEWS-REVIEW

They accomplished a key goal in 2008, and now they want to take it a step further.

With solid personnel returning including an Indiana-signee to anchor the offensive line, Charlevoix is hoping to not only return to the playoffs, but to garner some success there.

"Our goal is to come together as a family and we've been preaching nobody here is better than the team," said Don Jess, who is 28-29 in his seven-year career as the Rayders' coach. "The kids want to make the playoffs again and we've never won a playoff game so one of our goals is to get a playoff win. "The kids are doing a good job of staying focused on (opening night opponent) St. Ignace. From there, we'll work towards that playoff goal."

The Rayders, who finished 5-5 overall and 4-3 (fourth place) in the Lake Michigan Conference last fall, feature a good-sized offensive line, which is a big key, Jess said.

Senior co-captain Bill Ivan, a 6-foot-5 260-pound tackle who has signed with Indiana, anchors the line as he enters his third varsity season.

"Having Ivan being recruited really boosted the confidence of our entire offensive line," Jess said. "Our offense is pretty versatile in that we can run the belly or the spread."

"Having Ivan being recruited really boosted the confidence of our entire offensive line," Rayder varsity football coach Don Jess said

Also back up front is 6-4, 290-pound Ian Gauthier, who is also in his third season, while senior Chris Levens is also back and is coming off a solid summer, Jess said.

Another senior Justin Williams, who goes 245, also returns up front. Senior co-captain Clayton Mitchell also returns. He completed 103 of 200 passes for 1,035 yards and 15 touchdowns last year in earning all-area honors. "Clayton is serviceable boarder and snowboarder who has great balance, and he's super fast."

Senior Isaac Hosper, a halfback last season, will move to fullback. "We've got some holes to fill with guys we lost last year, but we have some really good football players and more importantly, some really good young men," Jess said.

Among Mitchell's main targets are seniors Alex Foster and J.T. Lawrence, while the running attack is paced by sophomore standout Jake McClean, who Jess described as "very strong and fast."

"He's different in that he's not your typical athlete," Jess said. "He's a skate-boarder and snowboarder who has great balance, and he's super fast."

Senior Isaac Hosper, a halfback last season, will move to fullback.

"We've got some holes to fill with guys we lost last year, but we have some really good football players and more importantly, some really good young men," Jess said.

Ivan, Williams, Gauthier and Levens will start up front on defense. Lawrence returns for his third season at cornerback, while the linebacking corps will center around seniors Hunter Johnstone and Casey Helstrom.

"Having those two guys (Johnstone, Helstrom) are two nice additions for us," Jess said. "They could take us from good on defense to great."

The Rayders beat rival St. Ignace, a playoff team last season, for their traditional opener.

"We have a great coaching staff and we all want to make the kids better people," Jess said. "If we can make them gentlemen and better people, in turn you should be a better football player."

"Winning is certainly a priority for us. I think with our offensive line and with Bill (Ivan) attending a lot of summer camps, they should be ahead of the game."

Rayder girls' cross country tight-knit

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Charlevoix Rayder girls' cross country coach Mary Plude began her season with 10 girls in the pre-season and hopes of adding four more.

"I have three great leaders in my senior class with Krista Pischner, Madeline Jeakle and Rachel Boss," Plude said. "They have been on the team for three years and have a great respect among their teammates."

She added, "We are a very tight-knit group both in spirit and in our racing. We have five sophomores: Molly Jeakle, Hilary Way, Lauren Bartling, Stirling Witthoef and Anne Dipert, coming back with varsity experience from last year and Krista (Pischner) has been on varsity for three years."

Plude said her team's only weakness is not having much state meet level experience. "We have competed in two invitationals during the pre-season and finished fourth against Benzie Central and first against Ogemaw-West Branch," she said. "Our next meet is our only home meet on Sept. 12 with the Charlevoix classic mud run."

Plude's girls finished sixth in the regional and third in the conference last year. "We will be working on developing our pack closer to the front of the races this year. Jeakle has been our top finisher in both our races so far this year," she said. "We had a couple of nagging injuries that cleared up for the most part during camp. As soon as we are full strength, the pack should tighten up around Molly."

Rayder varsity volleyball a winning tradition

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

With six returning seniors coming off a conference-winning previous season, Charlevoix Rayder varsity girls' volleyball coach Liz Grunch is upbeat about the upcoming season.

"We are having a both height on offense and the quickness on defense. There is potential to for this team to be great," she said. "Last season we ended up 13-1 winning the conference. Charlevoix has won conference five out of the six past seasons."

Grunch added, "We, the players and I, have started a tradition in Charlevoix that the community, school, and fans can be proud of."

Charlevoix has 10 players on the Varsity squad this season with six seniors, one junior and three sophomores.

"Our strengths: quickness and desire. My players have such a passion for being competitive and playing for each other. They are working hard day in and day out. I could not ask for more from the team," Grunch said.

"Weaknesses: we have limited varsity game play experiences. We have two players from last year, Taylor Storm and Jenna Way, the complete season full rotation. This season, I am asking a lot of my younger players to step in and fill some big roles."

Now in her ninth season of coaching, Grunch is positive her girls can compete with the best the Lake Michigan Conference has to offer.

"We have had two tournaments this season," she said. "Our first tournament in Pellston, we placed third, and the second, in Leland, we also placed third."

Returning players are: seniors - libero, Taylor Storm an all-conference honorable mention; Sarah Potter; Isis Hang; Bobbie Molter; Bailey Chamberlain; and Nikki Speigl; junior - Katie Mays; and sophomore - Jenna Way, an all-conference, all-Region; all-state honorable mention in 2008; Allison Hankins, and Kelly Greyer biehl.

"Our biggest competition this year is Traverse City St. Francis," she said. "Also tough this year in the league is Harbor Springs, Boyne City and Kalkaska."

The Charlevoix Invitational Tournament is Saturday, Sept. 19.

The last 4 years, Charlevoix has made Team Academic All-State.

Rayder varsity soccer team young, but tough and able

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

With a current roster of 18 players, Josh Block isn't too worried that he only has two returning seniors.

According to the Rayder varsity boys' soccer coach, he has the same nine players working together for the third year in a row.

"Our strength is, two years ago I started nine freshmen together, and last year I started nine sophomores together and this year I started nine juniors together," Block said. "That is literally my starting line-up — it has not changed in three years."

Now a third of the way into the season, Block's boys are 5-0, having recently beaten Elk Rapids for the first time ever.

"We're fortunate. Our team's good enough this year we can get up on most teams we've played so far and get the younger players out on the field to get them some experience," he said.

"Our win at Elk Rapids was positive for a couple reasons: we've never beaten them before; and we've had some minor sportsmanship problems between the two schools last year we were trying to work out."

Block said both schools have done a fine job of working toward civility and good sportsmanship.

"We had a great game and there was a high level of mutual respect," he said. "Some very competitive soccer was played. It was just a really fun game."

Block said the biggest competition his players will face will come again from Elk Rapids and Traverse City Christian.

Slots still open on Rayder tennis team

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

While the shift of seasons for high school tennis continue to hurt his numbers, Charlevoix Rayder boys' tennis coach Erik Lundteigen said he is looking forward to a great season.

"It's a lifelong game," he said. "I love seeing young adults playing it because you can do it forever."

The tennis team currently has 10 members.

"We need to get two more to have a full squad," Lundteigen said. "I'm hoping to pick a couple more up as school starts."

With no returning seniors, Lundteigen will rely on his returning sophomores and juniors to round out his squad.

"We're getting better every day we have a practice,"

he said.

"Logan Klein is our number one player in singles and Matt Murray is our number one doubles player."

He added, "It's pretty early in the season so we haven't solidified any positions per se, but I would definitely consider those guys as my more experienced players."

Anyone interested in joining the tennis team should call 547-2593.

"We're getting better every day we have a practice," Lundteigen said. "I'm seeing great improvement, we just need to get our numbers up."

Cross country team anticipating mud run

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The Charlevoix Rayders have a boys' cross country team of 13 this year.

"The team has solid leadership in Senior Jon Kelly and Doug Reynolds," said coach Ken Plude. "They are joined by Senior Neil Salisbury and Junior Eric Buday."

This core of leadership is backed up by a strong sophomore class which includes Kirk Acharya, Andrew Plude, Vinnie Von Law, Alex Gooch and Will Jeakle.

"This team will need to work on tightening up the time between one and the second and third runners and also the gap between the third and the fourth through seventh runners," he said. "They have the potential to form a very tight group that will help them move up in the standings at larger invitational. Last year the boys qualified to the state meet and finished 14th."

This year they would like to improve upon that finish."

Plude added, "Last week they won the small division at the Duayne Rau Invitational at West Branch. They were third overall when the Division 1 and 2 schools were added in."

The Rayders cross country will have their next meet at home.

This is the only home meet of the year.

This will be the 17th running of the Charlevoix Classic Mud run at 9:30 a.m. on Sept. 12 at Charlevoix High School.

2009 Apple Festival

It is hard to believe that the 31st Annual Apple Festival is quickly approaching! The fun-filled weekend is scheduled for Friday, October 9th through Sunday, October 11th. Show hours on Friday and Saturday are 10am to 6pm and Sunday from 10am to 4pm.

This 3-day event is held annually to honor local orchards and growers who, in the spirit of the season, gather in downtown Charlevoix to bring the fall festival to you. The festival's focal point is the apple, proven to be the most popular fruit in North America. More than 30 types of apples, including the hard to find antique varieties, will be on hand as well as other fall harvest items such as pumpkins, squash, jam, honey, maple syrup, and cider!

Activities include a craft show featuring over 100 craftsmen, face painting, pony & horse rides, a petting zoo, and much more!

Our mission is to attract, develop,
support, & retain commerce for a better
Charlevoix

Apple Festival t-shirts are also available! Just delivered this week, sizes range from small to extra-large. You may purchase them at the Chamber office, 109 Mason Street, for only $20.

So join the festivities and show your support for local orchards, farm markets, and nonprofit organizations while celebrating the season in scenic downtown Charlevoix!

Only 3 Weeks Left!

If you're looking for the freshest produce, flowers, or baked goods around, look no further! The Charlevoix Farmers Market is the place to go! Market hours are every Thursday from 9am to 1pm in downtown East Park through September 24th. In one, convenient downtown location, you can support Charlevoix area farmers and take home healthy, nutritious fruits and vegetables or freshly baked goods. It is where locals and visitors alike can go for the freshest produce, all of which is grown in the Charlevoix area. Be sure to stop by and pick up the fruits of the season!

6pm. Sept. 17, 2009

Check your calendar. Do you have plans? If not, you are missing out! On Thursday, September 17th at 6pm, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will be raffling off the fully loaded 2010 Ford Mustang GT Premium Convertible in Candy Apple Red. The Chamber was able to acquire this traffic-stopping vehicle thanks to Pat McKeown Ford Lincoln Mercury. Tickets are $100 each or three for $200.

In addition to the Ford Mustang, three lucky winners will take home cash prizes totaling $1000. The lucky tickets will be drawn on Thursday, September 17th at the Belvedere Casino Club from 6 to 9pm. Admission is free to ticket holders and, as always, there will be delicious food and excellent entertainment. You need not be present to win.

Proceeds will be used toward the Chamber's capital improvements and operations funds.

Tickets may be purchased by calling the Chamber at 547.2101 or stop by the office at 109 Mason Street.

It's All Business.

Well, it isn't all business! The Chamber invites you to join them at the October First Friday Biz Breakfast and Business After Hours. Both are premier networking opportunities!

The First Friday Biz Breakfast will be held on Friday, October 2nd at 7:30am at the Grey Gables Restaurant. In light of October being National Physical Therapy Month, Joel Smith of Northern Michigan Sports Medicine Center will be educating attendees about who physical therapists are and what they can do for you. Admission is $7.

On Thursday, October 8th from 5 to 7pm, Charlevoix's very own Bergmann Center located at 6855 Martin Road will be co-sponsoring the October Business After Hours with Giuseppe's Italian Grille. With delicious dishes provided by Giuseppe's, give-aways, and excellent company, it is an event you won't want to miss! To attend it is $5 for Chamber members and $10 for general admission.

Contact the Chamber with any questions at 547.2101. We hope to see you there!

Sept. 10

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host its annual "Porker" golf tournament, with the shotgun start at 4 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m., is Thursday, Sept. 10 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

The Rotary outing prides itself as being "The Affordable Golf Tournament," and in recognition of the difficult economic times has kept the entry fee at $40 per person.

"In addition to a fun round of golf and a great meal, every participant in the tournament goes home with a prize that is donated by our generous local merchants," said tournament director Tim Petrosky.

The event is a four-person scramble.

The entry fee includes golf, a dinner buffet at Giuseppe's, and the traditional tournament trademark: prizes galore.

Prizes will be awarded based on skill, luck, random draw, and to teams that finish first, last and right in the middle.

Registration forms are only available at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course pro shop.

The event is limited to the first 20 teams that register. An optional skins game and "mulligans" will also be available to teams.

For more information contact Tim Petrosky at 547-0183.

Sept. 11

Pewabic Pottery

Fired Magic: Detroit's Pewabic Pottery Treasures, by Marcy Heller Fisher, is the story of a child discovering the beauty of Pewabic life installations in the metropolitan Detroit area. Fisher will speak from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 18 at the Charlevoix Public Library for two very different sessions. Children of all ages will have an opportunity to hear some of the stories from Fired Magic, while creating a Pewabic like tile magnet for their own alongside author Marcy.

Call 237-7350 to reserve a spot.

At 6:30 p.m., Fisher will present another program on contemporary Pewabic.

The Photo Detective, aka

Maureen Taylor, an internationally recognized expert on solving the mysteries of old photographs, will be on hand at the Charlevoix Public Library to help unravel the mysteries behind your old photographs. During "Tales from the Photo Detective," 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 18, Taylor will examine several photos and show the clues that brought the pictures to life.

She will also share basic steps of her detective work with the audience. The evening will be capped off by the Michigan Room Committee presenting the Margaret Duerr award to John Frey.

The Duerr award is given to an individual who has demonstrated a special interest in the quality of life of northern Michigan.

The following day, Saturday, Sept. 19, Maureen Taylor will present two workshops for those who wish more hands on knowledge. "Identifying and Dating Family Photographs," 10:30 a.m. to noon will teach the attendees ten easy steps for naming those unidentified pictures tucked away in shoe boxes. "Preserving Family Photographs," 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., covers everything a family photographer needs to know about caring for photographs, including printing and sharing digital images and how to safely label grandparent's photos.

Each of these workshops has a $10 fee. Registration brochures are available at the library or call 237-7340.

Norwood ZA charged

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Will Janet Sue Person remain as Norwood Township's zoning administrator in the wake of her guilty pleading on Thursday, Aug. 27, in Antrim County's 86th District Court?

Person, placed on leave from her position as Bellaire Village Council Executive in late August, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor after the 52-year-old used more than $5,000, some of which she paid back before the investigation began, from the Antrim Conservation District where she served as executive director for nearly 10 years.

"I think by her actions this shows an erosion of the public trust," said Norwood Township trustee David Leusink. "Even though it is a misdemeanor, our trustees need to look at it. She is our employee and works for the public and we need to at least take a look at what's best for the township. Person was accused of using a conservation district charge card to buy auto repairs and airline tickets in addition to other misuses of funds.

"We are requesting a resignation," said Bellaire Village President Butch Dewey. "And, we are negotiating a severance package."

Dewey said audits show no financial discrepancies relating to Person, or otherwise, in Bellaire's books.

"We just felt there is an erosion of public trust in her position," he said.

Person, who is expected to be sentenced on Sept. 24 on charges of neglect of duty, could face as much as $12,000 in fines and court costs — nearly $8,000 of that is to pay for the forensic audit according to Dewey.

"The board hasn't met on it yet," said Norwood

Kilwin's Confections launches peanut recall

BY RYAN BENTLEY
NEWS-REVIEW

Noting the potential for salmonella contamination, Petoskey-based candy manufacturer Kilwin's Quality Confections recently launched a recall for chocolate-covered peanuts that were sold in its retail stores prior to April 1.

The chocolate-covered peanuts affected by the recall were sold in 7-ounce, gold-foiled plastic packages with a clear center section at Kilwin's stores in Michigan, Florida, Illinois, Wisconsin, Colorado, Rhode Island, Georgia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The packages are labeled "Milk Chocolate Peanuts" and "Fresh dry roasted peanuts covered in creamy milk chocolate." The package's barcode number is 001615.

The recalled product also was sold in bulk, by weight, at the company's stores.

In a press release, Kilwin's indicated that no illnesses had been reported to the company in connection with the issue. The potential for contamination was noted after Kilwin's peanut supplier voluntarily recalled its product.

Those peanuts were subject to a recall because of ties to a Peanut Corporation of America plant in Texas where salmonella was discovered earlier this year. After the discovery of unsanitary conditions at that factory, Texas officials ordered the recall of all products shipped from the site since its 2005 opening.

Consumers who have purchased the Kilwin's products covered by the recall can return them to the place of purchase for a full refund.

Chocolate-covered peanuts purchased at Kilwin's on or after April 1 are not subject to the recall.

Joe Audia, general manager at Kilwin's candy plant in Petoskey, said the company had pulled the targeted chocolate-covered peanuts from its stores last March after receiving word from its peanut vendor of the possibility for contamination.

"We just neglected to put the press release out at that time," he said.

some homeowners in an uproar.
So, the city worked with the homeowners in question to devise a plan which would relocate the secondary, or lower voltage electrical wires, underground, thereby saving more of the trees.
There are 24 houses on the north side of Dixon Avenue and 22 on the south side, according to city records.

What began with a man and his maples and a call for responsible tree trimming has turned into action.
Bill Dreyer had no idea when he complained of the haphazard trimming of his 100-year-old trees off Nettleton Street that he would be starting a trend, but the City of Charlevoix is now responding to demands by Dixon Avenue residents to save their trees.

"Council is not willing to pay for it out of the coffers, especially with the way the economy is," said Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. of the $622,426 project. "But, if it is that important to them that they want to pay for it, then it doesn't matter if it's on Dixon or Eaton or Hurlbut or State Street(s) — we'd do the same thing."

The original plan to trim and remove dozens of trees along Dixon Avenue had

If the cost is to be divided equally among homeowners, then the 24 would each be responsible for paying $25,900.
If the cost were spread over all 46 homeowners, then the cost would be near $13,500.
A questionnaire to determine interest of the Dixon Avenue homeowners is now being circulated.

Fire at Pine Place

At 3:47 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 10, the Charlevoix Fire Department was dispatched to a fire at the Pine River Place apartments 210 West Garfield St. Firefighters arrived to find heavy black smoke coming from a mechanical room vent. Firefighters discovered the cause of the smoke in the elevator's mechanical system. The fire was quickly extinguished. All three floors of the building needed to be ventilated due to smoke. No one was hurt and property damage was limited to the elevator mechanical system.

Charlevoix Area Hospital offering yoga, cardio and more

BY CHRISTINE GWIOT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix Area Hospital turns 90 this year. Although it has provided nearly a century of care to area residents, the hospital shows no signs of slowing down. A lot is happening there this fall.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's Circle of Strength breast cancer support group is sponsoring a "Tickled Pink Event" from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Oct. 22, in the solarium overlooking Lake Michigan. Attendees will be treated to wine, cheese and chocolate, free table massages and pedicures and a 30-percent discount in the gift shop, if they wear pink.

Tours of the newly updated dressing rooms and the digital mammography exam suite will be offered. In part, the event is a way of thanking donors and is open to the public.

Vouchers will be available at the "Tickled Pink Event" for free mammograms, but Kathy Jacobsen, RN, MPA wants the women to know that free mammograms are always available to those who may not be able to afford them.

"It's on their determination," Jacobsen said, explaining that there is no financial disclosure required to qualify for the free mammogram. "We want people to come in."

Jacobsen encourages anyone who may be struggling emotionally or financially with cancer to call her at 231-547-8906 to discuss available options.

The Cardiac Rehab Department completed "Let's Get Moving Northern Michigan" in late August. The 12-week project encouraged patients to include more fruit, vegetables and fiber in their diet and primarily to ramp up physical exercise in their daily routine. The 17 patients who participated in the program documented their diet and activity and found that they made healthier choices.

George Miller, an 85-year-old cardiac patient, completed more than 360 wellness miles during the course of the program. Besides walking or jogging, wellness miles are tallied by assigning a comparable value to other cardio activities.

"It's been quite an experience," Miller said. "One thing is, you've got to be consistent. The more you do the better you are." Miller gives high marks to the cardiac rehab team, adding, "They're a real nice bunch of people there. Very encouraging. I can't say enough about them."

"He takes his exercise seriously," said Tina Foltz, RN. "George is a winner every day in our eyes. The cardiac team is proud of him."

"Let's Get Moving Northern Michigan" also focuses on employee health with twice-weekly yoga and strength training classes. 181 CAH employees participated this summer and logged a combined total of 59,445 wellness miles.

Beginning Sept. 17, Weight Watchers classes will be held at the hospital and open to the public. Weight-in starts at 11:30 a.m. and the half-hour meeting begins at noon. The cost is $138 for regular members and $124 for seniors, students, lifetime members and those with Blue Cross or Priority Health insurance.

Employees are encouraged to attend and Wellness Committee organizers have initiated a "Biggest Loser" competition for employees. "It makes you feel like your place of employment cares about you," Jacobsen said, "and that's a good feeling."

The first Wednesday of every month is Wellness Wednesday in the solarium at CAH. For $12, area residents receive a health screening with information about their blood pressure levels, body fat percentage and body mass index, cholesterol, and blood glucose. Screenings are held on a walk-in basis from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Appointments may be made in advance by calling 231-547-8906.

Jacobsen, who is also Community Health Education Coordinator for the hospital, stated in the 2009 CAH community report that she wants people to have a good experience in the hospital, adding, "Being healthy is not impossible. It's not about reaction, but prevention. I want to make health care accessible."

Jacobsen wrote and received a $5,000 grant from the Michigan Center for Rural Health, designed to enhance efforts to improve and maintain community health. Along with CAH dietitian, Amanda Evans, Jacobsen is planning an upcoming program for area schoolchildren and their families about healthy, yet inexpensive, food choices. An evening event will feature Evans' demonstration in preparing a healthy meal and each family will be given the ingredients to duplicate the meal at home.

New Parent Expo is scheduled Oct. 29 from 5-7 p.m. Providing health and safety tips, child development information and more, the event is designed for parents-to-be, new parents, infants and pre-school children.

For more information, call Pam Oshaben at 547-8575.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is also proud to acknowledge that Dr. Mitchell Carey was recently named the 2009 Michigan Family Physician of the Year. Carey received the award in June in recognition of his exemplary service and commitment to his patients and the community.

Joining the practice of Drs. Wendt and Lame in July, Dr. Brian Dishinger is a general surgeon who is the newest member of the surgical staff at CAH. Dishinger moved to northern Michigan this summer with his wife, Katie, and their four daughters.

Lung Cancer Treatment Prolongs Life

According to a study presented recently at the Annual Meeting of the American Society for Clinical Oncology, a drug called Erlotinib (Tarceva) has been shown to prolong the life of persons with advanced non-small cell lung cancer. According to news reports, this drug resulted in an almost 30% improvement in the time a person with inoperable lung cancer lived without their cancer progressing. The average survival for those who got Tarceva was 6.7 months compared to only 4.7 months for those who got placebo (fake drug). At one year, about a third of those who got Tarceva were still alive compared to only about 10% who got placebo. Researchers call this a targeted drug, in that it targets a specific protein in the body called the epidermal growth factor receptor. This protein is found on the surface of many cancer cells. Researchers feel that Tarceva slows or disrupts the growth of lung cancer by interfering with this protein. There are two major types of lung cancer, non-small cell and small cell. Non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) is the most lethal. When it occurs, it usually progresses very rapidly.

Gennett gives tips for going back to school

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gabe Gennett

Parents and students alike are gearing up for a new school year.

Maybe you've thought about taking a few classes yourself for enrichment or maybe you want to kick start a new career.

Whatever the case may be, something that cannot be put on the side burner is homework.

No matter what grade level you finished in high school, technical school, or college it's important to be a role model for your child and find time in your family schedule to sit down and get to work reviewing your child's class assignments.

The value of homework continues throughout your child's lifetime.

Okay, it sounds unreasonable at times to request more time on an already busy schedule, but let's review homework's importance.

Homework encourages your child and you to establish a routine of starting and completing something.

It helps to have a regularly scheduled time to slide into. This is particularly helpful if your child lacks focus and has a short attention span.

Homework develops a good work ethic.

Getting the job done is what a future employer is looking for and it encourages self discipline and time management.

Some parents complain as to why it is given in the first place.

It can create a problem at home because the child complains. Remind yourself who's in charge here.

Some schools have added time in the school day for homework completion.

This is an added benefit because a teacher is nearby to help and resources such as the media center and computers are accessible.

When a child is over scheduled with activities and doesn't have time for their school work, it's time to re-visit their activities.

Your child may have too many extra curricular activities and you may need to limit them.

This is an okay thing to do. We as parents are not here to brag about all the things kids are involved in. We cannot live vicariously through them. Our job is to guide them and facilitate what activities will meet their needs.

Putting a schedule on the refrigerator, listing times for school, activities, and homework each day is helpful.

Your child can also have a calendar in their bedroom listing the same. This also works very well if your child shares time in a two family situation-time at mom's house and time at dad's house.

If you've gone back to school, why not work together at the same table.

It's a great little bonding experience and encourages them to complete their assignments.

Another important part of getting back to the school routine is to visit the school and meet your child's teachers, the principal, and the school counselor.

Children, like adults get over scheduled and need time to play and visit friends just like parents do.

"All work and no play" was a good slogan in the 60's and works still today.

Some children actually do better working on assignments while wearing a headset and listening to classical music.

If they don't have a bedroom to work in because there isn't a desk and they share it with many siblings, the dining room or kitchen table will do.

It's out in the open and gives you the flexibility to stop what you are doing and check if they have any questions.

Many of you have already attended open houses but if you haven't, there is always an opportunity to visit and check things out.

Your child will see that you are taking an interest in them and their school day.

It's also helpful to meet the kids your child hangs with and to know and meet the parents of their friends as well.

You'll have a better understanding when they bring something up that may be occurring at school, plus you'll know who to contact if you have any questions.

I hope that you take away a few of these suggestions to ease your transition back into the new school year.

They are tired, true, and tested from their thirty years working in the school setting.

Good luck and have a good school year.

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwilt

It was a dream to land this job. The economy is being what it is, and considering my dearth of practical experience, it was actually a sort of miracle.

And I love it. I love my boss, who is droll and in-scrutable. And my other boss, whom I suspect took the gig to mask her true identity as Supergirl. And their boss, who is silent and invisible. There are probably a few more in there too, but I'm so far down the food chain that they only register as shadows with the power to block out the sun.

There is just so much of it to love.

I work for a newspaper and the news doesn't stop happening. Ever. It rolls in and accumulates in a big screaming pile that must be pitch-forked onto a long bed semi and then disassembled with tweezers.

I tremble to stand in the reflected light of the Fourth Estate's fortitude and talent.

No, really, I tremble. The muscles in my legs have atrophied from supporting nothing more than my lap top 12 to 14 hours a day. I have a third-degree burn on my cheek from the heat of my cell phone.

The fingernails on my right hand have been a half-inch longer than my left for two weeks. I don't have time to clip, let alone file them. Grooming is only a memory of the luxury of leisure. I can spare a few fleeting seconds to brush my teeth, but only two at a time. The full set is in rotation.

I am on the C-Diet: coffee, cigarettes, cottage cheese, cookies and crackers. The microwave takes too long. My dogs are beginning to stray closer to the neighbor's yard, where happy people occasionally frolic with their pets.

Raccoons waddle in close proximity to my motionless body as I robotically type into the wee hours on my porch. They are as unperturbed by my otherness as they would be by a log or a rock.

I awoken in the middle of the night, sodden and paralyzed with the fear that I will have to come up with another synonym for "event."

There is a ~~WIPPAH~~ electronic device downstairs that I recall used to deliver news and entertainment into my home in the days before total silence became mandatory to my relentlessly enforced concentration.

"No, I can't," I tell the few friends I have left with the temerity to call me with an invitation. "Don't even ask me and don't call back. I only answered the phone because I thought you were the guy who's supposed to get back to me with a quote about the Wiener races."

Clumps of hair remain on my pillow in protest, as the rest of me pops from my bed like a premature slice of bread from the toaster, tepid and pale from my aborted incubation.

"What am I doing?" is my new mantra.

I used to love vampire movies - The creepy curiosity of the victims as they examined the pronged bite marks on their neck. And the delicious denial of their peccadillo just before inevitable decline unravels their cute little life and their heretofore-assumed humanity dissolves in the brilliance of the day. Now, the scenario is too familiar. It could be a page from my diary.

It may be just a matter of time before the delicate thread that tethers me to the world of happy, smiling people snaps. What is love? Why are there grocery stores? Once I start asking myself these questions there's little doubt that the road back will be anything but a long row to hoe.

I can't go on like this. I will wither and fade and the most it will get me is a few column inches in the obits, more than likely with my anomalous surname misspelled, or at best mispronounced, by the dozen or so people that will bother to read it.

Note: The author is now resting comfortably and those who rely on her income predict a full recovery.

LETTERS to the editor

YOU CAN'T HAVE IT BOTH WAYS

Editor:

Congressman Stupak has been getting a lot of national media coverage lately: first for promoting the terrorists, that no country wants, move from GITMO to Michigan prisons. It looks like he might succeed, all in the name of jobs.

Perhaps he should be promoting something more constructive such as a new nuclear plant in the area.

This would bring higher paying jobs for a much longer time period as far less risk to the neighbors of the facility.

Then he was busy signing a information request along with the arch liberal Congressman Waxman, the same one who pushed through the cap and trade bill in the house which will increase electric bills much higher according to president Obama.

The letter requires the large insurance companies to file reports on their spending and pay and benefits for most management over several years time which is only designed to intimidate the insurance companies to stop their efforts to block the health care bill, which is illegal since there is no charge of wrongdoing.

Congressman Stupak claims he cannot vote for the bill because it will require government payments for abortions.

Then why is he signing a letter to intimidate which is intended to get the Healthcare bill passed? He cannot have it both ways arguing against the bill while working to block efforts against the bill.

THANKS, FROM THE PANTRY

Editor:

The Charlevoix Community Food Pantry would like to thank Patty Sitzema, the Townhouse Bar and all of those who participated in the Charlevoix Bridge Walk on Labor Day.

It was a huge success and the food pantry realized enough money to buy several weeks worth of groceries for those in need.

Thank-you, everyone, for your support and generosity. Sue Dixon, President Charlevoix Community Food Pantry

WHAT ABOUT THE KIDS?

Editor:

There is no doubt that kids get in trouble at the library. Why not build a place for kids to go after school?

Kids get in trouble at the library. When kids go to the library they get carried away and start to be loud and wrestle. Kids need to get their energy out after school and they try to let it out at the library. Kids get so bored after school that when they get in trouble at the library, they go there anyway.

Kids have nothing to do after school. As you can see during the winter there's nothing to do except ski/snowboard. Kids walk downtown and end up in trouble with Ripstiks or stealing.

If we had more restaurants it would bring more people to town. People would come to our town because of more variety of foods we would have. People would drive more often so they would have to buy more gas when they come to eat here. Other people from other states on their summer break they would stay in hotels. They also eat out a lot but they wouldn't want to have the same food every night.

Stuff would go up in market. People would stay the night in hotels. They would visit other stores like the downtown stores. Also in my opinion people spend their money in our town. That is why we should have more restaurants in Charlevoix.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

I feel compelled to personally clarify the recent news regarding the Lutheran Church, and to be more specific, the largest Lutheran denomination in America, the ELCA (Evangelical Lutheran Church of America).

The recent decision of their church body in convention was to allow homosexual pastors within their church to have same sex partners.

This is not the position of the other Lutheran bodies in America. I serve as the Pastor of Faith Evangelical Lutheran Church of East Jordan.

I also serve Trinity Ev. Lutheran of Rogers City. My congregation belongs to the Evangelical Lutheran synod (ELS) which has its headquarters in Mankato, Minnesota.

The ELS is in fellowship with the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod (WELS) which is the third largest Lutheran denomination in America.

For example, Romans chapter one contains a very clear condemnation of homosexuality.

OBITUARIES

Joseph Kehrer: April 23, 1924-- Sept. 6, 2009

A memorial service will be held at Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey at 11 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 21, 2009 for Charles Joseph Kehrer. Chuck died on Sept. 6 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital of heart-related conditions.

Chuck was born April 23, 1924 and is survived by his wife of 45 years, Neva Rose. He leaves children Steve and Meda Kehrer, Karan Green, Parker and Alice Irey, 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Also grieving are siblings Fred, Ed, Dick, Bernadette Vaughn, and Beverly Lancaster.

Charles was a World War II veteran in the US Navy. Chuck had many ties to the community with a residence in Charlevoix for more than 25 years. He regularly attended Zion Lutheran Church in Petoskey.

Chuck enjoyed the area fishing, and will be missed by all who knew him.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be given to Zion Lutheran Church, 500 Mitchell, Petoskey, Michigan, 49770 or The Robin Sue Irey Scholarship Trust Fund at Concordia College, 4090 Geddes Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48105.

Economic effects on mental health services

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW

As legislators head back to Lansing this month to balance next year's budget by Oct. 1, local community mental health officials are anxiously waiting to see how they will be affected.

"I'm worried about the budget. I eat, sleep and breathe it," said Alexis Kaczynski, director of North Country Community Mental Health.

Earlier this year a version of the House community health budget instituted a 2 percent increase. However, since reports on Michigan's revenue stream continue to dwindle cuts are becoming more and more likely. In Governor Jennifer Granholm's executive order, $12 million was cut. Prior to the recess, House Republicans proposed cutting more than $150 million and the Senate passed their version which cut $62 million.

"I don't like to admit it because it's like giving the legislature the right to make cuts, but I think it's inevitable," Kaczynski said. "When we look at the executive order, we have to wonder if the governor has the will to make a $40 million cut."

North Country Community Mental Health is dedicated to serving those with severe mental illness, and while a three-quarters of its budget comes from Medicaid, Kaczynski said there are many people who do not fall within the traditional Medicaid guidelines who benefit from local services.

Grants to fund respite care programs for families caring for loved ones with Alzheimer's disease and children with mental illness will likely fall by the way side next year.

"It depends on how deep the cuts are, but our priority remains for the most in need," she said. "But cuts to our general fund will affect people getting in the door. We'll likely have to narrow that gate."

Jama Moffett, director of the Petoskey Club, said in light of all this tough news, she is determined to remain upbeat and hopes focusing on the success of local programs can demonstrate the importance to law makers. She said programs focused on getting people to become self sufficient are worth their expense.

"People forget what it was like before de-institutionalization. There are tremendous cost savings to the tax payer for our services because we reduce recidivism and keep people out of emergency rooms," she said. "I see miracles, people who came in and were catatonic and now they're out working jobs. We turn people into voters and tax payers."

Moffett said the situation is tenuous and while she knows there has been great outcomes for many local clients, she fears what may or may not come next.

"We'll always do our best to protect people," she said. "But it's disheartening we will have to end some services."

Fall activities abound at Camp Daggett

Though summer is passing quickly, there are abundant activities and events at Camp Daggett this fall. Open year-round for organizations, groups, families, businesses and churches, Camp Daggett has the facilities and the activities sure to please.

Kicking off the fall event schedule is the first annual Eco Challenge fundraising event on Sunday Sept. 20 from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. This lighthearted competition, a fundraiser for the Adventure Center, will consist of teams working together to complete an Eco Challenge course including a canoeing obstacle course, adventure ropes course challenges, and more. Teams can be a mix of six men and women age 18 and over. The cost to participate is a minimum of $50 per person, or $300 per team. There are still 3 spaces available. Teams can pre-register for the Eco Challenge by calling Karen Marrett at (231) 347-9742 extension 117 for a registration form.

On Sunday Oct. 11 from noon to 5 p.m., Camp Daggett is hosting its Fall Festival. This free event is a thank you to Camp Daggett's family of campers, donors, volunteers, parents, service clubs, schools and more for their tremendous support. People of all ages will enjoy hay rides, history tours, color tours on beautiful Walloon Lake, pumpkin and pet rock painting, kids' crafts, live entertainment and more. The Adventure Center will also have tours and team building games.

Women are invited to take time to relax, reflect and rejuvenate at the Camp Daggett Women's Weekend Retreat, Friday October 16 through Sunday October 18. Sit with your favorite book by a cozy fire with a cup of coffee or tea in hand, experience the magnificent fall colors reflecting on Walloon Lake, enjoy a soothing massage or listen to book reviews hosted by McLean & Faxon bookstore. Also available will be kayaking, introduction to water color, a discussion on nutrition and women's health and more...plus lodging and delicious catered meals - all included in your registration fee of $250. Enrollment is limited to 20 women so reserve your weekend getaway today! Please call 231-347-9742 to register. A complete event itinerary will be posted on our Web site in the upcoming weeks.

Finally the Camp Daggett Adventure Center is offering an Adventure Education/Challenge Course Training Workshop on Nov. 11 through 13. Cost is $160 and includes lunch, instruction, safety/instructor manual and use of equipment. Training is 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. each day. The workshop is limited to 15 participants, age 21 and up. Call 347-9742 extension 117 for details.

Perpetuate petunias with bids for blooms

BY CAROL SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Another summer is nearly over, the nearly 30,000 petunias that line the streets of Charlevoix are still blooming thanks to the teamwork of an army of volunteers, countless donations and the forethought and hard work of the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful members and board.

In a continued effort to "keep Charlevoix beautiful," Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will host the fourth annual Bids for Blooms fundraiser at Belvedere Casino on Sept. 26 from 6 p.m. to midnight.

All proceeds will benefit Operation Petunia.

Affectionately known as the "Petunia Ball," the evening will include food from local restaurants, a silent auction and live entertainment.

Local band, Yankee Station will play seasoned favorites from classic oldies to modern rock and complimentary hors d'oeuvres and desserts will be served with a cash bar also available.

Tickets are $30 per person and available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Picture This and from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board members.

All are welcome and encouraged to attend. For more information visit www.keepcharlevoixbeautiful.org

The petunia project began in 1982 with a "wild idea" from Charlevoix resident and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board member, Dale Boss as he shared his vision of petunias lining the roadway from city limit to city limit.

The idea took hold and financing for the original project quickly fell into place. Dale's wife, Marilyn custom designed a license plate which read, "We love Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Michigan's resort city on three lakes - come enjoy it with us." High school students sold the plates door to door, raising over $3,500 in under three hours.

Six hundred flats of petunias were ordered and Dale Boss's dream came to fruition.

Now, over thirty years and thousands of dollars later, Operation Petunia exists as we know it today.

Each May, over 1,000 volunteers line the streets of Charlevoix to plant over 1,200 flats of petunias before descending upon East Park for a picnic in celebration of a job well done and the unofficial arrival of summer.

Thanks to generous community support, in 2001 Keep Charlevoix Beautiful was able to purchase a state of the art watering truck.

Capable of holding 12,000 gallons of water for daily delivery to the thirsty plants, the new equipment transformed what used to take Dale, Marilyn, a flat-bed truck and two livestock tanks into a relatively simple and uncomplicated operation.

The new truck also frequents local parades across the state to present Miss Charlevoix and her court on their 37 foot float. According to Nancy Kline, Vice President and spokeswoman for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, over 2.5 million people see the truck and float each year -- further promoting Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Three barrels, two hearts, one dream

A dream come true it was for 13-year-old Jacie LaBlance from Charlevoix.

Over the Labor Day weekend, at the Midland Fair Grounds in Midland, Jacie and her horses, Ima Tender Dolly and Bonners First Latch (Bonnie) competed in the Michigan 2009 National Barrel Horse Association State Finals.

Each contestant is allowed two runs to try to make their way into the final go on Saturday night.

Jacie was fortunate enough to qualify with both horses.

She qualified with Dolly in the youth, which is 18 and under and in the open class with her other horse, Bonnie, in which anyone of any age can compete.

Making it back into the finals on your first run helps take the pressure off the next day of competition.

Making it back to the finals on both horses was exciting enough, but what was to come was unbelievable.

She wasn't sure just how Dolly was going to do in her final run, since on her second run, Dolly didn't come around the second barrel very well.

"I had to slow her way down so we could get back on track. We finished the pattern with a time, but that was about it," Jacie said. "Before my final run, I worked with her, making sure she was giving me her nose and just keeping her soft."

The finals began at 6 p.m. on Saturday night.

She was number 13 in the youth, out of 46 riders. She went in the arena with a positive attitude, trusting her horse would make the turns for her.

She came out with her and Dolly's personal best, a 17.063, which set her up good at the top of the third divisional. There is where she stayed and was awarded the top prize in the youth 3-D.

She received a saddle and a cash prize for a total value of about $950.

This would be Jacie's second saddle of the year; for she was also awarded a saddle for the year end awards for International Barrel Racing Association in August aboard her same mount, Ima Tender Dolly in the 3-D youth.

She also had a phenomenal barrel pattern with her other mount, Bonnie. They ran their personal best in the open class, running against 96 other contestants. Although it didn't place her in the money, she was elated with her horse's performance.

Her sidekick and best friend, Caroline Boss, also competed in her first State Finals competition.

She had a great time and was happy to get her personal best time of 16.5 seconds.

Both girls are already talking about next season, in which they are hoping to better their times and improve their runs wherever they can.

Jacie would like to thank all of those who have supported her throughout the barrel racing season: her

Beaver Island Booodle and Bite

Beaver Island kick starts next month with the Island Booodle and Bite of Beaver Island Food Festival Saturday, Oct. 3.

The booodle is a 5K run and walk along Paradise Bay. The race begins at 10 a.m. with registration beginning at 8 a.m. at the Beachcomber.

Participants receive T-shirts, refreshments and prizes. Cost is $30 until Sept. 25 and $35 the day of the race; families cost $40 until Sept. 25 and $45 the day of the race.

Registration forms are available from the Beaver Island chamber, at www.beaverisland.org or at the Beachcomber the day of the race. Proceeds go to Beaver Island Sport Boosters.

The Bite of Beaver Island is in its ninth year, and runs 1-4 p.m. at Holy Cross Hall.

In addition to samplings by amateur and professional chefs for nominal prices, there will be an apple pie contest. Those wishing to participate should drop off their pie 10 a.m.-1 p.m. at the hall; put your name on the bottom of the pie plate.

The community center is hosting a craft fair 1-4 p.m. Entry forms for that and the Bite are available at www.beaverisland.org.

A group bike ride is scheduled for 4 p.m., starting from the bathing beach. Bikers can join for all or part of the 8-mile or 14-mile rides. Per mile pledges benefit the sports boosters. For more information, call Linda Frymoyer at (231) 651-9618.

For more information on the run and food festival, contact the chamber at (231) 448-2505 or visit www.beaverisland.org.

Jazz poet slings thick thoughts with witty wordplay

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Dressed in a black open-neck shirt, slacks and a pair of Converse high-tops, John Alberts sat at a table outside the Alcove Cafe and eyed a logy swarm of bees.

"I'm terribly allergic to bees," he said casually, dismissing a fat bumblebee with a wave of his hand. "If one stings me, I'll have a half-hour to get to the hospital. They'll give me a shot of adrenaline and monitor my vital signs for a couple of hours."

Asked if he'd like to move inside, Alberts answered quickly in the negative. It seemed he'd rather take a chance than play it safe.

Alberts is a poet with a passion for the buzz and hum and staccato snap of the spoken word.

"I stumbled into it on the way to something else," he said of writing poetry. "I listen to things and I write down how they sound. Like jazz, there's a cadence and rhythm. The words are kind of like notes in music."

As a teenager in Saginaw, Alberts was inspired to write poetry by an English teacher during his sophomore year.

"In high school I was overweight, very shy — I was just a mess," he said.

Annoyed by what he determined to be a spurious assignment in his high school economics class, Alberts wrote his essay on why he shouldn't write an essay. It did not bode well with school officials.

"But I discovered that writing does have a powerful effect," he said.

Later at Michigan State University, a professor read a poem and "I got it," said Alberts. "I changed my major to theater arts. I was just fascinated by what can happen with the spoken word."

After a career of teaching theater in Pomona, Calif., Alberts returned to Michigan with his wife, Rachel. The couple is active in the northern Michigan art community.

Alberts doesn't like to talk about how he writes. "It's like trying to find out how a frog jumps by dissecting the frog," he said. "I'm suspicious of that."

Instead, he relies on the effect that the words convey, preferably when read aloud.

"I think poems should be heard. Every time I get up to read, I want to knock people on their ass."

Feeling that the artist's intention is not open to arbitrary interpretation, Alberts disagrees with the notion that a poem is whatever the reader wants it to be.

"A steak is a steak," he said. "You can't say it's a lobster."

Alberts produced a copy of one of his recent works in progress titled "War Games." He read aloud, his voice sliding around the words, at first playful, then wicked and sly. It ended, like the sizzling of a doved fire, with the smell of smoke.

"Sometimes, as you're walking along and you catch sight of yourself in a shop window, you see yourself in a completely different way," Alberts said. "It's our calling, our obligation, to share that view with other people."

Dommage, Ma Cher Duncan

Inspired by natural phenomena such as waves and winds, she danced in long flowing diaphanous tunics, her long hair unbound. She died in an automobile accident on a road in Nice, France, in 1927 just after one final dramatic appearance in Paris. Her long scarf, trailing behind her in her speeding convertible, wound around the car's rear wheel, strangling her.

Dommage, Ma Cher Duncan
Quelle dommage! I repeat. What a pity!
That bold Isadora, on leaving the City
Of Lights, did not, in her speedy drophead
Forsake loved habits; drive scarfless instead.
A life done in style, then done in a trice
While not nice; Nice, for her, did suffice.
How style's substance siezes and strangles us.
Some dash, some flash, then alas, rigor mortis.

Time to Make Post-Recession Investment Moves?

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

Like a tiresome dinner guest, the recession has long outstayed its welcome. But there are some clear signs that the economy has begun to turn around. If that is indeed the case, how should you, as an individual investor, respond?

Before we get to that question, let's quickly review some of the key factors that suggest the recession may be ending. First, we've seen four straight months of gains by the Conference Board's Index of Leading Economic Indicators. Also, the job market is improving somewhat and bank lending is increasing. The Federal Reserve's efforts to stabilize the financial system have improved conditions in the corporate credit markets, as indicated by a dramatic increase in the amount of new bonds issued by companies thus far in 2009. We've also seen improvements in the housing market and in industrial production.

Even if all this evidence indicates the recession is ending, does that necessarily mean that boom times for investors will follow? A look back in time shows reasons for optimism. In 10 recessions, extending from 1949 through 2001, the S & P 500 rose, on average, 9.5 percent six months following the recession's end date, and 15.5 percent after 12 months, according to Ned Davis Research. Of course, as you have no doubt heard, past performance is no guarantee of future results, but in years gone by, staying in the market rewarded long-term investors — those who could look beyond the recession at hand.

In any case, if the recession is ending, let's return to our original question: What investment moves should you make? As we've already seen, the most important step you can take is to remain invested — and if you're out of the market, consider getting back in. As exhibited by the strong market rally this summer, large gains can come quickly, but they only come to those who aren't on the investment sidelines.

In addition to staying invested, consider these other post-recession moves — which are actually pretty good moves before and during a recession, as well:

• Look for quality. In any economic environment, you'll be making a smart move by focusing on quality investments that fit your unique situation. You may look for the stocks of those companies with strong management teams and competitive products. And stick with investment-grade bonds, if fixed income is appropriate.

• Diversify. Build a portfolio containing a variety of investments, including stocks, bonds, government securities and certificates of deposit. While diversification, by itself, can't guarantee a profit or protect against a loss, it can help you reduce the long-term effects of volatility on your holdings.

• Keep a long-term perspective. It's not easy to overlook market fluctuations, especially severe ones, but if you can keep your eyes on what you hope to achieve in the future, you might be less likely to over-react to short-term events. While you may need to periodically adjust your investment mix in response to changes in the economy and in your own life, you'll be better off.

in the long run, by establishing a strategy that's appropriate for your individual risk tolerance and goals — and sticking to it.

As individuals, we're all subject to the ebbs and flows of the economy. But by focusing on those things you can control — such as buying quality investments, diversifying and thinking long term — you can become an investor for all seasons.

Churches working together to help save marriages, reduce divorce

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The national average for divorce rates is close to 52 percent while Charlevoix County has nearly a 60 percent rate of divorce.

It is this statistic, said Pastor Dan Gilmore of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, which has he and fellow church leaders taking action.

"This is a crisis," Gilmore said. "From 2003 to 2007 we had 1,045 marriages in Charlevoix County. Over that same time period we had 625 divorces that were filed in the county. That is a failure rate of 59.8 percent."

To help reverse the trend of divorces in the area Gilmore and several other church leaders in the Charlevoix Ministerial Association will be holding an organizational video conference with the Marriage Savers organization from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. on Sept. 22, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

"Marriage Savers is headed by Mike and Harriet McManus who (have) begun this ministry to help communities come together to do different things to strengthen marriage," Gilmore said. "Things could include having substantial premarital counseling to deal with things like communication issues and finances; encouraging marriage enrichment and providing counseling by trained mentor couples."

The meeting, which is open to the public, will include an hour-long informational speech by Mike McManus and a question and answer session. The meeting will also serve as a means for those interested to organize their efforts and to plan how the marriage enrichment programs will be implemented in the area.

"What type of positive change in American family life could improve the overall well being of married couples and children in Charlevoix County? Many believe that the answer comes by strengthening the marriage relationship and increasing the probability of children being born and raised in healthy, married, two-parent homes with a father and mother both providing guidance and nurture," the Lake Charlevoix Area Community Marriage Covenant states.

Charlevoix's marriage covenant will be one of more than 200 similar social contracts nationwide.

Couples interested in the mentor training program should also plan on attending.

"Seasoned married couples that have weathered some storms are an amazing resource that we have and often overlook," Gilmore said.

The Sept. 22 planning session will culminate in a larger event at 1 p.m. on Oct. 23 at the Charlevoix County Building, tentatively at the entry stairway at the east end of the courthouse.

"We're going to sign a marriage covenant," Gilmore said. "We will use that as a blueprint to move forward."

There will also be a Marriage Savers weekend seminar on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 23 and 24. Times will be announced at a later date.

Marriage Covenant

Goals

- A premarital preparation program with a 90 percent success rate
- Marriage enrichment programs
- Restore at least 80 percent of troubled marriages
- Reconcile at least 50 percent of separations
- Work toward an 80-percent success rate for remarried couples and step-families
- Encourage courtship of at least one year
- Affirm abstinence outside marriage and fidelity within marriage
- Provide mentoring for engaged couples that will utilize Scripture, a premarital inventory, and teaching of communication skills — a process lasting approximately four months
- Seek to provide post-wedding mentoring sessions with clergy or mentors in the first year of marriage
- Create step-family support groups to help couples with step-children be successful

Beliefs

- God has established the sanctity of marriage
- God intends the marriage bond of husband and wife to be a lifelong union
- As religious leaders, we have a responsibility to participate in and to provide premarital preparation to improve the understanding and mutual commitment of couples being married
- As religious leaders, we have a responsibility to strengthen and nourish existing marriages

Forewarned is Forearmed

While safety and careful handling top the list on the proper use of a firearm, the use of hearing protection is not far behind. The National Institute on Deafness and Other Communication Disorders says that 10 million Americans have already suffered irreversible hearing loss due to noise, and 30 million more are exposed to dangerous noise levels daily. This includes noise from firearms, which, when experienced at close range, can cause noise-induced hearing loss from even a one-time exposure. It can also occur from exposure to gunfire over an extended period. For these reasons, hunters and target shooters are urged to wear hearing protection. Ask any hunter over age 50 who never protected his or her ears.

P.S. The noise from firearms can reach an ear-piercing 140-170 decibels.

School labor talks continue

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Janik

Now more than one year without a settled labor agreement, Charlevoix Public Schools teachers and administrators continue to negotiate.

Despite having yet to reach an agreement, Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik said the two groups are making positive steps.

"The rules of state mediation do not allow for the discussion and disclosure of issues discussed during the mediation session," Janik stated in an e-mailed response to questions.

A set of identical questions was submitted to both Janik and the head of the Charlevoix Education Association AnnMarie Conway.

Conway did not respond by press time.

"We are in the process of trying to reach agreement on a new contract that is fair to both parties," Janik wrote. "We have been meeting on a regular basis since May and have made significant progress on many issues."

He added, "There has been civil, honest and productive dialogue."

Janik would not comment on the specific positive moves or sticking points, but did identify the mediator as Tom Kreis.

"The meetings are occurring in the administration building conference room," Janik stated.

The teachers' contract expired on Aug. 31, 2008.

time," he said. "The (Food and Drug Administration) recommended that we do it now."

By April 1, Audia said the peanut vendor was supplying Kilwin's with safety-certified peanuts. The recall didn't pose significant financial issues for Kilwin's, he added, noting that the vendor provided the company with credit for the potentially infected products' cost.

Kilwin's release noted that salmonella is an organism that can cause serious, sometimes fatal, infections in young children, frail or elderly people and others with weakened immune systems. Healthy persons infected with salmonella often experience fever, diarrhea (which may be bloody), nausea, vomiting and abdominal pain. In rare situations, salmonella infections can lead to the organism entering the bloodstream and producing more severe illnesses such as arterial infections, endocarditis and arthritis.

Consumers with questions about the recall can contact Kilwin's at 347-3800 between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

'Evil' author coming to Charlevoix

BY CAROL SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Mardi Link, Traverse City resident and mother of three obtained her journalism degree from Michigan State University, but is a self-proclaimed "investigator from an early age."

"As a kid, I took a notebook with me nearly everywhere I went," the author said. "I'd write stories and poems and observations ... I really grew up writing."

Link's first publication, When Evil Came to Good Hart, published by the University of Michigan press in 2008, quickly earned a spot on the Heartland Indie Bestseller list.

And, Link, a former crime reporter, was named Antioch's Betty Crumrine Scholar for Creative Nonfiction in 2007.

When Evil Came to Good Hart delves into the cold-case file of the violent murders of the Robinson family in their Good Hart cabin in 1968.

"When Evil Came to Good Hart is a well-researched and well-written piece of nonfiction that holds the reader in its spell," said Judith Guest, author of Ordinary People and The Tarnished Ey. "My highest praise for Mardi Link's book is to say that it reads like a good novel, a real page-turner."

Isadore's Secret, Link's second nonfiction historical true crime hit shelves this summer. The nonfiction crime thriller chronicles the Aug. 23, 1907 disappearance of Sister Mary Janina, a young Felician nun living and serving in Isadore, Michigan.

The sudden and unexplained disappearance remained a complete mystery for over ten years until the little lady's skeletal remains were discovered buried in the dirt floor of the old church building — weaving a web of scandal and a multitude of unanswered questions.

"In Isadore's Secret," said Steve Lehto, author of Death's Door, "Mardi Link shines a journalist's lamp on this dark, quiet corner of Michigan's history, assuring that the tragic story of Sister Janina is not forgotten. Link's telling is fascinating and thorough, making a story you will not soon forget."

With two books published in the last two years, Link has no plan to slow down, and has already begun work on her next book.

Tentatively titled, Trial By Liars, Link's next project surrounds the investigation of the death of Gaylord man Jerry Tobias.

Found frozen in the back of a pickup truck, five men went to prison for his murder but were later exonerated.

"It will be much more of a courtroom drama than anything else I have ever done," Link said.

The most difficult thing about writing historical nonfiction Link acknowledges, is staying true to the facts.

"The hardest thing is separating fact from fiction and conjecture," she said. "Staying loyal to the facts and the science — that is my first boss. Making the book logical and interesting comes second."

Round Lake Bookstore will welcome Mardi Link for an author visit and book signing from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 21. For more information, contact Round Lake Bookstore at 547-2699 or visit www.mardi-link.com.

Methodists as well as the Episcopal church and the Reformed Church of America.

It would appear these church bodies have no problem with homosexual members and clergy as well.

It is a mystery to me how any Christian church or any Christian can ignore or deny the clear words of the Scripture and give their approval of homosexuality by allowing unrepentant gay members to remain in their church and even serve as leaders.

In my church and denomination we do preach forgiveness of sins which include sexual sins.

Christ died for the sins of adulterers, child molesters and homosexuals as well as all other sins.

In repentance God calls such sinners to end their wickedness and strive to live decent lives in accord with God's word.

Normally, believers want to obey their God out of appreciation for his gift of forgiveness.

They also realize that God's commands are intended to bring peace and joy in this life.

I do not hate those who commit homosexual acts or any other sinful deed. I pity them and offer them Christian love. I would like them to find help and forgiveness for their problem in Jesus Christ, and I am very willing to assist anyone who seeks my help.

My congregations and church body welcome all who wish to find deliverance and hope for real life, eternal life in heaven, in Jesus.

Pastor Jeff Londgren Charlevoix

IN GOD WE TRUST

Editor: Whether reading the paper or watching the news, the main point is that our country is in an economic crisis.

Jobs are being lost, retirement savings have dwindled, homes are being foreclosed and budgets are shrinking.

Have you asked yourself "Why?"

Look at the back of your money. You will see the words "In God We Trust."

Our country has been successful, and hated by other countries, because the United States of America was built on a solid foundation, our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

For the Bible says in Luke 6:22 "Blessed are you when men hate you, when they exclude you and insult you and reject your name as evil, because of the Son of Man."

But, unfortunately, many people have told God to get out of our schools, get out of our governments and get out of their lives. Our God is a loving God, and I believe He has graciously stepped aside.

However, the Bible says in John 15:5, "I am the vine; you are the branches. If a man remains in me and I in him, he will bear much fruit; apart from me you can do nothing."

We don't need a government bailout or a stimulus package or a government run health care plan.

We need to put God back into our workplaces, our schools, our governments and our lives. Man is trying to fix things, but without God, nothing will work.

Pray before you go to work, pray before a meeting and pray before you cash your paycheck.

Put God back where He belongs: In every area of your life and then watch to see what happens. For those who haven't proclaimed Jesus as your Lord and Savior, I give you this for thought: I once read a quote which said, "I would rather live my life as if there is a God and die to find out there isn't, than live my life as if there isn't and die to find out there is."

Christine Schwenke Charlevoix

INDOOR CLINIC NEEDED

Editor: Do you want to play soccer when it's cold? Or do you want to play in a school gym? Well, I want neither. I believe that there should be an indoor soccer clinic.

If you don't think so, then I will tell you why there should be an indoor soccer clinic.

First, I believe that there should be one because maybe the coach would make up fun games to play.

Or maybe you would get good snacks on your breaks. Also you could earn a prize or something if you do well.

Secondly, I believe that you could get taught a little more, or get better at some things. You could get better at controlling the ball in a smaller place. Maybe you could work on kicking the ball a little lighter if you kick it hard. You could also get help on trapping harder balls in a smaller place, so that they land in front of you.

Finally, I believe that it would be good to have an indoor soccer clinic because you could play in the winter. Instead of outside in the cold or in a school gym, you could actually be in a real indoor soccer place. Of course you know this, but when you're indoors you don't have to play with snow on the ground. Also you don't have to take a break in the winter. You could play all year 'round'.

So did you change your mind about playing outside or in a school gym? Well, I hope so! That is why I think there should be an indoor soccer clinic.

Oleson's food stores honored for milestone

On Tuesday, Sept. 15, Traverse City's own Oleson's Food Stores were expected to be honored at a one-of-a-kind event at the Hagerty Center on 715 E. Front St. during the Michigan Grocers Association's Annual Fall Conference.

Oleson's Food Stores marks its 75th year as member of the Michigan Grocers Association (MGA).

Having joined the statewide, non-profit food industry Association in 1934, Oleson's Food Stores has the distinction of being MGA's oldest member.

Oleson's began their grocery business in Traverse City in 1926 and, clearly, the company has withstood the test of time.

With locations in Traverse City, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Manistee, the family-owned Oleson's Food Stores provides Northern Michigan with quality and competitively priced groceries, saying "Yes! to Michigan" by offering an outstanding selection of fresh local produce, fish and meat.

Oleson's Vice President, DJ Oleson, is Vice Chairman of MGA's Board of Directors. Five generations of the Oleson family have made significant contributions to the economic vitality and quality of life in Grand Traverse and surrounding counties, starting with the original store owner Nels Oleson; his son and daughter-in-law, credited as Oleson's Food Stores' founders Gerald W. (known by all as "Mr. O") and his wife Frances Oleson; their sons Jerry and Don Oleson; grandsons DJ and Brad Oleson; granddaughter Marty and her husband Jeff Watts; and several of their children who work in the stores today.

The Michigan Legislature commended Oleson's with a Tribute that praises the company as a "respected job provider" and as "an unwavering supporter of the communities they serve." The Tribute is sponsored by six area legislators: Senator Jason Allen (37th District), and Senator Michelle McManus (35th District), Rep. Kevin Elsheimer (105th District), Rep. Wayne Schmidt (104th District), Rep. Gary McDowell (107th District) and Rep. Dan Scripps (101 District); and it is signed by Governor Jennifer M. Granholm.

The Legislative Tribute will be read and presented to the Oleson family during the MGA Conference's closing night event, beginning at 7 p.m. with a bayside reception, followed by an 8 p.m. dinner tribute to Oleson's Food Stores.

The event will also showcase an ice sculpture, crafted by Traverse City's Arctic Glacier Company, featuring a buffalo to recognize the company's great entrepreneurial spirit in owning a 500 to 600-head herd of buffalo; and, a sheet cake, courtesy of Spartan Store's Glen's Market at Chum's Corner, decorated to honor Oleson's.

Traverse City hosts the MGA Annual Fall Conference this year, as it has on more than a dozen previous occasions dating back to the 1930s.

Additional MGA Members from the Traverse City region include Meijer, Tom's Food Markets, Glen's Markets, Maxbauer's Market, Deering's Market, Peninsula Market, Hansen's of Suttons Bay, Village Market Food Centers, Fife Lake Village Market and Holiday Shopper.

Join MGA and the entire Michigan food industry in congratulating Oleson's Food Stores for their contributions to the food industry and our state, and for 75 years of continuous membership in Michigan Grocers Association.

Michigan Grocers Association is the voice of the state's supermarket and grocery industry, representing 900 leading chain and independent retail stores and 100 manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors. In its 111th year, MGA provides Michigan food businesses with knowledge, solutions and connections to ensure the industry's continued success.

The Association is recognized as an industry leader in government and industry relations, communications, education, technical assistance and public advocacy support.

NEWS-REVIEW

Charlevoix's Eric Buday runs to a second-place finish in the 11-12-grade boys' race in the annual Charlevoix Classic Mud Run at Charlevoix High School. Buday finished in 17 minutes, 42 seconds.

Top mud runners

Jeremy Egas of Wolverine finished in 17 minutes, 8 seconds Saturday, edging Charlevoix's Eric Buday and Petoskey's Michael Drake to win the boys' 11-12 grade race in the annual Charlevoix Classic Mud Run Cross Country Race at Charlevoix High School.

Four Dearborn Edsel Ford runners finished in the top 15 in the 11-12 race as the Thunderbirds won the boys' team title with a combined time of 1 hour, 31 minutes, 38 seconds. Gaylord was second at 1:32:23, followed by Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Petoskey.

Dearborn Divine Child won the girls' team event in 1:46:58, while Gaylord, 1:50:06 was second, followed by Harbor Springs, Cadillac, Petoskey and Charlevoix. Divine Child's Erica Crane won the girls' 11-12 race in 20:04, while teammate Michelle Kerr won the 9-10 race in 20:40.

fields were split into two divisions based on school enrollment, Division I-II-III, and Division IV. Edsel Ford won the boys' Division I-II-III event, while Gaylord was second and Charlevoix was third. Harbor Springs won the Division IV team title, followed by North Country Trails and Central Lake.

Divine Child was first in Division I-II-III girls' competition, followed by Gaylord and Cadillac. Harbor Springs won the Division IV portion, followed by Traverse City St. Francis and Bear Lake.

Twenty-five teams comprised the boys' field, 28 comprised the girls' field. The team standings were determined by the top seven times per team in the 11-12 and 9-10 grade races.

The course included three large water holes, one of which included two cedar logs to form a steeple jump, and hay bales.

"The Charlevoix Township and Charlevoix City fire departments are out here every year at 6 a.m. and spend two to three hours filling up those water holes," Charlevoix girls' coach Mary Plude said. "It just would not be the event we have if they weren't willing to take the time and get up in the morning and do that."

Charlevoix's Buday finished in 17:42, while Petoskey's Drake came in at 17:45. Mike Sydow of Harbor Springs finished sixth in 17:56 in the boys' 11-12 race.

The top area finisher in the boys' 9-10 race was Charlevoix's Kirk Acharya, who was third in 18:01. Ryan Hearsh of Cadillac won in 17:44. Harbor's Ben Kloss placed fourth in 18:17, while Charlevoix's Andrew Plude was fifth in 18:24. Jack Touran of Petoskey placed seventh in 18:40.

Four Harbor runners — Kendal McCarthy, Katie Hoffman, Jessica Hall and Nicole Love — finished in the top 20 in the girls' 11-12 race, while Petoskey's Amy Bieganowski finished ninth in 22:43. McCarthy placed seventh, Hoffman was 11th, Hall was 12th, and Love was 19th.

Harbor's Maddie Buntin turned in the top area finish in the girls' 9-10 race as she placed fourth in 21:49. Teammate Rhi Cullip was eighth, while Charlevoix's Molly Jeakle placed ninth.

"For the girls I was pretty pleased because that's the highest we've ever finished (overall)," Harbor coach Emily Kloss said. "Last year we were fifth (overall)."

"The top five girls were within 60 seconds again. Our order changed again so it's going to be interesting to see how that plays out. I think it's going to continue to change, probably for the next two, three weeks. It's a very good thing, especially when they're running that close."

The Harbor boys followed a similar path.

"Nick Cooper, who ran No. 1 the other day, ran seventh (Saturday)," coach Mike Kloss said. "The kids have been switching back and forth. As we get in shape I hope over the next few weeks we'll continue to get better."

"They ran pretty good. Some ran better than they did in the last race and others were the opposite."

First-year Petoskey coach Keth Henning said he was pleased with his both of his squads' fifth-place finishes particularly in light of the fact that Petoskey was missing three of its top runners due to other obligations.

"For many of the teams that were there, this was their second or third race," Henning said. "For our first race I was very satisfied."

"Our second-to-fifth girl was only an 18-second spread which is awesome. I'm happy with all my girls."

"Our fifth place for the boys wasn't too bad considering where we were last year. Many of the boys had PRs. We have a very large spread between our first and seventh man. We need a few more races to better assess the season. Right now, I think we're heading in the right direction."

Jess
utes to play Friday as the Grayling quarterback Zack Wolcott scrambled for a 5 yard touchdown run with under two minutes to play Friday as the Vikings handed Charlevoix its first loss of the season. Jake McLean scored on a 73-yard run for Charlevoix, 2-1 overall, 0-1 Lake Michigan. Grayling is 2-1, 1-0. "Turnovers in the first half and second half cost us," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said.

"Extra points were also obviously important in this one." McLean finished with 111 yards on 11 carries, and Charlevoix quarterback Clayton Mitchell completed 7-of-15 passes for 94 yards and ran for two TDs. J.T. Lawrance had five receptions for 55 yards for the Rayders. Jess said that sophomore Coby Herriman did a great job of dominating the middle at linebacker. Charlevoix faces Traverse City St. Francis at home on Sept. 18 in a Lake Michigan Conference game.

Find help and healing for the hurt of separation and divorce through Community Reformed Church's DivorceCare program

You don't have to go through it alone...

DivorceCare is a friendly, caring group of people who will walk alongside you through one of life's most difficult experiences. Don't go through separation or divorce alone.

Most people will tell you that separation and divorce are the most painful and stressful experiences they've ever faced. It's a confusing time when you feel isolated and have lots of questions about issues you've never faced before. Our DivorceCare group meets weekly to help you face these challenges and move toward rebuilding your life.

A Seminar with Experts

DivorceCare seminars and support groups are led by people who understand what you are going through and want to help. You'll gain access to valuable DivorceCare resources to help you deal with the pain of the past and look forward to rebuilding your life. DivorceCare is available for kids too!

During the first 30-40 minutes of the meeting, each DivorceCare group watches a video seminar featuring experts on divorce and recovery subjects. These videos are produced in an interesting way to watch television, a magazine format featuring expert interviews, real-life case studies and on-location video.

A Support Group with Focus

Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix offers DivorceCare recovery support group that meets on Thursday evenings, beginning September 17, from 7-9 p.m. for 13 weeks (join anytime) at the "Servants Quarters," 100 Oak Street (located next door to the Community Reformed Church, one mile north of the bridge). A light dinner is provided.

231-675-1925

After viewing the video, A DivorceCare group participants spend time as a support group, discussing what was presented in that week's video seminar and what is going on in the lives of group members.

Fun no gamble at Charlevoix Yacht Club

The Charlevoix Yacht Club is hosting their annual Casino Nite at 7 p.m. on Sept. 26 at the Yacht Club located at 209 Ferry Ave. Black jack, roulette, craps and more games are on tap. Pewabic Pottery

Fired Magic: Detroit's Pewabic Pottery Treasures, by Marcy Heller Fisher, is the story of a child discovering the beauty of Pewabic tile installations in the metropolitan Detroit area. Fisher will speak from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 18 at the Charlevoix Public Library for two very different sessions. Children of all ages will have an opportunity to hear some of the stories from Fired Magic, while creating a Pewabic like tile magnet of their own alongside author Marcy.

At 6:30 p.m., Fisher will present another program no contemporary Pewabic.

The Photo Detective, aka Maureen Taylor, an internationally recognized expert on solving the mysteries of old photographs, will be on hand at the Charlevoix Public Library to help unravel the mysteries behind your old photographs. During "Tales from the Photo Detective," 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 18, Taylor will examine several photos and show the clues that brought the pictures to life.

She will also share basic steps of her detective work with the audience. The evening will be capped off by the Michigan Room Committee presenting the Margaret Duerr award to John Frey.

The Duerr award is given to an individual who has demonstrated a special interest in the quality of life of northern Michigan.

The following day, Saturday, Sept. 19, Maureen Taylor will present two workshops for those who wish more hands on knowledge. "Identifying and Dating Family Photographs," 10:30 a.m. to noon will teach the attendees ten easy steps for naming those unidentified pictures tucked away in shoe boxes. "Preserving Family Photographs," 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., covers everything a family photographer needs to know about caring for photographs, including printing and sharing digital images and how to safely label grandparent's photos.

Each of these workshops has a $10 fee. Registration brochures are available at the library or call 237-7340.

What would Jesus do about health care?

FAITHFUL SERVANT

Stephen Guthrie

Like everyone else who is being pinched by escalating health care costs, I've been paying close attention to the national debate over health care reform.

As the national dialogue strains the limits of civility, it seems increasingly clear that at the heart of the debate is who will continue to profit from illness and injury. Each major stakeholder in the health industry — the insurers, the hospitals, the drug manufacturers, the physicians — has employed high priced lobbyists to, in effect, buy the votes of our elected officials. Today, the only group with no one lobbying on its behalf is that group of average citizens, millions of us, who work and pay the bills.

The President seems to recognize health care reform as an urgent economic issue. He knows that health care is capable of bankrupting this nation if something isn't done to rein in the profiteering that defines the industry.

But to his credit, the President also appears genuinely concerned that in the richest nation in recorded history there are too many people living everyday with untreated illness and injury, who are unable to afford the medicines, therapy, or procedures they need to become well. He appears to understand that health care in America is only for those who can afford it. Perhaps

I'm assuming too much, but in the great cacophony of voices arguing the issue the President alone appears motivated as much by compassion as by economics.

All of this led me to think about WWJD (what would Jesus do?).

What would Jesus have to say about this issue if He were here to weigh in?

Jesus loved people, and still does. The gospel portrayal of Jesus showed Him to be a man of great compassion. I think if Jesus was in the debate He would exhort us to love the sick and hurting among us just as He loves them, and to make it our highest priority to bring comfort and healing into their lives.

I think He would tell those of us who claim to be His followers to get personally involved and not think of someone else's need as someone else's problem. James tells us that our faith has no real worth if we don't do something meaningful with it. He tells us in James 2:15 that when we come upon someone in need it isn't sufficient to just wish them well. Demonstration of our faith requires that we actually get involved in that person's need and help to meet it.

Just as He would express His disappointment over our collective apathy, I think Jesus would sharply scold us for our collective greed.

I think He would tell the health care industry that it is reprehensible to think of human suffering as a profit center. I think He would tell the CEOs of hospitals, insurers, and drug manufacturers that their first responsibility is to suffering humanity, and their shareholders come second.

I think He would tell the insurers who cancel coverage or deny claims for treatment in the name of profit to stop cheating people and give them the benefits they paid for.

I think He would remind physicians and care givers that they have been given a gift and a great privilege to bring healing to the hurting, and that the mercy that is literally in their hands was never intended to benefit only the rich and privileged.

I think He would point as a positive example to healer-servants like our own Dr. John Lignell, who for years has compassionately and quietly treated people who otherwise could not afford it and who drives a Mercury rather than a Mercedes.

I think He would rebuke the drug manufacturers who, through their pricing decisions, in effect decide who will live or die.

I think He would tell parents to stop feeding their kids high fructose corn syrup and junk food and thereby prevent childhood obesity and the emerging epidemic of type 2 diabetes. Then I think he would remind adults that gluttony and sloth were two of the original seven deadly sins and tell us to start eating right and exercising.

And finally, I think He would tell His church to start doing something meaningful about this problem. He would point out that if everyone who professed to be a Christian lived faithfully and gave generously the church would have the funds to solve any problem that besets society. After all, it's all God's money anyway. The body of believers needs to begin using His money to care for His people.

Today our nation is treating the health care crisis as a political and economic issue. We Christians need to beat the drum to treat it as a humanitarian issue, and begin demonstrating our faith by our works.

Size does seem to matter for all life forms

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Many decades ago, about 1965, I read an article in the Journal of the Sigma Xi Science Society about the importance of size in the life and times of all animal organisms.

I do not remember any of the specific examples, and I have been unable to find a copy of the article, but do remember that overall size determines the physiological characteristics and even the behavior of animals.

As a biologist, I haven't pursued those ideas, because there are few limits on plant size that are of any consequence.

I was recently reminded of the size article by the behavior of a chipmunk that lives in our yard and has learned to accept peanuts from my hand. When the chipmunk approaches me and the peanut, he does not stroll over slowly or cautiously but darts up to me in a series of very quick moves separated by short periods of absolute stillness. I wondered why, and I think I know. It has something to do with his small size compared to the size of all the potential creatures that might like to use him as food.

With his particular pattern of movement, it is possible for the chipmunk to be nearly invisible even while getting from place to place. Most of his time is spent perfectly still, and thus so much less visible.

A Bill Mauldin cartoon from World War II has his heroes Willie and Joe digging a foxhole for their shelter while a heavily armored tank rumbles by.

Willie says, "I'd rather dig a moiré foxhole that tracks the eye."

Our local chipmunk knows that movement attracts the eye instinctively and travels in the short bursts that are unlikely to attract the eye of any potential predator.

The advantages of large size in the natural world are pretty obvious.

The advantages of small size are less so. It is hard to hide an elephant, but our chipmunk can be completely out of sight under a few leaves.

A large animal may be very strong, but a small one can be unnoticed.

The disadvantages of small size are sometimes not as obvious. On a per pound basis, our chipmunk needs almost a hundred times as much food as the elephant. He needs that extra food to keep himself warm, since he loses heat much faster than the elephant. For very small warm-blooded animals like our chipmunk, eating a lot of high energy food is absolutely necessary.

That food need even puts a limit on how small a warm-blooded creature can be. The smallest mammal in our climate is a dwarf or pygmy shrew, about half the size of a house mouse. That shrew must eat almost constantly to keep up his metabolism.

A warm-blooded animal smaller than that could not eat fast enough or in amounts large enough to maintain his temperature.

Shrews are in almost constant motion and so operate mostly at night to avoid predators. During the daylight hours they can enter a sort of short term hibernation to keep from starving to death.

If you have watched small lizards in those parts of the world where they live — we have only one kind of lizard in Michigan out of 125 kinds that live mostly in the warmer climates of the U.S. — you might remember that they move almost exactly in the way our local chipmunk does.

They dart quickly and then remain stationary for seconds before moving again.

While being a completely different kind of animal, they too respond as small creatures must to avoid being eaten.

Is size important? It determines almost everything about our animal neighbors.

Horses gone wild, and other barnyard musings

MORE OR LESS
Christine Gwidt

When my husband and I traveled to Mexico recently, I was thrilled to discover a veritable barnyard wandering the beach in front of our hotel.

Among the donkeys, goats and chickens, I observed that an occasional group of riders passed by on horseback. I determined to be one of them.

It took a bit of persuading to convince my tenderfoot husband, but the sheer force of my enthusiasm brought him around. We made arrangements with Jesus, a local equestrian, to rent two of his stables finest. He would bring the horses to our hotel the following day at 9 a.m.

"I'm ready," my husband declared the next morning, appearing on the balcony where I was finishing a cup of coffee. He was wearing a pair of shorts, a tee shirt and flip-flops.

"You might want to wear long pants," I suggested. "And a pair of shoes with a heel."

"I'm fine."

"But the stirrup leathers will pinch your bare legs and your feet will slip through the stirrups if you wear flip-flops" I said, drawing upon my superior knowledge of all things equine.

"It's hot out there. I'm fine."

"Okay. But really, you should think about it. I'm wearing jeans and boots."

"And a halter-top. I'm pretty sure that a halter-top isn't considered riding gear."

"It's hot out there. I'm fine."

Jesus was waiting with our horses. He handed me the reins of a bay mare and directed my husband to a chestnut pony only marginally larger than a Great Dane, explaining that she was the best choice for an inexperienced rider. No doubt this was true. If things got dicey, the novice could bale out simply by standing up and letting the horse run out from under him.

What happened next is still blurry and mysterious to me, but my husband returned in time to see the whole thing and his description is as believable as anything else.

As I sat on my horse in front of Jesus, I sensed a looming movement behind me and then felt a gentle scraping down my back. It felt exactly like big teeth. Suddenly, my flirty little halter-top, edged in a fluttering peplum, was covering my face. As my husband tells it, Diablo reared up, ran his nose down my back, gripped the zipper of my halter top in his teeth and ripped it clean out. An obliging breeze then wafted the unsecured remnant over my head, adding a "Ta-da!" flourish to what was certainly an already mind-numbing spectacle.

As I hastened to pull the unfortunate garment back into place, I was met by the stricken looks from the group on the beach. Our languages may have been different, but their faces bore the universal expression for, "Oh, you poor thing." One of the older women crossed herself.

Feeling an obligation to lighten the mood, I addressed the crowd in my rudimentary Spanish. "Esta caballo es muy loco," I observed sagely, indicating the talented Diablo with my free elbow.

My husband bent to retrieve something from the sand.

"I am so glad that you talked me into this," he said as he handed me the spittle-flecked zipper. "I wouldn't have missed this for the world."

LETTERS to the editor

A PEACH OF A PIE
Editor:

About a year ago I wrote a letter suggesting that the powers that be get rid of the largest cherry pie if people could not see it anymore.

Well I want to give a huge thank you to whom-ever did the wonderful job of clearing the shrubs and trees and shining things up and offering benches to sit upon.

Great job.

SAVE THE TREES
Editor:

Trying to save the trees from mutilation and disfigurement on Nettleton and Crouter Streets was much to my disappointment. However, knowing that my voice was heard, and the people on Dixon Street, now, at least, have an opportunity to choose whether or not they will pay to move the wires to protect these century old beauties has given me some degree of satisfaction. Is it really in our best interest of the future to destroy nature at its best in order to provide electricity to our homes, or in this day and age don't you think we can figure out a way to save both without the people of Charlevoix bearing the brunt of the cost.

SMOKING KILLS
Editor:

"Hey do you want everybody to have cancer from smoking?"

First it will waste your money. You could be paying bills. Or, you could buy some cool things like clothes, toys and needs.

You could do more activities because you would have money.

Another reason is cigarettes will kill you.

Every cigarette will take off 11 minutes of your life. You will get addicted to smoking from nicotine. Or, you can get cancer.

Cigarettes charge you. Your teeth will turn yellow.

Your homeowners policy comes with something extra...

NAVY SEAMAN RECRUIT RENEE E. DREW

Daughter of Rita M. and Terry L. Drew of Charlevoix, Mich., recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Drew completed a variety of training which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations". This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of Honor, Courage and Commitment. Its distinctly "Navy" flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a Sailor.

Drew is a 2007 graduate of Charlevoix High School of Charlevoix.

CONTINGENCY OPERATING BASE, BAGRA

Patrolling for potential indirect-fire sites around Contingency Operating Base Basra is one of Spc. Jeremy Dye's primary missions. It's perhaps sometimes a thankless role — an often unheralded job entailing scouting out sites in the dead of night to ensure the safety of the base's inhabitants.

But for Dye and other members of the 1st Battalion, 377th Field Artillery, 17th Fires Brigade, it's not a medal or even thanks they seek, but satisfaction that their efforts do make a difference.

Dye recalls one experience

"We were out doing our regular indirect fire patrol when the call came in that the COB was taking incoming fire," the Bravo Battery "Bulldogs" Soldier said. "After making immediate communication with the Iraqi security forces and linking up with their troops in the area, we headed for the scene."

Dye said once they arrived, the Iraqi security force took control in assessing the situation as his unit provided security.

"They then called in an explosive ordnance disposal team to completely clear the scene," he said. "After the scene had been declared clear by the EOD, we proceeded with the ISF into the towns to conduct site exploitation and tactical questioning. The citizens of the town were extremely cooperative and eager to assist us in capturing the people behind these attacks."

By exchanging valuable information with the ISF, Dye said they're ensuring both sides are fully aware of the possibility of any upcoming attacks.

"The primary reason for these patrols is to stop the enemy from shooting rockets at the COB," said Staff Sgt. Keith W. Kurth, 3rd platoon sergeant and native of Corpus Christi, Texas. "By maintaining a presence in the area, this hinders insurgents from having the time and opportunity to set up potential attacks."

Bravo Battery 1st Sgt. Johnny L. Anthony said his command recognizes the Soldiers' dedication to their job, and personally feels fortunate to be able to lead such a highly motivated group.

"I couldn't ask for a better bunch of Soldiers," he said. "They work long hours and their job is not without its stress. However, they never balk at any task or anything asked of them in their duties. What they care about is the mission first and foremost."

According to 1st Lt. Aaron Sulak, 3rd platoon leader and Boyne City, native, the Soldiers also care about the long-term effect of their job to pave the way for the ISF to gain complete sovereignty in the Iraq security mission.

"We're here to assist the Iraqi security forces and to help them define their skills and develop strategic tactics to better protect the citizens of Iraq," he said. "We're pulling security during these types of attacks, but it's the ISF that are leading the way, questioning the citizens for helpful information, pinpointing the location of the attacks and gathering the intelligence from the site to prevent future attacks."

OBITUARIES

Louisa "Marie" Roach: Feb. 15, 1917 - Sept. 19, 2009

Louisa "Marie" Roach, age 92, of Ithaca, MI died Saturday, Sept. 19, 2009 at Gratiot Medical Center in Alma.

Funeral Services will be held at noon on Wednesday Sept. 23 at Smith Family Funeral Homes, Ithaca Chapel.

Visitation will be held on Tuesday from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Smith Family Funeral Homes.

Marie was born in Daytona Beach, Florida on Feb. 15, 1917, the daughter of Andrew Christian and Louisa Marie (Graunstedt) Hansen. She graduated from Charlevoix High School and Central Michigan University. She was married to Clyde Julius Roach. He preceded her in death in March 1986.

She resided most of her life in the Alma/Ithaca area. She taught country school in the Ithaca/Breckenridge area. She also taught at Ithaca Public Schools, and Carrie Knause School in St. Louis, where she retired. She loved antiquing, walking the beach, going to auctions and flea markets, coin collecting, sudoku puzzles, and spending time with her grandchildren.

She spent her summers in Charlevoix, MI.

She is survived by her four children Gary Roach of West Palm Beach, Fla., Susan Lalonde of Salem, Mass., Julie Roach of Los Angeles, Calif., Anell Roach and Tim Glowney of Ithaca, and daughter in law Karen Roach of West Palm Beach, Fla.; six grandchildren Gary and Rachel Roach Jr., Ryan and Vanessa Roach, Annette Lalonde, Jason Lalonde, Travis Glowney, Alysen Glowney, six great-grandchildren Jackie Roach, James Greene, Kylie Roach, Tyler Roach, Dylan Roach, Samantha Roach, and a sister Esther and Tom Carey of Charlevoix.

She is also survived by lifelong friends Rosemary and Red Ingalls.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, brothers Ed, Bill, and Andrew Hansen.

Memorials may be made to Thompson Memorial Library in Ithaca or Charity of the Donor's Choice.

Online condolences can be sent to www.smithfamilyfuneralhomes.com.

The family is being served by Smith Family Funeral Homes Ithaca Chapel Ithaca, Michigan.

Divorce recovery support

Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix offers DivorceCare recovery support group program which is a free, non-denominational program for everyone.

You can find help and healing for the hurt of separation and divorce.

You don't have to go through it alone. DivorceCare is a friendly, caring group of people who will walk alongside you through one of life's most difficult experiences.

Don't go through separation or divorce alone. Most people will tell you that separation and divorce are the most painful and stressful experiences they've ever faced.

It's a confusing time when you feel isolated and have lots of questions about issues you've never faced before.

Our DivorceCare group meets weekly to help you face these challenges and move toward rebuilding your life.

The DivorceCare seminars and support groups are led by people who understand what you are going through and want to help.

You'll gain access to valuable DivorceCare resources to help you deal with the pain of the past and look forward to rebuilding your life. DivorceCare is available for kids too.

During the first 30 to 40 minutes of the meeting, each DivorceCare group watches a video seminar featuring experts on divorce and recovery subjects. These videos are produced in an interesting way to watch television, a magazine format featuring expert interviews, real-life case studies and on-location video.

After viewing the video, DivorceCare group participants spend time as a support group, discussing what was presented in that week's video seminar and what is going on in the lives of group members.

Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix DivorceCare recovery support group meets on Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. for 13 weeks and you can join at any time. Meetings are held at the Servants Quarters at 100 Oak St. located next door to the Community Reformed Church, one mile north of the bridge.

A light dinner is provided. For further information, call (231) 675-1925.

Fight cancer while drinking beer

There will be a fundraiser on Friday Sept. 25, at the Villager Pub for prostate cancer awareness.

September is National Prostate Cancer Awareness Month and the "Pints for Prostates" campaign will salute survivors of the disease at events taking place across the country, including the Villager Pub in Charlevoix.

The Villager Pub will donate 50 percent of proceeds from draft beer sales on Sept. 25 to the U.S. TOO International Prostate Cancer Education & Support Network.

"We're grateful to the Villager Pub for hosting Pints for Prostates. Events like this help us reach men in a friendly and non-threatening way when they may be willing to listen to a message about prostate health screening and PSA testing," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, MPH, Medical Director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, which is sponsoring the local event.

"4,000 men are diagnosed each week with prostate cancer."

"The key for these men is detecting the disease in the early stages when treatment is nearly 100 percent successful," said Meyerson. "All men should start getting screened for prostate cancer when they reach 40 years old."

For more information about "Pints for Prostates," contact Erika VanDam, Supervisor for Family & Community Health at 347-6014.

Daggett readies for Eco-Challenge event

Eleven local teams have registered to compete in the three-hour Eco-Challenge that is scheduled to take place Sept. 20 at the Camp Daggett Adventure Center.

The participating teams are comprised of friends, co-workers and a local church group.

The 11 team captains are Jay Balasz from Petoskey, Margaret Bowers from Northern Michigan Sports Medicine, Jennifer Brogger, sponsored by Jack Hodge from the Irish Boat Shop, Sally Cannon of Cardiac and Vascular Research of Northern Michigan said, "It's a great way to support Camp Daggett Adventure Center as well as bringing our office together in a way that will help us to stretch, grow and bond."

Traditionally, eco challenges are grueling non-stop races ranging in length from three to five hours to six days that require teamwork while navigating an unmarked course through the wilderness.

"We took this concept and made it 'light' said Joyce Riordan, Adventure Staff member and Chairperson for this event.

"I'm looking forward to my very first Eco-Challenge. I will tell all my 'out of the area' friends that I have participated in a grueling eco-challenge. They'll be so impressed," said David Jones.

The teams are made up of six members each, a mix of both men and women.

Camp Daggett's outdoor course along Walloon Lake is designed so people with various physical abilities can participate.

We want to emphasize that beyond testing the individual physical skills and limits of the teams, the Eco-Challenge builds character, teamwork, and exposes them to our unique outdoor and indoor climbing facilities and the outstanding program we offer," said Riordan.

The Camp Daggett Adventure Center has been a popular destination for area school groups, sports teams and adult corporate groups all looking for fun and teambuilding since 2002.

The enthusiasm is building for this weekend's challenge.

Carole Griffin said, "What a great way to feel like a kid again. I love Camp Daggett."

More than 10 teams to compete in eco-challenge

CHALLENGE

I was a camper there when I was a young girl and made friends that I still connect with after almost 40 years.

My daughters when they were younger, found a new comfort zone hiking for a week in the Wilderness Program with leader Brent Marlatt.

Years ago I became a staff facilitator at the Adventure Center and experienced first hand how committed and wonderful the staff and the Adventure Program really is.

The Eco-Challenge is just simply another way to get the adults to play like kids again while enjoying the natural beauty that surrounds us ... and we get to support a worthy cause. It doesn't get better than that."

The Camp Daggett Eco-

Challenge is a fundraiser for the programs of the adventure center.

In addition to each individual challenge, the teams are competing for the top award, the Eco-Challenge Team Fund Raising Award.

Team members have been collecting pledges and donations in support of the adventure center programs in order to participate in the event.

"Our goal to raise $5,000 is very obtainable and if enthusiasm alone is an indicator of success, I have no doubt that it will be reached" said Riordan.

If you are interested in forming a team for the Eco-Challenge or would like more information, please contact the Camp Daggett Adventure Center Director, Karen Marietti, at 231-347-9742 extension 117 and visit the new Web site at CDAC-teambuilders.com.

Out of Africa; local lady works with 10,000 girls

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix resident and recent Colorado College graduate, Michelle Fritsch is back from the volunteer mission of a lifetime.

The recipient of a prestigious grant through Colorado College, Fritsch spent the last two months volunteering for the not-for-profit educational organization, 10,000 Girls in Kaolack, Senegal, West Africa.

"There is so much that happens when you're abroad for two months," Fritsch said. "Overall, I was looking for an adventure and I was looking to meet some awesome people, and that's exactly what happened ... I'm really happy."

A French studies and Francophile major, Michelle is fluent in French.

Having spent time in France as a student, Michelle elected to dedicate the focus of her grant studies in a French speaking nation outside the European Union — ultimately choosing the remote Francophone nation of Senegal on the western coast of Africa.

Inspired by an episode of CNN Hero's highlighting the organization and its founder, Viola Vaughn, Fritsch packed her bags and left for Africa in late July.

She spent the majority of the summer living with a host family and teaching English to a group of eager and enthusiastic Senegalese young women.

Started by Detroit native, Viola Vaughn, the 10,000 Girls' mission is to provide educational and employment opportunities for 10,000 Senegalese young women.

Founded in 2001, the organization has received regional and national attention and attracts volunteers from across the globe.

As Fritsch describes, 10,000 Girls is divided into two interdependent components: Education and entrepreneurship. The education side of the organization focuses on helping young school-aged girls get the most out of their education.

Unlike America, Fritsch explains, in Senegal, when a girl reaches the age in which she is capable of helping in the home, she is discouraged from her studies and often drops out of school completely.

In an effort to combat the growing problem, 10,000 Girls offers educational support and supplies free of charge to any interested and willing young female.

The entrepreneurship side, on the other hand, helps young women obtain the skills necessary to provide a living and make something of themselves.

"We take girls who have already failed in school," Vaughn said. "They learn how to perfect a skill ... to produce products for export."

She added, "half of the funds go back to [the girls], the other remainder goes back to the education program."

Essentially, the business division of the organization, along with some private, mostly American, financial support, funds the education division.

Aided in their study efforts by three simple things: time, a place to study and the tools necessary to perform those studies, the 10,000 Girls program has a 68 percent success rate for progression to the next grade in school — nearly 3 times the national average.

Furthermore, in contrast to the 53 percent dropout rate for Kaolack, the 10,000 Girls program has consistently maintained a less than two percent failure rate.

Nearly 1,500 girls are involved in the 10,000 Girls program in 6 locations. Over 1,000 girls are waiting to join.

Fluent in both French and English, Michelle spent a great deal of her time abroad teaching 10,000 Girls students English.

"I was working with a particular student," Fritsch said. "We would work three hours a morning."

As a result of Michelle's tutoring, the young girl passed an English test earning her acceptance into the International High School in Dakar — quite a big deal for a young African girl. "I would help her tweak her English skills," Fritsch said. "To the point where she was more comfortable taking this test."

Despite a malaria scare, Michelle categorizes her trip as one of the best experiences of her life.

Just a few weeks into her trip and despite taking every known precaution, Michelle caught malaria and was admitted to an African hospital.

"It was really horrible," Fritsch said. "I ended up going to a small private clinic, but by any means, nothing by our standards here."

After four nights in the remote African hospital, periods of paranoia, which is a common side-effect of the drugs most often used to treat malaria, and little human interaction, Michelle was released, fully treated and well on the mend.

Statistics on 10,000

The 10,000 Girls program started in 2001 when four girls, ages 10 to 12, approached Viola Vaughn for help with their schoolwork.

In just five years, the 10,000 Girls Educational program has gone from 20 to 1442 participants.

The 10,000 Girls program has 1,467 girls as participants.

The number of high school children eligible for school from 15 to 19 is 44,760 girls. However, 1,804 girls are enrolled — that is a nearly four percent enrollment rate.

Join 'Beautiful' people for Bids for Blooms fundraiser

In a continued effort to "keep Charlevoix beautiful", Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will host the fourth annual Bids for Blooms fundraiser from 6 p.m. to midnight on Sept. 26 at the Belvedere Casino.

All proceeds will benefit Operation Petunia, the annual May event which results in nearly 30,000 petunias lining both sides of over five miles of Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

Affectionately known as the "Petunia Ball" the evening will include food from local restaurants, a silent auction and live entertainment.

Local band, Yankee Station will play seasoned favorites from classic oldies to modern rock and complimentary hors d'oeuvres and desserts will be served with a cash bar also available.

Dance the night away with dinner, music and more. Tickets are $30 per person and available at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Picture This and from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board members.

All are welcome and encouraged to attend. For more information visit www.KeepCharlevoixBeautiful.org.

The petunia project began in 1982 with a "wild idea" from Charlevoix resident and Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board member, Dale Boss as he shared his vision of petunias lining the road way of Charlevoix from city limit to city limit.

The idea took hold and financing for the original project quickly fell into place.

Dale's wife, Marilyn custom designed a license plate which read, "We love Charlevoix the Beautiful, Michigan's resort city on three lakes - come enjoy it with us." High school students sold the plates door to door raising over $3,500 in under three hours.

Six hundred flats of petunias were ordered and Dale Boss's dream came to fruition.

Now, over thirty years and thousands of dollars later, Operation Petunia exists as we know it today.

Thanks to generous community support, in 2001 Keep Charlevoix Beautiful was able to purchase a state-of-the-art watering truck. Capable of holding 12,000 gallons of water for daily delivery to the thirsty plants, the new equipment transformed what used to take Dale, Marilyn, a flat-bed truck and two livestock tanks into a relatively simple and uncomplicated operation.

The new truck also frequents local parades across the state to present Miss Charlevoix and her court on their 37 foot float. According to Nancy Kline, Vice President and spokeswoman for Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, over 2.5 million people see the truck and float each year — further promoting Charlevoix the Beautiful.

LETTERS

BUILD AN ARCADE

I feel we need an arcade downtown. One reason is that it would keep kids out of trouble. It would give kids something to do instead of loitering. It would give a place where kids can socialize and meet other kids.

Also, it will be good for our town's economy. It would bring people from other towns and they will spend money downtown. People will walk downtown and spend money on other businesses too.

Finally, it would provide family fun. There would be games for all ages. Plus it would provide something to do on a rainy day.

Those are the reasons why I think that we need an arcade downtown. Parker Skeel
Sixth-grade student,
Charlevoix Middle School

Prep volleyball: Hornets win third tournament of the season

Make it three tournament wins for the Pellston High School volleyball team.

Pellston overcame an early pool play loss to win the Charlevoix Invitational on Saturday.

Pellston defeated Traverse City St. Francis — avenging a pool-play loss — 16-21, 21-7, 15-5 in the championship match.

The Hornets, 25-4-4, fell to the Gladiators, 21-14, 21-14, but then dropped just two games the rest of the day.

"When we lost the first game (in the final) we talked about the simple things of the game and got refocused and played with tremendous team effort to finish strong," Pellston coach Tim McNitt said. After the St. Francis loss, Pellston defeated Rudyard, 21-7, 21-9; defeated Elk Rapids, 23-21, 21-13; and beat East Jordan, 21-16, 21-16, to close pool play. Pellston then defeated Harbor Springs, 21-17, 21-

14 in the quarterfinals before topping Ellsworth, 17-21, 21-3, 15-9, in the semifinals.

Pellston's Katie Dzedzie and Maggie Mikus were named to the six-player all-tournament team. Dzedzie had a career-high 80 kills, 36 digs, nine aces, while Mikus added 19 aces, five kills and 21 digs.

"On the day Maggie showed great leadership as she slowed down numerous strong middles throughout the day," McNitt said.

Also for Pellston, Taylor Friend added a career-best 64 digs, 49 kills and eight aces; Rachel Hutton had 31 digs, 20 kills; Chelsea Bonter collected 70 assists and 47 digs; Samantha McNitt added 54 assists, 38 digs; Kaloe Smith had 11 assists, 10 digs.

— Charlevoix finished tied for third with Ellsworth as the Rayders finished 4-2 on the day. The Rayders opened with a 21-19, 21-17 loss to Ellsworth, then defeated Inland Lakes, 21-10, 21-12; defeated Harbor Springs, 21-19; 21-12; and beat Harbor Light Christian, 21-11, 21-8.

Charlevoix defeated Elk Rapids, 21-12, 21-13, in the quarterfinals before falling to T.C. St. Francis, 21-12, 9-21, 14-16 in the semifinals.

"We did pretty well with a little different lineup," Charlevoix coach Liz Grunch said. "We were missing a senior starter, but we played pretty well and there were a lot of good things that happened."

Charlevoix's Sarah Potter had 17 kills and 32 digs and earned a spot on the all-tournament team.

Also for the Rayders, 18-11-1, Jenna Way had 54 assists, 20 kills and 38 digs; Taylor Storm had 69 digs, 10 kills; Katie Mays added 32 kills and 19 digs; Kelly Greyerbiehl had 38 digs; Allison Hankins had 19 kills, seven blocks; and Isis Hang added 28 digs.

— Ellsworth finished 2-1-2, sharing third place with the Rayders.

The Lancers opened with a 21-19, 21-17 victory over Charlevoix, then split with Harbor Light, 23-21, 19-21; defeated Inland Lakes, 21-11, 21-16; and split with Harbor Springs, 17-21, 21-16. Ellsworth then fell to Pellston in bracket play, 17-21, 21-13, 15-9.

Jaylin Ingalls paced the Lancers with 60 digs, 35 kills, 10 blocks and nine aces, while Sarah Kearney added 68 assists, 19 digs, six kills and four aces. Ingalls was named to the all-tournament team.

Haley Drenth added 29 digs, 12 aces; Savanna Karhoff added 37 digs, six aces; Emily Blaney had 41 digs, 15 aces, seven kills; Emily Veenstra collected 12 kills, six digs; Jordan Higbee had 19 digs, five aces.

Mack' center lauds Norwood for fiscal transparency

Separated by hundreds of miles and of vastly different sizes, a tiny township north of Lake Charlevoix, a large metro Detroit school district and a smaller school district in the Thumb area all have something in common:

They are the latest public entities to "Show Michigan the Money" and put their checkbooks online for taxpayer inspection. Norwood Township, Romulus Community Schools and Marlette Community Schools join a growing list of local governments and school districts embracing this fast-growing transparency trend, according to Ken Braun, director of the Mackinac Center's "Show Michigan the Money" project.

Braun has been encouraging all 551 public school districts and every municipality in Michigan to regularly provide this data on their Web sites and predicts that many more will be added within the next couple of weeks.

Norwood joins several other towns in posting its spending data and, with just 714 residents, may be the smallest Michigan community yet to provide this information in such an accessible format.

"Having politicians in a small community like Norwood get this done is just another reminder that it's the size of a public official's principles, not the size of the community's treasury, that brings about a spirit of open government," said Braun.

With the addition of Marlette and Romulus, there are now 48 public school districts and one intermediate school district statewide providing this information on the Internet, including half of the largest 20 districts. Nearly one in five public school students now attend a district that has an online check register. Links to all 48 district checkbook registers are available at www.showmichigan-themoney.org/9329.

"Romulus Community Schools believes that it is a fiscally responsible district, and being transparent only solidifies this belief," said Sherri Papazoglou, the district's director of business and operations. "We have a very supportive community and feel that this project is a great way to show [them] that their kids come first when spending their resources."

Marlette Superintendent Duane Lange echoed that sentiment. "The Marlette Schools check register is a public document that is approved at our public school board meeting, so if there is a request to have the document posted on our Web site we are more than willing to honor that request," Lange said.

While there are now checkbooks online for 15 school districts in Oakland County, 10 in Wayne County, four in Macomb County, two in Livingston County and one in Monroe County, Braun said that districts in the Grand Rapids area have been conspicuously guarded about their spending details.

"We have been diligently contacting school districts in Kent and Ottawa counties about joining the 21st century by using the Internet to keep taxpayers and parents informed," said Braun.

"Unfortunately, unlike the eager and open response we've received from many districts in Southeast Michigan, transparency is encountering more resistance in districts on the other side of the state."

STEPPING OUT in Charlevoix

Blood drives

8 a.m. to 1:45 p.m. on Sept. 29 - Boyne Falls School 01662 M-75 South

Tai Chi

The beginner's class will be held at 9 a.m. on Wednesdays at the Boyne District Library in the downstairs Community Room.

The continuing student class will meet at 10 a.m. Five more sessions meet Sept. 16, 23 and Oct. 7, 14 and 21.

The cost for seniors is $12 for six weeks and $40 for those under 60 years of age.

For more information, call (231) 237-0103, or Meg McCloy at 231-582-7689 or e-mail megpots@sbcglobal.net.

Now through Nov. 11

Computer classes
Fall computer classes at the Charlevoix Public Library start off with a flurry. Computer Basics, for people new to computing, starts at the absolute beginning; students will learn basic terminology, how to use a mouse, and how to search the Internet.

Beginner Boot Camp allows new computer users a chance to learn new techniques and ask questions. E-mail Basics, will be held 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 14 and Internet Tricks 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Sept. 21.

Come learn how to use the library's new technology, including a color scanner and a Kindle, at the New Tech Toys class, 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. on Sept. 23.

Then in October, Managing Your Computer is offered to assist with basic desk top organization and file storage, 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 21 and 23.

November offers safety tips and shopping. Play it Safe Online, 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 9, will teach you how keep your computer and children safe online.

Shopping Online, 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., Nov. 11, will teach the attendees how to find good deals for holiday shopping.

All computer classes are held in the library's computer lab, 220 West Clinton St. Register by calling 237-7340.

Go to www.charlevoixlibrary.org for information about these or other library programs.

Now through Oct. 31

Common Threads

A special exhibit is on display at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W Clinton St. "Common Threads," is a display of local textile artists' work. A group of women, lead by Kathie Briggs, have been meeting at the library for two years to share, learn and support each other in their endeavors. The display is a culmination of their work and will be in the community room foyer through Oct. 31.

Then from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sept. 16, the artists will gather together to discuss their group and answer questions about their process.

For more information about this or other library events, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

Sept. 22, 24

eBay class
At 6:30 p.m. on Sept. 22 and 24 at the library there will be a class on how to use eBay.

Selling and buying "stuff" has become big business. eBay has become not just a hobby or way to find a bargain; it has become its own industry.

People buy inexpensive merchandise all around town and then sell it on eBay for a profit.

To assist people in becoming more comfortable with this avenue, the Charlevoix Public Library is offering two classes, free of charge, for the general public.

Kathy Ackerman, a certified eBay Educational Specialist, will be teaching the two classes at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W Clinton St. Registration is required, so call soon: 237-7340. For more information about this or other computer classes at the library, visit them at: www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

Local facility resurrected, revitalized

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Like a blue collar phoenix rising from the ashes of a razed manufacturing plant, Z D Metal Products from Newberry in the Upper Peninsula is now operating in the old Charlevoix Manufacturing facility.

The last thing Charlevoix needed was another business to fail when the long-time parts maker at 89911 Martin Road closed last winter. But, according to Z D operations manager Jim Hater, this is a bright spot in an otherwise gloomy economy.

"When Charlevoix Manufacturing closed, things looked very bleak with a lot of good people out of work and the future for the Charlevoix area uncertain," said Hater, the former owner/operator of Charlevoix Manufacturing. "Then these guys came in (Z D Metal Products) and managed to keep part of the jobs and manufacturing in the Charlevoix area."

He added, "These guys, when they took over, they brought some great connections into a lot of new markets we were never able to tap before."

Z D, which operates a magnesium die-cast facility in Newberry that makes automotive parts, decided to expand into aluminum molding since the old Charlevoix Manufacturing facility was already set up to host the work.

"I had gone to these guys and asked if they were interested in putting permanent molding into the processes they were already doing," Hater said. "After we had started our discussions, Charlevoix Manufacturing took all their assets to auction and these guys came in and bought a lot of the equipment and rekindled the

$700K Park Avenue improvements

By Benjamin Gohs
Editor

The over $700,000 city sewer project is underway.

The job, which will be completed in two phases over thousands of feet of sewer, asphalt and water main, is expected to be completed before Memorial Day, 2010.

"We looked at both the condition of underground utilities and the condition of the road and thought Park Avenue, having a fair amount of traffic and deteriorating conditions of both road and utilities, was our number one priority," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel.

Groundbreaking officially began a week ago, Monday, and will consist of the replacement of 1,050 linear feet of sanitary sewer main, 1,750 feet of water main, 1,200 feet of storm sewers, 3,500 feet of curb and gutter and 1,750 feet of asphalt.

"This project is slated to last this fall depending on the weather up until November to mid-November," Straebel said. "And it would ramp up once again in early spring to late March."

The construction is along the section of Park Avenue from State Street to Grant Street.

"Then, for the spring, we'll come in and finish up one block of State Street, from Park to Clinton and then the remainder of Park Avenue from State to Bridge streets," Straebel said.

The major street work will be accompanied by the paving of the DeWitt parking lot across from the Alcove Cafe.

"This will include storm-water best management practices along with improvements we will incorporate two bio-retention areas for rain gardens along Park Avenue," Straebel said. "They will help us filter out some of the sediment and runoff from the road and create cleaner water going into the Pine River Channel."

operation here in our current facility."

Z D Metal Products now employs eight people at the Charlevoix facility.

Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said he looks forward to working with Charlevoix City Council to promote Charlevoix as the place for business.

"Obviously I think any extra business is good. It's nice to see some of the buildings filled and hopefully this trend can continue," he said. "Hopefully it's a sign that these economic times are turning to the better."

And, Hater said, when the economy turns around, they may be able to add more.

"The people we have up here are very quality conscious," Hater said. "I look forward to being able to get back to the point to get some of our past employees back. We had a lot of good people who are still out of work."

Hater pointed to 70 percent of his work going overseas to cheaper competitors, but that there is a resurgence of the need for robotics parts, lighting components and automotive parts.

"With the stuff we're looking at right now, and the markets we're into, we already see are turning around," he said. "I think when this whole recessionary period turns around there will be so much pent-up demand that the companies still around will be going strong."

Hater added, "I don't know how soon the turnaround will be, but it will go quickly and be strong."

OPINIONS yours & ours

The perks and pitfalls of a home office

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

When I first retired from full time work in the school setting as a counselor I decided with my energy I would definitely need some type of plan for my free time.

I came up with a lot of ideas. When I started the Polish Princess Pierogi Company I had to meet health regulation standards to own a kitchen separate from the household. When I realized the expenses were outweighing my profit by a large margin I closed the business three years later.

Cooking for others gives me a whole new appreciation for caterers and other entrepreneurs creating delicacies for the general public. It also taught me the lesson that when mom is busy cooking the next question is always, "Is this for us or for a customer?"

I found I was creating extras of everything for family and then the profit margin dropped again.

My grandparents owned a candy store in Detroit during the 1930s.

Their own store closed because their large family ate the profits while they worked their shift at the store. In some small way I can relate to this.

Since I had a license for private practice counseling I had that "aha" moment and decided this was something I could do from home.

Do not use your dining room as an office — just like a good therapist will tell you, "only sleep in your bedroom, and only eat in your dining room."

Here's what happens when you don't listen. Little piles of paper and notebooks begin to increase in height and if the cat jumps on the table because a dog is in hot pursuit; well you can only imagine.

While counseling a couple about their sex life — yes, sex does come into the conversation once in while working with couples — if there isn't a sign notifying my family members that a session is in progress, the kitchen becomes available to make a sandwich.

I need to do that "neck tie on the door handle" thing. Future clients take note; I now have an office on the third floor of our home so it's always quiet, unless Austin our hundred pound retriever finds us.

The wondrous advantage of working in your home is completing tasks on your computer while still dressed in your evening's finest or in my case mismatched P.J.'s. The down side to this is time gets away from you and the Fed Ex guy thinks this is your usual way of dressing.

Watching children while working at home you may think that's so kind or maybe not.

Even though you provide an excellent educational activity for the children to do on their own for 20 minutes, in reality the computer work may get sent to the wrong party or worse yet forwarded to the wrong group. The reply button usually be comes reply all. Children really love computers.

Working from home there is the added plus of doing a couple of loads of laundry and washing dishes while reminding clients of their appointments via the phone attached to my ear.

If I start dinner in a crock pot early the same morning the welcoming aroma begins to fill my home office with smells reminiscent of childhood, mom and apple pie. Always a good thing if your client needs a sense of care and nurturing.

Then there are the family pets. Our retriever doesn't understand personal space but I forgive him easily as he also serves as therapy when needed.

He seems to sit by those individuals in need of a hug or warm hand to shake.

The downside is the sharing of his toys and forgetting that not everyone loves dogs and the quick whip of his tail which can send objects flying off the table such as coffee and water.

Working from home means keeping things organized and reminding family members that yes, you are working even though you are home.

I try to keep our house neat and organized so clients are not greeted with chaos.

This keeps me on my toes with the daily vacuuming of dog and cat hair resembling tumbleweeds.

So there is some added work involved when your job is located in the place you call home because your clients will truly see who you are and how you live.

I feel the plusses outweigh any of the minuses.

So for those of you venturing forth to start a new home business, I wish you the best of luck and feel free to call me for any advice especially if you are looking for a food or wine critic.

First, Jr. Beef would be much safer for both the child and the buyer. It would be safer for the child because the calf would be younger and smaller. In the future it would be safer because they would know how to handle a cow/steer. It would be safer for the buyer because they would have a trained calf instead of a 500 pound not trained animal trying to push you around.

In addition, it would be a lot more affordable. For instance it costs $60 to buy one bag of milk replacer. You would need 5 to 6 bags and that would cost about $360! For a Jr. Beef you would need 1000 pounds of grain for $125. You would also need hay. You would need 10 bales and a bale cost $3. You can do that math. It would cost $155 to feed a Jr. Beef project! You would save $205! You would also make more money because they both sell for about the same. So, now do you see why a Jr. Beef would be much less expensive?

Also, after you show your calf you can keep raising it or sell it for someone else to raise it. If you continue raising it you could enter it in 4-H again and show it as a steer and then sell it. If you sell it when it is a Jr. Beef than the next owner would do the same. Another benefit is that you would have experience with cows.

For all the reasons above I think we should have a Jr. Beef program. Thank you for your time.

A HEALTHY DOG IS A HAPPY DOG

Editor:
Your dog not getting enough exercise? And what about you? The majority of people say that when they have a companion, they are more likely to go for walks.

East Park has the potential to be a great place for that, but they don't allow dogs.

People could go for walks more often than usual with their dogs, that way getting exercise. East Park is a beautiful place, and many people would say that dogs would fit in like a missing puzzle piece. If you're taking your dog for a walk, you may want to go to East Park, but you can't go with your dog. Then when you take your dog back to your house, you probably won't want to walk all the way back to East Park by yourself.

East Park could be more popular, too. Tourists that have dogs will be more likely to take a walk in beautiful East Park, if they allowed dogs. Little kids would drag their parents along to that park to see the dogs. Charlevoix could look more like a comfortable community when families stopped there more.

Citizens can be responsible enough to take care of their dog's disposal because if they care about the community's well being they would take care of it.

If someone catches them, then they would be in trouble. If there were doggy bags available, people will use them, but East Park will need garbage cans, too. Citizens can be that responsible. I

WHERE'S THE BEEF? IT'S AT 4-H

Editor:
What do your kids do during the summer? Are they interested in being a part of 4-H market livestock or the Emmet County Fair? Well, if your child wants to work with calves or steers they can join 4-H market livestock. It can be dangerous doing an animal with no experience. This is why I think that we should have a Jr. Beef program. With a Jr. Beef you are less likely to get hurt because the animal is smaller and when you first get it is only a week or two old. Do you think a little baby would push you around like a huge steer would? With a Jr. Beef you would halter train a calf and then sell it to someone else to finish.

First, Jr. Beef would be much safer for both the child and the buyer. It would be safer for the child because the calf would be younger and smaller. In the future it would be safer because they would know how to handle a cow/steer. It would be safer for the buyer because they would have a trained calf instead of a 500 pound not trained animal trying to push you around.

In addition, it would be a lot more affordable. For instance it costs $60 to buy one bag of milk replacer. You would need 5 to 6 bags and that would cost about $360! For a Jr. Beef you would need 1000 pounds of grain for $125. You would also need hay. You would need 10 bales and a bale cost $3. You can do that math. It would cost $155 to feed a Jr. Beef project! You would save $205! You would also make more money because they both sell for about the same. So, now do you see why a Jr. Beef would be much less expensive?

Also, after you show your calf you can keep raising it or sell it for someone else to raise it. If you continue raising it you could enter it in 4-H again and show it as a steer and then sell it. If you sell it when it is a Jr. Beef than the next owner would do the same. Another benefit is that you would have experience with cows.

For all the reasons above I think we should have a Jr. Beef program. Thank you for your time.

A HEALTHY DOG IS A HAPPY DOG

Editor:
Your dog not getting enough exercise? And what about you? The majority of people say that when they have a companion, they are more likely to go for walks.

East Park has the potential to be a great place for that, but they don't allow dogs.

People could go for walks more often than usual with their dogs, that way getting exercise. East Park is a beautiful place, and many people would say that dogs would fit in like a missing puzzle piece. If you're taking your dog for a walk, you may want to go to East Park, but you can't go with your dog. Then when you take your dog back to your house, you probably won't want to walk all the way back to East Park by yourself.

East Park could be more popular, too. Tourists that have dogs will be more likely to take a walk in beautiful East Park, if they allowed dogs. Little kids would drag their parents along to that park to see the dogs. Charlevoix could look more like a comfortable community when families stopped there more.

Citizens can be responsible enough to take care of their dog's disposal because if they care about the community's well being they would take care of it.

If someone catches them, then they would be in trouble. If there were doggy bags available, people will use them, but East Park will need garbage cans, too. Citizens can be that responsible. I

Tales of technophobia from the digital daze

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

Game Boy was the kid next door. Standing before the gleaming tower of technology, I am filled with what I assume to be the same reverence and awe experienced by cave dwellers witnessing the first dancing flames of fire. I grasp that marvels are constantly careening down our cultural flame with the velocity of a bolted, and I consider myself lucky to have rolled out of the way.

It's not that I don't eventually come to appreciate the devices. I do. I run blessings on the head of whoever came up with the television remote control. I can still feel the archaic clunk of the knob when I roused myself to tune in Soupy Sales, and I say laudos to the genius behind this particular piece of equipment. It is an irreplaceable facilitator of my lethargy.

Neglecting to reproduce, I have forfeited my best link to the world of constantly evolving electronic miracles.

A five-year-old has a better grasp than I of the multitudinous functions of my MacBook.

To me, it's a glorified typewriter that doesn't require White Out or a new ribbon.

My first PC was delivered to my house 13 years ago, in a series of boxes that occupied a corner of the living room for three months, unopened. I knew that once I sliced the strapping tape and lifted the lids, I was in for it. I would have to first assemble the beast and then master new information.

And my brain is full.

I would like to compress my files and somehow purge the extraneous bits - like the lyrics to all three verses of the theme song from "Bonanza" - but this is unlikely.

For years now, and without much coaxing, I have been able to render up:

"Here in the west, we're livin' in the best - Bonanza! With a gun and a rope and a handful of hope, we planted our family tree."

Stuff like that is taking up a lot of space on my hard drive.

I know that Annette Funicello played the love interest on The Mickey Mouse Club serial, "Spin and Marty."

I know how to keep a hula-hoop rotating effortlessly around my waist, and that Aleister Crowley was born on October 12.

I remember how to execute the first six moves of Cat's Cradle. I can macramé a plant hanger, but I have the good sense not to.

These are all superfluous talents, and crumbs of information that I could live without. I believe that if this space were to be freed up, I could absorb more useful data. Maybe go after that Ph.D. in quantum physics, or invent a tool to retrieve the drawstring on pajamas when it disappears inside the tunnel of fabric. Perhaps, for those of us who consider an abacus to be vaguely suspect, adjustments could be made to mediate our trepidation. Would I be more comfortable marching in the parade of progress if it more closely referenced things with which I am already familiar?

If, for instance, instead of the detached rational drone of my GPS navigation system prompting me to "Prepare to turn left in one-quarter mile," and obligingly reporting that it is "Recalculating..." when I veer off course, what if something more traditional could be installed? A frenzied voice urging, "Left, left, left, left - turn LEFT HERE! No, no, NO! You missed the turn - Crpe! Now we've gotta find someplace to turn around," might suffice. And imagine the satisfaction of exercising the option to unplug the thing and fling it into the back seat. Now that's progress.

The adventures of Earl Young and Don Campbell part II

EARL YOUNG

In part one of the adventures of Earl Young and Don Campbell, the duo had traveled to the Caribbean, making stops which included: Columbia, Trinidad, Barbados, St. Lucia, Martinique, Dominica, Guadalupe, Antigua and St. Kitts, St. Croix, and finally, St. Thomas, before returning to New York.

Upon their return, the boys went their separate ways. Young, inspired by the emerging architectural designs of Frank Lloyd Wright, and disillusioned by the adherence to traditional linear techniques eschewed by his courses at the University of Michigan and the Victorian gingerbread styles he saw around him, chose to break away from the architectural norms of the day and create his own style. For a time, Young went into a partnership with his mother, Myrtle, who owned an insurance company.

Several years later, together with his artist-wife Irene (Harsba), he went on to design, execute the construction of, or remodel 29 homes around Charlevoix, hanging out his shingle as a realtor. He never received a formal degree in architecture.

His constructions are based on Frank Lloyd Wright's theory of design which uses natural materials and respects and adheres to, rather than superimposes on, the landscape. When Young came upon boulders, he immediately filed away his treasure for future use.

Often he had his crew unearth the monstrous rocks left behind when the glacier cut the Great Lakes, and then rebury them. He would memorize the dimensions and the color composition of his finds and catalogue their properties; the boulders would eventually find their final resting place in a chimney or hearth in one of his buildings, looking as if they belonged there and were finally at rest.

The boulder, wood and stucco homes and buildings of Earl Young: Boulder Park, The Weathervane Restaurant, The Weathervane Terrace Hotel, The Lodge Motel, among the litany, have become landmarks in Charlevoix and remain monuments to the vision of a unique and imposing personality.

Did he watch the engineering of the Panama Canal, the movement of earth and stone, the purposeful reordering of nature and apply the principles to his own constructions, especially when faced with the prospect of erecting his masterpiece along the channel in Charlevoix? All interesting conjecture, but certainly plausible.

Anne Bandfield, can speak for her father to some extent, whereas Young's four children have all passed away.

Her father, Don Campbell, spent most of his life after the trip, yearning to sail on the Lakes. He had grown up the son of a man who was part owner of a towing tug and later bought the mail boat, The Beaver.

He and his friends were enamored by the barges and schooners coming in and out of the early Charlevoix harbor as the former swing bridge opened and closed to allow passage.

"That little rocker over there," Bandfield pointed out by her living room hearth, "belonged to Sara Teasdale (American poetess of the 1900s)."

The Teasdale family home looked out over Lake Michigan from the property that is now The Dunes condominiums at the bend of the US 31 highway, heading north after crossing the bridge in Charlevoix.

Are your hunts hilarious?

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Has anything strange or hilarious ever happened to you or a buddy at deer camp?

If so, then your outdoorsman antics could be featured in the new television series "Up at Camp" created by a Charlevoix producer.

"Up at Camp" is really based on having heard a hundred thousand camper stories over the years and then making me laugh until I was crying," said show producer and long-time screenwriter Jim McKinney. "I'm not a hunter, but I have been to more than one deer camp and had a great time and found out most of the activity in deer camp is not out in the woods with a rifle, but a lot of good food, card games, music and jokes."

McKinney and his film company The Content Mint plan to create at least 13 episodes for an undisclosed outdoor channel.

Anyone interested in sharing their camp experiences can contact McKinney to discuss having his film crew come along to deer camp.

"I just want people to feel comfortable in participating," he said. "We're not going to be in their way, and they'll have fun with it."

Contact McKinney at 547-9920 or (231) 675-3611 or JTMShow@aol.com.

Once you've made contact, McKinney said he would like to visit the deer camp to see what he needs as far as equipment is concerned, and then he and his camera man simply blend into the camp and capture the action.

"We think we'll be able to do four-day segments," McKinney said. "After we visit the camp, we do individual interviews with the campers — we can come to their homes or jobs or wherever they want to meet us. Then we go with them when they arrive at camp, the first night at camp and then we go out with one or two of the campers to their blind or tree stand and then spend the rest of the day in the camp listening to the stories and watching the card games and whatever else they would do."

McKinney said his company will provide location fees and negotiable compensation for the hunters.

"What I really want people to know is that we don't want to get in their way — we'll be as unobtrusive as possible," he said. "And, we want them to be as comfortable as possible. We will look just like they do: we won't shave for a month and we might not take showers for a month like some hunters do."

Raise awareness with poverty simulation

To increase community awareness and understanding of issues related to poverty, MSU Extension will offer a poverty simulation workshop on Thursday, Oct. 8, in Charlevoix.

The poverty simulation workshop enables local residents and community leaders to experience some of the daily challenges of living in poverty. Each participant is assigned a particular role in which they interact within the simulated community to provide their family with shelter and basic necessities. At the conclusion of the simulation, workshop participants are invited to share in discussing their reactions and insights about the experience.

This is the second workshop to be offered, funded with grant support from Char-Em United Way," said Carolyn Penniman, MSU Extension educator and coordinator of the event.

"The simulation workshop offered June 3 in Petoskey received many positive comments about the impact it made on those who attended. Participants' understanding of the difficult choices people with few financial resources need to make each month more than doubled."

One hundred percent of the workshop-goers said they would recommend the simulation experience to others."

By engaging a wide range of participants from faith communities, volunteers, agency representatives and business professionals, Penniman hopes to dispel some of the misconceptions about poverty.

"With a greater awareness of its impact, people from all economic levels can more effectively address the poverty issues in our community," Penniman said.

Penniman also chairs the newly formed Char-Em Poverty Reduction Initiative, which will foster community awareness and develop ongoing activities for grassroots efforts for people helping people to reduce poverty. The group meets on the fourth Tuesday each month, and welcomes additional members.

All interested Charlevoix and Emmet County adult residents are invited to attend the simulation from 12:30-4:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 8, at the Community Reformed Church, 100 Oak St., (corner of U.S. 31 and Meech), in Charlevoix. There is no cost to attend the workshop, but registration is required by Thursday, Oct. 1. To register, call MSU Extension at 348-1770.

New staff members at St. Mary School

BY CHRISTINE GWDIT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Stieber

St. Mary School in Charlevoix is back in session, and the new school year brings additions to the teaching staff.

Beth Joure is a 2001 graduate of Michigan State University. Prior to taking her first full-time teaching position this year at St.

Mary, Joure was a substitute teacher in the Charlevoix area for three years.

"Working with the kids and seeing them learn something new," is the best part of the job to Joure, who teaches first grade students. She explained that the satisfaction and excitement is mutual "when they see that they can do it on their own."

Originally from Grand Rapids, Joure recalled that as a child she spent many summers up north with her family. That, and the fact that her parents retired to the area, influenced her decision to return and make Charlevoix her home.

"I like the small town better than the big city," she said.

Graduated in April from Grand Valley State University, Boyne City native, Carly Stieber is another new faculty member at St. Mary. Stieber encourages participation and interaction among her second-grade students, who respond with enthusiasm.

"They love to be given some responsibility," she said. "Little jobs that they are in charge of mean a lot to them."

Stieber, who enjoys running, painting and drawing when school is out, appreciates the fact that the size of the classes at St. Mary allows each child to receive individual attention.

"And the kids are great," said Stieber. "They make me laugh. It's amazing to have a job that makes you happy to be at work."

Rita McIntyre has been St. Mary's music director for two years. She will be teaching music classes for the first time this year to pre-kindergarten through sixth-grade students.

"With the very young children, we have song circle," said McIntyre, who plays piano and organ for the parish. "Reading music is part of the program. Grades three and four are more complex and in grades five and six, we get into more theory."

McIntyre's classes allow her students to tie together what they are doing in church with what they're learning in the music classroom.

"They're very open to learning," she said. "Besides traditional hymns, I teach them songs that I grew up with in church, like 'If I Were a Butterfly.' But you'll hear them out on the playground singing popular music."

Originally from L'Anse, Michigan, McIntyre is a 1990 graduate of Baldwin Wallace College Conservatory in Ohio.

"I love the interaction with the children," McIntyre said of her new teaching position. "They're really beautiful kids. I enjoy knowing them better just by being in the classroom with them."

Principal Keisha Verser welcomes the changes and new faces at St. Mary School.

"We're lucky to have them," she said. "We have a great staff here."

Great Michigan Reads discussion coming to Charlevoix

The Michigan Humanities Council's <http://michiganhumanities.org/programs/gmr/index.php> "Great Michigan Reads" is a community reading program for the entire state, featuring the memoir Stealing Buddha's Dinner by Grand Rapids native Bich Minh Nguyen (pronounced bit-minh-win). The Charlevoix Public Library, 220 West Clinton St., will be hosting a community discussion of this book at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Stealing Buddha's Dinner is a memoir that chronicles the author's migration from Vietnam in 1975 and her coming of age in Grand Rapids, Michigan in the 1980s. The book was selected by a group of nearly 50 librarians, teachers, students, professors, authors, and others from all corners of the state.

A limited number of this book will be available for sale at the Charlevoix Public Library for $5. You must be registered for the book discussion to get that price. Visit the library's Web site to download a book discussion guide at <http://www.charlevoixlibrary.org/read-con/book-discussions.htm>.

Unlikely duo team-up for gardening

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

It began with a flyer: "Have fun while learning about plants, soil and gardening," it read.

Terri Green and her daughters were eager and excited to get involved.

Passionate about gardening herself, Charlevoix resident and mother of five, Terri was anxious to get her daughter's hands in the dirt -- the Junior Master Gardener program was the perfect avenue.

An after school extracurricular activity, the Junior Master Gardener program is open to all students grades three through six and hosted at various elementary schools throughout Charlevoix County. Facilitated and operated by the Michigan State University Extension program, with funding from various garden clubs and organizations throughout the county, each Junior Master Gardener program is run by a certified Master Gardener.

Courses typically run for six weeks and registration is required as the class size is generally limited to 20.

According to MSU Extension spokeswoman, Kim Stevens however, no student has ever been turned away. Volunteer adults help facilitate the program and class topics include spring life cycles, bugs, soil and plant science, vegetables, flowers, compost and gardening tools. Michigan State Extension provides all the materials and ensures the placement of a site coordinator to oversee the program.

To become a certified Junior Master Gardener, students are required to attend a minimum of five educational classroom sessions and complete 10 volunteer hours in the community, helping family, friends and neighbors. Upon completion of the program, students receive Junior Master Gardener certification and oftentimes continue to cultivate and tend gardens of their own over the course of the summer.

Three of Terri's daughters have completed the Junior Master Gardener program -- the most recent of which being her thirteen year old daughter Esther. Esther and Terri along with their neighbor, Jack Roberts, now manage and tend one of Charlevoix's largest home gardens. What began with a mutual interest in gardening has grown into a joint effort bringing together gardeners from three generations. Jack Roberts, a Korean War Veteran and fellow gardener got involved over five years ago, and helps Esther and Terri tend, fertilize and till the garden.

"He just lives two miles from us and has gardened for 50 years," Terri said. "He loves to garden."

When Terri's family chose to build a new house on top of the site of their old garden, Jack excitedly and enthusiastically invited Terri and her girls to plant their garden at his house, and an exciting new relationship was born.

A gardener himself, Jack was thrilled to get involved and excited to share in the fun and work that having a garden entails.

"It's a huge garden," Terri said. "It's a lot of fun, but a lot of work."

Jack's involvement not only helps with the division of labor, but has also introduced and exposed Terri and her girls to gardening tricks and techniques both old and new.

Full of ideas, Roberts brings a new and different perspective to the project. He keeps dog hair around all of the plants to keep the deer away, and grass clippings around the green bean plants to keep the moisture in the ground and the weeds at bay.

With Jack's help and in a continued effort to be innovative with their gardening, the group used of a four foot long piece of one inch conduit as a homemade "seed, er". As a result, the entire garden this year was planted in one hour.

"It's simple, really," Terri explains. "You lay out your row with a string ... from one end to the other, you use your string so your row is straight. You put the conduit pipe in the ground and then standing up, you drop your seed through the conduit pipe ... your seed falls right where you want it to fall in the ground ... and you lift the pipe up, scoop it over and you've covered your seed with the dirt."

The planting time and physical expenditure is more than cut in half when compared to planting the entire garden on your hands and knees.

The Junior Master Gardener program has become an enormous component of Terri and her daughter's lives.

What began over 10 years ago with an interest in gardening, has transformed into a passion and hobby that transcends age and connects neighbors.

"It has been a great team,"

Terri explains. "Jack is 84 and Esther is 13 -- it's a wonderful thing, really."

Worthy Matron serves another term

BY CHRISTINE GWIDT
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

The Charlevoix chapter of Order of the Eastern Star has named Colleen Wilcenski to serve as Worthy Matron for the third time in three years. Wilcenski was first elected in 2006. She served again this year and will be reinstated for another one-year term in October.

"Our main purpose is as a charitable organization," Wilcenski said. "We're a fraternal organization based on taking care of one another and others in the community."

Order of the Eastern Star raises money for several groups in the Charlevoix area, including Charlevoix Area Hospital, Woman's Resource Center, the Charlevoix Food Pantry and abuse shelters. They have used the profits from their fundraising activities, including the proceeds from the hot dog stand that they operate at festivals and craft fairs, to add to their fund. The money is then distributed to non-profit organizations and individuals in need.

"The first time that I served as Worthy Matron, we raised enough money to buy five children two sets of clothes to wear to school, two pairs of shoes, gym clothes and an outerwear coat," said Wilcenski.

"We also have scholarship funds for college-bound kids."

Some of the responsibilities carried out by the Worthy Matron are to oversee and delegate fundraising, coordinate events, assign duties and conduct meetings.

Wilcenski is also the Mother Advisor for the Rainbow Girls, who range in age from 11 to 20. The girls and young women practice making a difference by volunteering in their community and raising money for charitable contributions.

Order of the Eastern Star is a sister organization of the Masons and every year a Mason is selected to serve as Worthy Patron. Erwin Barrett was the past year's Worthy Patron. During her first appointment in 2006, Wilcenski's husband, Sam, was given the honor. He will serve another term with his wife in 2010.

The Charlevoix chapter of Order of the Eastern Star has been active in the area for more than 100 years and currently has approximately 80 members. They hope to consolidate with the Boyne City chapter in January.

To become a member, one must be able to claim a lineage to the organization -- a relative who was either a Mason or an Order of the Eastern Star member. Wilcenski's mother served twice as Worthy Matron in Onaway and her father was a Mason.

"To me, going to the Stars is like going to a prom every month, because I get to dress up in a formal," Wilcenski said. "Part of the tradition is to dress up. It's like a play, but it's a meaningful play. Everybody has their part."

According to Wilcenski, the organization's commitment to the well-being of members and others is fundamental.

"Throughout the state, I have brothers and sisters who aren't related to me," she said.

Order of the Eastern Star is sponsoring their second annual Schwann's sale in Charlevoix, to be held Oct. 10 in the parking lot of Walgreen's Drugs on the corner of M-66 and 31 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. To pre-order items, call Colleen Wil-censki at 547-6755 through Oct. 6, or purchase directly from the Schwann's truck on the day of the sale.

Proceeds from this sale will go to school needs, Charlevoix Food Pantry and the Women's Resource Center.

Huh?

It used to be that a parent or grandparent would be the one most likely to say "huh?" during a conversation with a (grand)child. Nowadays, the tables seem to have turned. According to a recent poll commissioned by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA), high school students are more likely than adults to say "what?" or "huh?" during normal conversation. Just as telling, the youngsters are more likely than their elders to say that they need to turn up the volume, as well as experience ringing in their ears. Taken together, these are three of four symptoms of hearing loss. Most hearing experts blame listening to loud music with earphones for the increase in hearing loss among youngsters.

P.S. Teens are less likely to admit to having a hearing loss until a hearing test provides them with clear proof.

Behavior & Drug Therapy for Insomnia

Those who suffer from insomnia, an epidemic of our modern day society, experience frustration and failures from different therapies. One such therapy is called Cognitive Behavior Therapy (CBT). It is based on the idea that how we think (cognition) affects the way we feel and behave. A practical example is teaching a person to reject false ideas such as "everyone needs 8 hours of sleep every night. Another facet of CBT involves specific treatment do's and don'ts of how to get a good night's sleep. An example is to have the person only go to bed at the moment they think they can fall asleep. A study published in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association evaluated the short term (6 weeks) and long term effects of CBT and a sleep medication called zolpidem (Ambien) in those with persistent sleep problems. It was found that in the short term, adding zolpidem (10 mg at bedtime) to CBT helped in the "now." I took a person to fall asleep or reduce their awake time after they fell asleep. The best therapy was a combination of the two approaches at the beginning, followed by just CBT for the long term.

Annual Charlevoix CROP Walk for hunger helps needy

AND JACOB SAMPSON

Nearly 100 people participated in the annual CROP walk to fight hunger in Charlevoix on Saturday Sept. 26. Gall Seidel and Lucie Witthoef (directly above, from left) walked the full six miles from Charlevoix Middle School to the Ironton Church. Following the walk, there was a barbecue and picnic luncheon at the church. Chuck Winkler of Boyne City (above, far right) was John McKenney's chaperone for the six-mile walk. Below, Charlevoix chef Dave Phillips cooks hotdogs for the hungry walkers.

ELKS LODGE Charity poker run and bike show

Elks on Bikes

Lady biker Kelly Drost announces the day's events leading up to the Charlevoix Elks Lodge's first-ever charity poker run and bike show which began Saturday Sept. 26 in Charlevoix's East Park. The event raised funds for the Forgotten Eagles veterans organization. Don Schoof (right) of Charlevoix, gets ready to take off on the day-long poker run which began with a blessing of the bikes and a bike show in downtown Charlevoix. The day's events ended with a dinner and auction at the Elks Lodge's new headquarters just off Mason St. A crowd (above, from left) sits in East Park while Fr. Jim Hayden blessed a motorcycle in hopes of a safe and fun ride.

Charlevoix Varsity football defeated East Jordan on Friday night 41-0. Charlevoix led 28-0 at the half.

"I thought our kids played real well against East Jordan," said coach Don Jess. "It was nice to get back on track and build some momentum heading into Boyne City. Boyne will be a tough test for us. It's always tough to play over there. We need to have a good week of practice to be ready for the Ramblers."

John Boss led the Rayder

rushing attack with 4 carries for 100 yards and one touchdown. Clayton Mitchell had 10 carries for 98 yards and two TD's. Isaac Hoper and Jake McClean also had rushing touchdowns. McClean added two rushing extra points and Alex Foster kicked an extra point. Coby Herriman caught a 26 yard touchdown pass from Mitchell. The Rayder defense was led by Hunter Johnstone's eight tackles and two sacks. Mitchell picked off two passes and JT Lawrence also had an interception. Bill Ivan, Chris Levens, Zach Smith, John Boss, and Casey Helstrom all recorded sacks on the night. The Rayders travel to Boyne City this Friday.

Rayder girls compete in cross country races

The ninth and 10th-graders were third in their race behind Alpena 31 points and Petoskey 92 points. The Rayders had 103 points. Molly Jeakle was 21:39 and 5th place. She was also a medalist.

Hilary Way ran 22:24 and 13th place. She was a medalist. Stirling Witthoef ran 23:29 for 26th place; Annie Dipert ran 23:32 in 28th; Jane Balasz ran 24:04 in 31st; Sarah Mackenzie was 27:07 and 54th place.

The 11th and 12th-graders had an incomplete team because they only had three runners.

Krista Pischner was the top placer with a 23:56 and a 29th place. Madeline Jeakle was in 43rd place with a 25:35 and Rachel Boss was in 57th place with a 27:29.

Stirling and Hilary had the break out races this meet. They each made close to a minute drop in their times.

Senior Cameron LaVasseur splits the Grand Marais defense during a weekend soccer double-header on Beaver Island. Behind six goals by LaVasseur the Islanders improved to 4-0 with a pair of wins over the Polar Bears, 6-1 and 7-3. Grand Marais is not fielding a volleyball team this year so the Islanders netters, 2-0 on the season, had the weekend off.

Soccer

Charlevoix soccer team wins Thomas Rich scored three goals and Ben Myers had a goal and two assists as Charlevoix rolled past Lakeview, 5-1, Wednesday, Sept. 23 in a non-league boys' soccer match.

Ty Jones had a goal and an assist for the Rayders, 10-1, while Wyatt Drost also added an assist.

Nick Brandi and Matt Batdorff split the game in goal for the Rayders, and John Shea, Ty Wilhelm, Will Larsen and Ryan Wimmer were the defensive standouts, coach Josh Block said.

Speigl served at 100 percent with three aces; and Isis Heng added 19 digs.

For East Jordan, Maribeth Poindexter had 15 kills, 13 digs and three blocks; Shaina Peters had seven kills, 18 digs; Trista Karlsson had 28 assists; and Hannah Streufert had 27 digs.

Charlevoix won the JV match, 25-20, 26-24, 15-3. For the Rayders, Sydney Carlson had three aces, six assists and four digs; Chelsie Hoffman finished with four aces, five kills and nine digs; and Megan Peters added five kills. For East Jordan, Krystal Hoppe served at 100 percent and Tanner McCune was a standout.

East Jordan won the freshman match, 21-25, 25-21, 25-19. Allie Sutton had nine aces and five kills to lead the Red Devils, while and Stevie Bartig had eight aces, seven assists.

Bradley, 6-7, 6-3, 10-7; 3-John Saur-Austin Lobenherz (CX) def. Derek Kelley-Will Klooster, 6-3, 7-6 (7-2); 4-Logan Kline-Trent Bradley (CX) def. Kevin Hansen-Matt Visconti, 7-6.

On Thursday Sept. 24, Charlevoix hosted the White team from Petoskey in tennis. Petoskey won the match 5-3.

#1 singles Logan Kline lost to Duran Nixon, 6-0, 7-5

#2 singles Jake Lemanski lost to Patrick Gietre 6-1, 6-1

#3 singles Ben Way lost to Brandon Pomranla 6-0, 6-0

#4 singles default

#1 Doubles Matt Murry and Dylan Putman defeated Gramm Holey and Tyler Burdau 5-7, 6-4, 10-2

#2 Doubles Blake Schulman and Trent Bradley lost to Hunter Pulski and Mitch Reynolds 6-7, 6-3, 10-7

#3 Doubles John Saur and Austin Lobenherz defeated Derrick Kelley and Will Klooster 6-3, 7-6

#4 Doubles Logan Kline and Trent Bradley defeated Kevin Hanson and Matt Visconti 7-6

"I was really pleased with how we are progressing," said coach Erik Lundteigen. "We have had some very good practices and it is starting to show. Logan Kline made a nice adjustment in his singles match and almost won his second set."

He added, "We must continue to have good focus and effort to keep improving. Charlevoix's next match will be the Conference Championships Oct. 1st at Harbor Springs at 10:00."

Earthwork Children's Album

The Charlevoix Public Library will be hosting a concert in celebration of Earthwork musician's new children's album from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 4.

Earthwork is a collaborative group of musicians and artists — mostly from northern Michigan.

Several Earthwork musicians joined together to create their first Children's album. Musician's that will be participating in the library's interactive concert include: Darlene, Susan Fawcett, Michael Beauchamp, Brandon Foote and Jen Sygit.

The musicians bring a wide variety of talents and expertise. Darlene is adept at every known stage skill and is apt to play one tune on a child's toy accordion and, on the next, accompany herself with a didgeridoo. Susan plays the violin, harmonica, and trombone. Michael Beauchamp spins beautifully melodic yams about the playful allure of live music. Brandon has spent the last nine years working at Lansing's historic Elderly Instruments soaking up the great mystique that dust and musical legacy leave behind, and will arrive with vintage guitar and mandolin in. To hear Jen Sygit sing reminds us that old souls do live in young minds and also plays old-time clawhammer banjo as well as the dobro.

To preview some of the Earthwork artists, visit their Web site at www.earthworkmusic.com.

Fungi and fermentation

A fungi and fermentation skill swap is from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Martha Wagbo Farm and Education Center as we explore the wide world of fungi and fermentation.

Anyone with an interest in local foods; wild-crafting; food preservation; or tasty, healthful meals will greatly benefit from the workshops offered here.

Experienced teachers will present an array of topics, including wild mushroom hikes, mushroom dyeing, mushroom paper, cheese making, vegetable fermentation, mead making,

The Fungi and Fermentation Skill Swap will be held at the Wagbo Farm, located three miles south of East Jordan at 5745 North M-66.

Cost is $20 for pre-registration by Friday, Sept. 25, or $25 at the door. Go to www.ART-meetsEARTH.org or contact Yvonne at (231) 480-4515 or info@ART-meetsEARTH.org.

Who gets new icebreaker?

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Now more than three years after the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Acacia was decommissioned, some feel Charlevoix could still get a replacement.

With $153 million recently slated to build a new coast guard ice-breaking ship for the Great Lakes, talk is turning to who will build it and who will host it.

"Charlevoix is certainly in the running to headquarter the new cutter, but that decision may not be made for up to a year," stated Michelle Begnoche, communications director for District One U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee). "During this process the congressman will continue to support efforts to see the new cutter stationed in Charlevoix."

Back in January, Stupak wrote a letter to appropriations committee chairman Dave Obey requesting the funding.

"This is not an earmark request," Stupak wrote. "This icebreaker funding would protect commerce across all Great Lakes states. Insufficient ice-breaking capability hurts nationwide commerce, decreases business, and puts jobs at risk at an already difficult economic time."

James H.L. Weakley, President of the Lake Carriers' Association, in a Sept. 24 press release, commended Stupak's position.

"In March and April of 2008, our members suffered more than $1.3 million in ice-related damages to their vessels because the Coast Guard could not adequately maintain the shipping lanes," he stated. "When the economy is hitting on all cylinders, our members can move 20 million tons of Council seats

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Barring filings by write-in candidates, there are but one politico per seat in the Charlevoix City Council race.

Veterans Jill Picha and Dennis Kusina of the third and first wards respectively will be joined on this November's ballot by newcomer Bryan Vollmer.

"We've got some projects going on, and I'd like to follow through with them," said Picha, a 71-year-old wife and mother who retired from the accounting business. "I'm on the airport committee and we're going to do expansion and major remodeling on it."

Picha said she enjoys her position on council because of the people she works with.

"We have a great city manager. We can go to him or anybody (city workers) and the doors are open to talk to them if we need to."

Picha said people should vote for her because she always follows through on what she starts and she puts her constituents first.

First Ward candidate Dennis Kusina, a 60-year-old insurance agent with Farm Bureau, has a wife and two children.

Kusina has served on the city planning commission and is finishing his first term on city council.

"I am happy with the way things are going," he said. "I am also happy with the job the city manager has done and I want to make sure the city continues on the right track."

Kusina said he wants to see the improvements at the airport completed in addition to working with the city through what continues to be a tough financial time.

"It's been a pleasure serving and I think it's been a great council to work with," he said. "When I look forward I think it's going to be a tough two years, but this city council and manager and staff can handle it."

Vollmer, he did not return phone messages by press time.

However, his profile will be published as soon as he can be reached.

Residents of the First, Second and Third Wards have until 4 p.m. on Oct. 23 to file a write-in candidate for the Tuesday Nov. 3 election. Call 547-3250 for more information. Polls will be open at City Hall from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Nov. 3.

Jam Teens 4 Africa

JAM Teens 4 Africa are American teens going to Africa to help the children. Eight local teens from Harbor Light Christian School and one homeschool teen from Harbor Springs will be traveling to South Africa in the spring of 2010 to work on improving a child care center for 30 children. Two students from Charlevoix, Suzannah, 17, and Christopher Simon, 16, are carrying on the work of their late father, Albert Simon, who worked for 20 years feeding the children in Africa and passed away in 2007. JAM Teens 4 Africa works in conjunction with Joint Aid Management (JAM), located just outside Johannesburg, South Africa, which lays the groundwork and coordinates all aspects of the projects. A dinner/auction fundraiser is planned from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 17 at the Emmet County Fairgrounds Community Center. Something for everyone at 31st Apple Fest

CAROL R. SULLIVAN
SPECIAL TO THE
COURIER

Three days, 30 varieties of apples, more than 400 dozen doughnuts, hundreds of gallons of cider and syrup, activities for children of all ages and over 100 craftsmen ready to show their wares: Charlevoix's annual Apple Festival is back for its 31st year.

The festival's focal point is the apple, proven to be the most popular fruit in North America. Northern Michigan's cool, crisp temperatures are told to produce some of the greatest and most flavorful apples in the world.

"A lot of people call this the homecoming. It's just one of those fall festivals that's community-oriented and family-oriented, and really unique to our area," said Charlevoix chamber executive director Erin Bemis.

This year, four area orchards, Royal Farms of Ellsworth, Kings Orchard of Central Lake, Friske Orchards of Charlevoix and Cherryview Orchards of Kewadin, are slated to showcase nearly 30 varieties of fresh apples along with a host of other fall harvest items including tomatoes, squash, pumpkins, jam, Indian corn, pies, dumplings, maple syrup, organic herbs, plants and bulbs.

What began in 1979 as a way to honor and celebrate local orchards, farmers and growers, has transformed into a weekend long community event that brings together people of all ages in celebration of the season and the bounty of the harvest.

Friskie Orchards has been involved with the festival for over 25 years and will be in attendance again this year, serving hot from the oven doughnuts, hot and cold cider and a variety of other baked goods -- along with bushel after bushel of shiny, crisp apples.

According to Friske Orchard's general manager, Jeremy Van Loo, Friske's sells over 200 bushels of apples and over 5,000 doughnuts at the event each year.

"We appreciate the turnout and how everybody celebrates the harvest ... it's a testament to the community," Van Loo said. "We appreciate the fact that it's a commodity that the people enjoy."

Over the years, the festival has grown to include a craft show, entertainment and children's activities -- including face painting, horse and pony rides and a petting zoo.

Fifteen food vendors, among them many local nonprofit organizations, will be in attendance eager to tempt festival-goers with their tasty fall treats.

Apple growers and local orchards will line Bridge Street offering a variety of fall harvest items, and tens of thousands of visitors and area residents are expected to descend upon Charlevoix's downtown for the festivities.

Downtown Development Authority executive director, Keith Carey, describes the event as, "a grand finale to the tourism season."

"Downtown merchants and local shop owners find that it's a fantastic event for them as well," he said. "The Chamber of Commerce does a fantastic job working with the local growers to put on a really spectacular event for the entire community."

The three-day event, hosted and sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is always held the second weekend in October.

Festival hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday on Oct. 9, 10 and 11 in Charlevoix's East Park, with children's activities occupying a closed portion of Mason Street.

cargo during periods of ice cover. Those cargos of iron ore, coal, and other commodities are key to keeping the economy strong."

Weakley added, "We know the Coast Guard crews are doing their very best, but in particular, the vessels built in the 1970s just can no longer reliably meet the needs of commerce."

While the House Transportation and Infrastructure committee has put forth the budget HR 3619 with the cutter provision in it, Begnoche said people need to be patient.

"This authorization will still have to be voted on by the full House," she stated. "Then it must go through the U.S. Senate and the appropriations process before the President can sign it."

Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. said the city will campaign very hard to be the city that hosts the new cutter.

"It would be great. It's what we've fought for for a long time," he said. "We've always been good to the coast guard and they've always been good to us, and I'm hoping we can continue that natural fit."

There are currently eight coast guard ships on the Great Lakes which can break ice.

Exotic species abound in Charlevoix

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

It is that time of year when a trip out Lake Shore Drive past Boulder Park to the end of the road at Medusa Creek is worthwhile. The King Salmon are swimming up the creek. Medusa Creek, named for the original owners of the local cement plant (now St. Marys Cement), is only a couple of yards wide and shallow enough to wade easily.

But this time of year it is temporary home to salmon which were placed there three years or so ago, and have now returned to what they view as ancestral water.

The sight of even a few twenty or twenty-five pound mature salmon thrashing their way up the creek is sufficient reward for the trip out there.

The King or Chinook Salmon are, of course an alien, exotic species that have taken over as the top predator in much of the Great Lakes. They didn't sneak in here when we weren't watching as so many alien exotics have, and hardly anyone complains about their take-over of the lake ecosystem.

They were introduced by the Michigan DNR to help solve the problem of another fishy alien invader, the Alewife.

The same location around the creek mouth is home to a couple of stands of Phragmites, which have been sprayed, but as yet show no serious signs of disappearing. It is in vigorous competition with the native cattails and some healthy willow shrubs which help hold the shore in place against the waves coming in with the north wind.

Left to their own devices, I believe the cattails would have a better than even chance of successfully competing with the Phragmites for space along the shore.

According to Ed Voss'

Flora of Michigan, a single cattail head may contain more than 200,000 tiny seeds, each one of them capable of producing a root system ten feet in diameter with a hundred shoots in just one growing season. I have difficulty understanding why phragmites is a problem and cattails are not.

Our local creek is home to more exotics than just fish and some plants. It houses a thriving population of a remarkably beautiful snail. Courtesy of Peg Meyer, I now know that the snails are Banded Wood Snails, another exotic introduced in New Jersey in 1857.

I don't believe they crawled all the way here in only 150 years. I am certain that people must move them around. The Wood Snails are about an inch or so in diameter, and have bright bands of brown, yellow and pink around the shell, and hang out on the vegetation.

They are land snails rather than water snails, and could live in your back yard if they have a few damp places.

They are somewhat invasive and may crowd out other local snails, although we don't actually know that.

Not all exotics are troublesome, and some are attractive enough to enhance our environment.

Considering the number of plants and animals that now surround us that have migrated here or been carried here from some other part of the world, we should probably just get used to the idea of exotic species.

Humans are the primary cause of such transfer, and we are not about to cease. I personally look forward to the time, some distance in the future, when all the kinds of plants and animals that can live in our environment have arrived here and become established. It will be a far more interesting place than it is now. Salmon and snails are just the beginning.

Christine "Twinkletoes" Gwidt delves into nicknames

MORE OR LESS
Christine Gwidt

Call me Twinkletoes. It was my nickname in the fourth grade because of my unconventional wind-up during recess basketball games.

My stuttering tippy-toe approach was surprisingly effective. I stood at the plate musing feverishly before the pitcher even let go of the ball. As soon as it was coming at me, I ratcheted my footwork up to the speed of a hummingbird's heartbeat, took one long stride and walloped the thing all the way to the fence. It was the only sport at which I ever excelled.

Much later, my first serious boyfriend called me Dixie, and then switched over to Flower. Both were confusing and generic. I am neither southern nor particularly fragile. I had the disturbing feeling that these nicknames may have been transferred over from my predecessors.

Following on the rounded heels of these monikers came Scooter (I walk fast), Duffy (a diminutive for duffer - I'm a really bad golfer), and Poop. The last one is what my friend's 2-year-old called me. I have a way with children.

Aside from the latter, I have never objected to being called by a nickname. It's kind of nice to answer to something other than the same old Same Old. And it's interesting when a friend goes to the trouble of framing and naming what defines you to them. Infrequently it's flattering. Mostly it's just funny or sweet, or at the very least, tolerable.

In the course of my college years, I knew people whose given names are still a mystery. I wonder whatever happened to Jameko, Garbage, Boone, Juicy Judy, Shad, Dill-r and Tire-Biter?

During this era, there was a woman who was so excruciatingly self-enchanted that she changed her own nickname like a pair of socks. It did, however, follow a theme: Skylark, Robin, Dove, Sparrow and (I remember this one because it is also a hoof disease), Thrush. People who knew her eventually gave up and just called her Birdie. That was enough to make her revert to her parent's choice.

Old. And it's interesting when a friend goes to the trouble of framing and naming what defines you to them. Infrequently it's flattering. Mostly it's just funny or sweet, or at the very least, tolerable.

and she was Sue the last time I saw her.

The nickname Sugar continues to hold favor among professional athletes. I'm unable to discern the correlation between the macho persona and the syrupy suggestion of a sweetheart. Maybe it's the dichotomy that they find attractive - like calling a big man Tiny.

Tiny was also my mother's family nickname. Not because she was the runt of the litter. Her sisters were known as Tootie and Boots, so actually she got off pretty easy.

Musicians arguably have the most colorful nicknames, which hardly seems fair, given that they also have the most colorful lives. Satchmo, The Velvet Fog, Pink, Sting, Lady Day, Slash and Dizzy were all too big for the plebian scrawl on their birth certificates. Rappers and hip-hop artists have raised the bar by being the first group to be known solely by aliases.

Sometimes a person's name just doesn't fit or do justice to the scope of their personality. Sometimes you have to riff on it until a more suitable title emerges.

I've named my friends Burr, Milo, Pink Floyd, Ammo and Miss Fancypanis Know-It-All, which eventually shortened to Kia. My brother is Billiards. With the utmost affection, I call dogs under nine pounds Chicken Potpie. I don't know why, except that I love both small dogs and poultry prepared in pastry.

"Why do you call my dog that name?" Kia asks, sounding less than pleased. (She was fine with her own nickname until the car manufacturer usurped it.) Why not? It's just a verbal flourish - a maraschino cherry bestowed upon the loved one by the smitten. It's fun. And it can be significant.

The first time that I tasted that kickball, I was so stunned that I just stood there watching as it sailed past the in-field and hit the fence. "Run, Twinkletoes, run!" My team mates screamed, and Marty "Stubby" Stubbs pushed me hard. I made it all the way to third base before I was stopped.

This miracle was reenacted every time I went up and I still don't understand it. I've never been a powerful or even adequate athlete. Maybe it was a nuclear reaction between the two-toned leather of my saddle shoes and my heated pummeling feet.

Whatever the reason, it earned me my first nickname and gave me something to live up to.

Lauren was thrilled to be able to gather the donors one day to thank them. She put a glittery halo on each head. It was an emotional and tearful time, as you can imagine.

Lauren hopes that blood donors fully understand how grateful their recipients are.

The final appeal of the video's participants was, "Whose life will you save?" I want to thank everyone who made a difference for a "Lauren" over the past 15 years by supporting the American Red Cross community blood drives in Charlevoix.

Whether you contributed by publicizing the blood drives, making phone calls, baking delicious treats, providing the site, working at the blood drives, donating blood, or answering my call to volunteer in any way, I am more appreciative than words can express! The next blood drive noon until 5:45 p.m. on Nov. 19, at the Charlevoix Reformed Church.

Whose life will you save? Please help the American Red Cross.

STOP THE VIOLENCE
Editor:

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan (WRC) joins the rest of the country in recognizing October as Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

The WRC provides supportive services for survivors of intimate relationship abuse and their children throughout Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, and Oshtemo counties. While we are honored to serve the community through this work, we are also looking for ways to prevent domestic violence.

This is not just a women's issue, it's a community issue and we need the support of everyone to solve it.

We all have heard that primary prevention is important in regards to regular doctor and dentist visits, the same concept can be applied here as well.

Once an act of domestic violence occurs, we are working uphill to counteract that action.

When violence is prevented from ever happening, our community as a whole is healthier.

Let's work together to prevent domestic violence before it starts.

Let's work together to prevent domestic violence before it starts.

Let's work together to prevent domestic violence before it starts.

LETTERS to the editor

ALANO BOARD GRATEFUL

The Serenity House Alano Club of Charlevoix recently completed a renovation project of its facility at 106 Mason St. in Charlevoix.

The recent move into our new club house is the culmination of five years of planning.

The project included demolition of one old, run down club building, remodeling of another and the construction of a large addition to that remodeled building.

Throughout this process we have been blessed with and supported by countless financial donors, generous and capable contractors and a city government that was most helpful. We take this time to express our thanks and profound gratitude to all who supported our efforts and ask you to view a complete list of donors, contractors and subcontractors at our Web site: www.charlevoixalano.org.

The WRC is asking each and every one of you to help change social norms, attitudes, and behaviors that lead to domestic violence.

There are many ways community members can get involved and contribute to ending violence against women. The first and hardest thing to be done is to build a society that does not condone or support the oppression of women.

Although there are many individuals who support and promote the equality of women, there remains a lot of work to do. Each day through the media, video games, and personal interactions we are exposed to images and messages of violence and disrespect against women. The message that sends to our children and our community is that violence is entertaining, not a big deal, and a societal norm.

To counteract these images it is important to have positive role models of men and boys being respectful and supportive of women by solving problems in a non-violent way. Teaching boys and girls what is acceptable in a relationship and praising them for behavior that is non-violent is the best tool to create a non-violent future for them in their adult life. We are ALL role models, with opportunities each day to intervene at work, school, sporting events, or while walking down the street.

While alcohol and drugs may escalate violence, it is not a root cause of violence. Society needs to stop accepting excuses. There is no excuse. Recognize that having power and control over another person is not the same thing as loving them. Words can hurt; emotional and verbal cruelty is an act of violence. When you hear a sexist or demeaning remark or joke, say something that tells those around you that you do not support that attitude towards women. We must work to redefine what healthy masculinity looks like to end dangerous stereotypes. Write your legislators to continue funding programs that protect battered women and their children. Volunteer your time with an organization devoted to ending violence against women or providing mentorship to our youth. These are all ways in which everyone can be involved in creating a safer, healthier community.

The WRC is asking each and every one of you to help change social norms, attitudes, and behaviors that lead to domestic violence.

There are many ways community members can get involved and contribute to ending violence against women. The first and hardest thing to be done is to build a society that does not condone or support the oppression of women.

Although there are many individuals who support and promote the equality of women, there remains a lot of work to do. Each day through the media, video games, and personal interactions we are exposed to images and messages of violence and disrespect against women. The message that sends to our children and our community is that violence is entertaining, not a big deal, and a societal norm.

To counteract these images it is important to have positive role models of men and boys being respectful and supportive of women by solving problems in a non-violent way. Teaching boys and girls what is acceptable in a relationship and praising them for behavior that is non-violent is the best tool to create a non-violent future for them in their adult life. We are ALL role models, with opportunities each day to intervene at work, school, sporting events, or while walking down the street.

While alcohol and drugs may escalate violence, it is not a root cause of violence. Society needs to stop accepting excuses. There is

OBITUARIES

George Leonard Majors: Oct. 9, 1916 - Sept. 24, 2009

On Sept. 24, 2009, the Rev. George Leonard Majors passed away at his home in Fairbanks, Alaska.

George was born in Detroit on Oct. 9, 1916. After receiving his Bachelor of Theology degree in 1943 from Anderson College in Anderson, Indiana, he and his wife, Marie, established a Church of God congregation in Ypsilanti, Michigan. He pastored that congregation for nine years before moving to Charlevoix in 1952.

It was there that he pastored at the Community Church of God and raised his four children: George, Howard, Marilyn and Bonnie.

While pastoring in Charlevoix, George was very involved in community activities including 10 years of service on the County Board of Health and Social Services.

In conjunction with that role he helped establish one of the first public school programs for handicapped children in Michigan.

He also served eight years as president of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and a term as President of the Charlevoix School Board.

In 1969, the Rev. and Mrs. Majors and daughter Bonnie moved to Fairbanks, Alaska, where he helped establish and build the Fairhill Community Church of God. In 1974, with the assistance of his daughter Marilyn, he established the Fairhill Christian School.

In 1980, George and Marilyn were involved in the construction of a new facility for the school in order to meet the needs of a rapidly growing student body.

Shortly after his arrival in Alaska, he formed the Fairbanks Chaplaincy program at Fairbanks Memorial Hospital.

He also served as chairman of the Alaska General Assembly for the Church of God Congregations for nearly 10 years.

George was preceded in death by his parents, Elmer and Elizabeth Majors; his sisters, Helen Wolf and Marion Ross; his son, George Majors; and his daughter, Bonnie Majors. George is survived by his wife, Marie; his son, Howard Majors; his daughter, Marilyn Buchanan; his brothers, Walter and Robert Majors; his sister, Marjorie Truesdell; his grandchildren, Leah Byrd, Cynthia Buchanan, David Buchanan, Angel Stacy, Mark Majors, Carolyn Majors, Elizabeth Majors and Robert Majors; and his great-grandchildren, Daniel, Melinda, Isaac, Emily Ann, Hunter, Arctic, Merick and Emily Elizabeth.

The funeral service was held at 6 p.m. Thursday Oct. 1, at Fairhill Community Church of God in Fairbanks.

Elizabeth French Young: June 27, 1918 - Sept. 23, 2009

Betty Young, beloved wife of John G. (Jack) Young died peacefully in their home in Charlevoix, MI, on Sept. 23, 2009, surrounded by her loving family.

She was born Elizabeth Grace French in Toledo, Ohio, on June 27, 1918 to Rev. J. Leslie and Edna C. French.

Her family moved to Morgantown, W. Va., where she started school then to Caro, MI, for her last year of high school.

Betty graduated from the University of Michigan in 1940 with a degree in physical education, taught for a year in Muskegon, MI, then married Jack in July of 1941.

During the war, they lived in the Rochester, N.Y. area where she was involved in the Presbyterian Church, Girl Scouts, and an outdoor organization called the Tramp & Trail Club.

After the war, she created a loving and nurturing home for their five children in Ann Arbor where she also gave generously of her time and talents to the First Presbyterian Church.

She was a devoted choir member and very active in the women's association, Christian Education Department, and mission board, as well as the ark coffee house sponsored by the church.

Upon Jack's retirement from the University of Michigan in 1980, they became year-round residents in their summer home in Northern Michigan on Douglas Lake where Betty had spent summers for all but one of her 91 years.

She was an enthusiastic member of the Douglas Lake Improvement Association and served in various capacities including loon patrol.

She also became active in the Church of the Straits in Mackinaw City and directed the choir and children's choir, helped with fish fries and was a representative to Presbytery.

She was also an active member of the Munro Township Helping Hands for many years.

In addition, she and Jack helped found the Northern Michigan chapter of the 70-plus Ski Club during the mid 1980s.

In 2002, they began spending winters in Charlevoix next door to their son John and his family.

During this time they were active in the First Congregational Church, UCC of Charlevoix.

Betty and Jack shared a deep love of the outdoors and were both members of the Society of Les Voyageurs at the University of Michigan.

Many of our family memories center around hiking and camping trips together.

She also loved to garden and was a great fisherman.

She will always be remembered for her kind, generous heart; always there to give support and assistance to family.

She was preceded in death by her parents Rev. J. Leslie and Edna C. French, her sister Margaret Clink and her brother James French.

She is survived and lovingly remembered by her husband John G. Young, her twin daughters Margaret Sauvain-Lucas and Carol Kautzmann, three sons Douglas, Alan and John Young, nine grandchildren Jeffrey and Susan Sauvain, Brian, Kathryn and Christopher Young, Orin and Maya Lucas, Elizabeth Sonntag and Edward Kautzmann, and three great-grandchildren.

Hanna and Henry Sauvain and Madison Sonntag.

Memorial services for Betty will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday Oct. 11, at the First Congregational Church, UCC in Charlevoix, MI and 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 7, at the First Presbyterian Church in Ann Arbor, MI.

A life celebration will also be held in July 2010 at Douglas Lake.

Details to be announced.

Charlevoix Rayders 2009 Homecoming Court

The 2009 Charlevoix homecoming court are as follows:

Caroline Dupuis is the daughter of Mark and Molly Dupuis. She is a member of CHS varsity soccer and traveling soccer teams. As NHS president and Student Council co-president, Freshmen Mentor, Editor-in-chief of the yearbook, and quiz bowl team member, she leads an active Rayder life. After graduation, Caroline plans on college at either Loyola, Boston College, Villanova or NYU to study business.

Ty Jones is the son of Michael and Heidi Jones. His athletic experiences include soccer, basketball and golf. He is a mentor for the junior golf program. Ty plans on playing golf in college, probably at a State University.

Shauna Bradley is the daughter of Buck and Linda Bradley. She is a Lady Rayder on the track and hold a number of the National Honor Society and Ragamuffins. After graduation, Shauna hopes to attend the University of the Nations in Hawaii.

Beau Boss is the son of Bo and Debbie Boss. Throughout high school, he's been a Rayder athlete on the golf team and played basketball in the past. Beau is a member of the National Honor Society and a 3-year hard-working veteran of the Student Council. He volunteers in the community with his grandpa and family on the Petunia Project and at Mt. McSaub. Post-graduation plans include pursuing a mechanical engineering degree from Michigan State University.

Sarah Potter is the daughter of Michelle Himes and Kevin Potter. She is a Lady Rayder on the softball field and volleyball and basketball courts. Sarah is a member of the National Honor Society and a Freshmen Mentor. She is involved in youth group and art is a passion of hers. Her college goal is Art Therapy at a university.

Nick Brandl is the son of Rick and Maureen Brandl. He has competed well for the Rayder team on the golf course and soccer field. His college plans are to attend Central Michigan or Ferris State University.

Taylor Storm is the daughter of Dave and Debbie Storm. He has been a Lady Rayder in volleyball, basketball and track and field. Taylor is on the student council, a member of the National Honor Society, yearbook editor and in Health Occupation Students of America. She is a Red Cross Blood Drive organizer and ran for Venetian Queen, earning the Scholar Award. Taylor plans on attending a university to pursue a dentistry degree.

Ryan Herzog is the son of Suzanne and Matthew Herzog. He's an avid student in the industrial arts and classes like Advanced Engineering Design and Advanced CAD. After graduation, Ryan is researching several possible colleges to attend and further his education.

Rachel Boss is the daughter of Craig and Erica Boss. She is a Lady Rayder on the soccer field and runs with the cross-country team. Rachel is on the National Honor Society and is currently a Freshmen Mentor. She also spent her summer enjoyably mentioning a younger student in the community. Her plans for next fall are still in the research and development phase.

Alex Foster is the son of Bill and Lori Foster. He's been involved on the student council throughout high school and is a member of the National Honor Society. He is also a freshmen mentor. Alex plans on attending college to study architecture and construction.

The homecoming parade begins at 5:30 p.m. from Charlevoix Public Library, up Clinton Street and south down State Street, ending at Kipke Field. The homecoming football game will begin at 7 p.m. The long and queen will be announced at half-time. The homecoming dance is from 8:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. on Oct. 10 at Charlevoix Elementary School.

beautiful evening, was the occasion for thanks to CHS volunteers. Most community organizations need help, and folks who are able and willing spend countless hours and resources providing it. The Historical Society has what is probably the greatest need, because there is no alternative for us. We receive no routine tax dollars and have no resources but those coming from the kindness and generosity of caring members. We have two part-time employees: hard as they work, there is no way the CHS could have accomplished the extensive (and expensive!) renovations, preservations, programs and educational achievements already completed. It was an honor to mingle with many of you who have done so much. An elegant and lovely place built and maintained by the Charlevoix Garden Club — thank-you. The Depot Garden was graced by the delightful music of the Tagalongs — thank-you. Our Volunteer of the Year is Chuck Unbehauen. He may be a relative newcomer to the Board, but his contributions have been awesome. He has a way of seeing things that need to be done, making a suggestion to which all agree, and executing the completion of the project. He truly is the ideal volunteer. Thank-you, thank-you, thank-you. We're so fortunate to count you as one of ours.

LET'S GO TO THE DOGS

To Whom it May Concern:
Dogs can get pretty restless at home. Charlevoix needs a dog park. One reason is that there needs to be a place where dogs can run freely. Dogs can get really crazy in your house. They also need a place where they are free to do whatever they want without getting in trouble. One other reason is that dogs need a place where they can exercise.

Dogs can get pretty lazy at home. They also stay healthy when they run in a large area. You, the owner, can also get exercise by running with your dog, so it benefits both of you.

My last reason is that your dog could make a new friend (hopefully, not an enemy). That is important because dogs can get lonely at home. They also have more fun when they can run and play with another dog they know. You could also meet another dog owner and become friends all because of your dog. Again, it benefits both of you!

Thank you for reading and that is why I think Charlevoix needs a special park just for dogs in town.

CAROL R. SULLIVAN SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

For years, Grant Oliver has dreamed of making a living and a life for himself working with boats.

Thanks to Northwest Academy, a dedicated and undying work ethic, a persistent and motivated personality, and the help of a few good friends and neighbors, Grant's dreams are well on their way to becoming reality.

"It's really cool," Grant said.

"Thanks to the kindness and caring of people like Mr. (Gary) Stutzman and Mr. G. (Mark Greyerbiehl), I get to do this ... and it's just awesome!"

Grant, an East Jordan resident and recent Northwest Academy graduate, has been accepted into the Great Lakes Boat Building School and is currently enrolled in their nine-month boat-building program.

When faced with the cost of tuition and the expense of materials and tools, Grant approached Mark Greyerbiehl, owner of Charlevoix's Ace Hardware.

Always eager to help contribute to the educational opportunities of a local student, Greyerbiehl helped Grant obtain his over $1,500 worth of hard-to-find woodworking tools through Ace at a lower cost than traditional retailers.

Stutzman, hand director and director of development at Northwest Academy, describes Grant as a hard working, driven and motivated young man.

A talented drummer and skilled handyman, he oftentimes helped Stutzman with handywork around Northwest Academy.

"Grant's the type of kid to whom you can mention the door down the hall is hanging a little crooked on the hinges and you turn around and he's already fixed it," Stutzman said.

GRANT OLIVER, was started over three years ago.

The idea for the school came from a group of local summer residents who wanted to do something positive for the Cedarville area.

"They came on the idea of a boat school," Lesh said. "Patterned off of the Northwest School of Wooden Boat-building in Port Hadlock, Wash."

The Michigan school, however, expanded on the original concept and takes their curriculum one step further, teaching composite boat-building — a more modern method of boat craftsmanship.

Lesh describes the school as a great place to work.

"I love the student part of it," he said. "It's really special to see (the students) start at point A with very little experience, learning basic woodworking."

Lesh added, "And, by the time they graduate they're building these pretty phenomenal boats. As a layman, from the outside looking in, it's pretty amazing."

Just days into his boat building education, Grant is enthusiastic and excited.

Grant hopes to one day come back to Charlevoix and teach boat-building locally.

For the next nine months, however, he'll be learning the woodworking skills required to build vessels.

Together with his classmates, Grant will implement construction and woodworking skills learned throughout their training to complete construction on a project boat.

Last year's class project boat the Zimmer won second place in the wooden replica class at the Hessel Boat Show.

Upon completion of the program, a multitude of job opportunities will be available to the graduates: everything from wooden boat restoration to complex yacht fabrication.

The Great Lakes Boat Building School is located in Cedarville, Michigan, roughly 20 miles east of the Mackinac Bridge.

It is the only licensed proprietary school of its kind in the state, and is housed in a brand new 12,000 square foot facility designed and built specifically for the teaching of woodworking, basic design, traditional and modern boat building, yacht joinery, repair and restoration.

CAROL R. SULLIVAN SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

For years, Grant Oliver has dreamed of making a living and a life for himself working with boats.

Thanks to Northwest Academy, a dedicated and undying work ethic, a persistent and motivated personality, and the help of a few good friends and neighbors, Grant's dreams are well on their way to becoming reality.

"It's really cool," Grant said.

"Thanks to the kindness and caring of people like Mr. (Gary) Stutzman and Mr. G. (Mark Greyerbiehl), I get to do this ... and it's just awesome!"

Grant, an East Jordan resident and recent Northwest Academy graduate, has been accepted into the Great Lakes Boat Building School and is currently enrolled in their nine-month boat-building program.

When faced with the cost of tuition and the expense of materials and tools, Grant approached Mark Greyerbiehl, owner of Charlevoix's Ace Hardware.

Always eager to help contribute to the educational opportunities of a local student, Greyerbiehl helped Grant obtain his over $1,500 worth of hard-to-find woodworking tools through Ace at a lower cost than traditional retailers.

Stutzman, hand director and director of development at Northwest Academy, describes Grant as a hard working, driven and motivated young man.

A talented drummer and skilled handyman, he oftentimes helped Stutzman with handywork around Northwest Academy.

"Grant's the type of kid to whom you can mention the door down the hall is hanging a little crooked on the hinges and you turn around and he's already fixed it," Stutzman said.

"He's hardworking, willing and able ... as an administrator and a friend ... I'm really proud of him."

Strong finish lifts Ramblers past Rayders, 28-20

It's not often a matter of how you start, but rather how you finish.

Such was the case for the Boyne City Ramblers Friday in a Lake Michigan Conference football game against neighborhood rival Charlevoix.

The Ramblers held off a late Charlevoix drive and held on to earn a 28-20 victory Friday at a rainy Earl Brotherston Field.

With the win, the Ramblers keep their playoff aspirations alive as they improve to 4-2 overall, 3-1 league, while Charlevoix falls to 3-3, 1-3.

Charlevoix, which trailed by just a point, 15-14, in the third quarter, had the ball inside the Boyne City 30-yard line with just over a minute to play.

The Rayders put together a sustained drive beginning with just over three minutes to go and were inching towards a possible game-tying touchdown before Taylor Reinhardt sacked Rayder quarterback Clayton Mitchell on second down from the 27.

On third and 14, a Mitchell pass was nearly intercepted by Boyne City's Kolbi Shumaker before the Ramblers took over on downs with just 58 seconds to play on a Bryan Wonski sack.

"It was a great high school football game," Boyne City coach Don Nobel said. "Charlevoix played hard and so did our kids."

Environmental efforts bring success

Additional actions proposed at environmental project

"...recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

— David Menegbier
President, CMS Land Company

PETOSKEY, Mich., (Sept. 28, 2009) - CMS Land Company reports that significant progress has been made in addressing environmental issues related to the defunct cement plant that once operated on the shores of Little Traverse Bay. The abandoned site was redeveloped in 1994 into what are now Resort Township's East Park and the Bay Harbor Resort.

August water monitoring results verify that pH readings above the action level of nine have been virtually eliminated and human health and safety concerns have been effectively addressed. In August, only one reading above nine (9.12, similar to baking soda) was recorded in an isolated area west of the Bay Harbor golf course clubhouse. These results build on months of increasingly positive results and are a dramatic contrast to the dozens of pH readings above nine that were recorded in 2005, before CMS began its work at the site.

"These important environmental accomplishments are the result of a lot of hard work and substantial investment," said David Menegbier, CMS Land Company president. "The June reopening of East Park, the lifting of several health advisories, and these most recent results demonstrate that the remedies we have installed over the past five years are working well."

In reporting these results, CMS also noted two important milestones in completing work at the site: review and approval by regulators of the Remedial Investigation/Alternative Evaluation (RI/AE) studies for East Park and the Bay Harbor development and continued work to identify a local option for disposing of water collected at the site.

In late summer, CMS Land submitted the RI/AEs to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. The RI/AEs use established scientific processes to evaluate the effectiveness of both current and long-term remedies at both locations. The EPA and DEQ will consider public input while reviewing the documents and then can approve the documents or request additional study. Once approved, the RI/AEs will outline the final work involved with the project.

"We believe we have done an excellent job so far. We are hopeful that the RI/AEs will be reviewed and approved in a timely manner so that we can build on our progress and bring the project to a successful conclusion," said Menegbier.

In addition, work is underway to identify a local remedy to dispose of the water collected from East Park and Bay Harbor. The collection and treatment of large quantities of groundwater is the primary method CMS is using to address pH and mercury at the site. Different options under review would safely treat the water and release it to the lake, pump the water into the City of Petoskey's water treatment system for treatment, or involve the construction of a local disposal well near the site. CMS is currently shipping up to 27 trucks containing 11,500 gallons of water a day to Traverse City and Johannesburg for disposal.

"Trucking the water, because of its increased public safety and transportation risks, environmental concerns, and cost, is not a realistic long-term remedy," Menegbier said. "We absolutely need—and are encouraged that the public has expressed a desire—to identify a local solution to a local concern."

East Park and Bay Harbor were reclaimed from the site of an abandoned cement factory covering 1,200 acres and five miles of Lake Michigan shoreline. The brownfield site was redeveloped in 1994 and was the largest reclamation project in North America.

While no longer a partner in the project that redeveloped an abandoned cement factory into the Bay Harbor community and two public parks, CMS Land Company agreed to address certain environmental issues associated with the cement dust left behind by the cement plant. CMS has worked for five years and spent more than $90 million on the project to date and has achieved significant environmental progress in the protection of Little Traverse Bay.

Rayder Tennis results

Charlevoix finished fourth in the Conference tennis meet held Thursday Oct. 1 at Harbor Springs. Following are the results.

#1 singles Logan Kline lost to Elk Rapids, #2 singles Jake Levan, #3 singles Ben Way lost to Elk Rapids, #1 Doubles Matt Murray and Dylan Putman beat Boyne City and lost to Traverse City St. Francis. Matt and Dylan are Honorable Mention All-Conference at #1 Doubles.

#2 Doubles Trent Bradley and Blake Schulman beat Boyne City and lost to Traverse City St. Francis. #3 Doubles John Saur and Austin Lohenz beat Boyne City and lost to Traverse City St. Francis. Matt and Dylan received Honorable Mentions All-Conference at #1 Doubles. Our singles play is improving. The Rayder tennis team will next play at the Regionals at 9 a.m. Thursday Oct. 8 at Petoskey high and Harbor Springs high school courts (#2, #3 and #4 singles).

Rayders must win three to make playoffs

SPORTS

We were lucky to come up on the positive end of this one in the fourth quarter. Our kids made some big plays when we needed to."

Despite three lost turnovers and two change of possessions on downs, the Rayders were able to hold off the Rayders, who turned the ball over four times themselves.

"It wasn't the neatest or the cleanest game we wanted to play," Nobel said. "Sometimes winning ugly is better than a loss and I was proud of the way we made some plays down the stretch and finished it off strong."

Charlevoix, who last week snapped a two-game losing skid with a shutout win at East Jordan, now must win the remainder of their games to automatically qualify for the playoffs.

"It's a tough one to take, but I was proud of the way our kids played hard for four quarters," Charlevoix coach Don Jess said.

"The biggest thing now is we have to try to win our next three games and try to get into the playoffs."

"Perhaps we'll see these guys (Boyne City) again in the postseason, that'll be nice."

Charlevoix started off strong in the opening stanza as Mitchell hooked up with sophomore tight end Coby Herriman for a 25-yard touchdown pass and JT Lawrence added the two-point conversion on a pass from Mitchell for an 8-0 lead.

Boyne City tied the game early in the second quarter as Zac Bush hit paydirt from 4 yards out following a key 42-yard completion from Nick Young to James O'Brien on fourth-and-10. O'Brien ran in the conversion to knot it 8-8.

"Nick called that play on fourth down and we thought we could hit it and he made a nice throw to James," Nobel said.

Shumaker set up and scored Boyne's next TD when he made a one-handed interception, then caught a 9-yard scoring pass from Young. Joakim Brander added the extra point as Boyne took a 15-8 halftime lead.

Midway through the third, Charlevoix's Justin Williams pounced on a Boyne City fumble at the Ramblers' 11-yard line to set up a Jake McLean 11-yard

TD run. The conversion attempt failed and the Ramblers held a 15-14 advantage.

Boyne responded with a scoring drive on the ensuing possession as Jalen Adams hauled in a 15-yard TD pass from Young to make it 22-14. Brander again added the extra point.

Just before the conclusion of the fourth quarter, former Charlevoix linebacker Brandon Darrah picked off a Mitchell pass to set up his own TD, which came via a 3-yard run to put the Ramblers up 28-14 early in the fourth.

Charlevoix then made it 28-20 with just under six minutes to go following a John Boss fumble recovery as Mitchell hit Alex Foster for a 30-yard TD strike. The conversion attempt failed as Boyne City's Evan Urban broke up a pass in the end zone.

Mitchell and Young both turned in solid performances at quarterback. Mitchell finished 11-of-26 passing for 162 yards, while Young was 11-of-14 for 180 yards. Mitchell had four interceptions, while Young had one.

Rush led Boyne rushers with 65 yards on 16 carries, while Shumaker had five receptions for 72 yards and Adams added three receptions for 39 yards.

Defensively, Reinhardt finished with 13 tackles and Wonski added 10. Shumaker had two interceptions, while Young and Darrah each added one.

Boyne City goes to East Jordan on Saturday, Oct. 10, while Charlevoix will play host to Elk Rapids Friday, Oct. 9.

"We have a tough game against Elk Rapids next week and it's our homecoming so it'll be a big game," Jess said. "I know they (Elk Rapids) beat Grayling by one point and we lost to Grayling by one."

"If we come out and turn the ball over like we did here, we'll be in trouble."

Student counts can help or hinder school

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

As local schools anxiously await funding news from the legislature, they mull their recently released student count day numbers.

Since schools are funded by a formula called State Foundation Allowance, the number of children which a school has directly affects the institution's budget.

"We have 396 — we're down by about 22 kids," said Charlevoix Elementary School principal Dick Swenor on the Sept. 30 student count day. "We keep track of where people go, and why they go, and almost every one of them has moved because of jobs in the last two years."

Charlevoix Middle School's count was 337 students, and Charlevoix High School's count was 372 for a district-wide total of 1,045.

Last year's total student count for Charlevoix Public Schools was 1,178.67 — the 67 of a student is derived by including the fractional instruction time St. Mary School students once received in physical education, music and technology. The two schools now only have a contract for technological instruction.

Last year's breakdown for the September student count shows the high school with 411.42, the middle school with 342.98 and elementary with 424.27.

If you multiply the drop of 67 students by last year's per pupil funding amount of $8,424, Charlevoix Public Schools will lose nearly $564,408 this budget year.

And that, said Charlevoix Public Schools business manager Shawn Biddle, is assuming there will be no cuts to this year's foundation allowance.

"The latest we heard was there would be an increase by $218 per pupil plus categorical cuts for things like at-risk (programs) and declining enrollment (programs)," he said.

"Last year there were cuts, but the state back-filled using stimulus money."

Swenor said the obvious solution to this problem is for Michigan to regain its financial footing.

"We've had a really exciting, great start to school even with the down climate in the financial realm," he said. "We've lost kids, but it's been a good smattering across the classrooms so it hasn't affected our staffing levels. There are just fewer kids here and there, but you're not going to be able to do that for very long."

Swenor added, "I think we've lost more families to out of state (in the last couple years) than in my whole 12 years before that."

While Charlevoix Public Schools officials continue to struggle with a continued decline in enrollment, Northwest Academy of Charlevoix is working to cope with a continued increase.

"Last year's September count was 74, so we have a few more kids at 81, but the biggest jump is the Seat Time Waiver kids," said Northwest Academy school administrator John Bailey.

Northwest's total count is 131.18 students. The .18 of a student reflects the work Northwest does with home-schooled children who take music and foreign language classes at the school.

"It's really taken off for us," Bailey said of the Seat Time Waiver program which allows people children through young adults to take online classes from home.

"They (State of Michigan) did us a great favor by upping us to 50."

Bailey's former cap on Seat Time Waiver students was 25. "Our philosophy is that we need to fit the program to the kids, as opposed to the other way around, and I think that's what is drawing people in," he said.

It costs more per student to do Seat Time Waiver than to do regular students because in our plan we provide a computer, Internet hookup at home and we pay a mentor to work with them either at home or here."

Student count days are held the fourth Wednesday after Labor day and the second Wednesday after February each year.

"We keep track of where people go and why they go, and almost every one of them has moved because of jobs in the last two years."

Keep Inflation in Mind When Investing

Benjamin Muladore
Financial Advisor

As an investor, you're always aware of the potential effects of market volatility on your portfolio. But you also need to pay attention to another factor that could impact your investments' return — inflation.

If you look back over the last few decades, you might not think inflation is much of a threat. Since the double-digit rates of the early 1980s, inflation has fallen significantly and, for the most part, has stayed low. Still, over time even a mild annual inflation rate can eventually erode your purchasing power.

Obviously, if you're a retiree, or close to retiring, you need to plan for the impact of inflation on your income stream, which may, to a large degree, depend on the types of investments you own. But even if you're at an earlier stage in life, you need to think about inflation because it can reduce the "real" rate of return you receive on your investments.

In any case, you can find investments that may be able to help you cope with inflation. When you own stocks, for example, you've got an ownership stake in companies that have the ability to raise prices — which make them effective inflation-fighting investments. Keep in mind an investment in stocks fluctuates and you can lose your money.

But one of the biggest inflation-fighting benefits of stocks is the dividends that they may pay. Well-run companies may reward investors by paying them back with dividends — and some companies have increased their dividends annually for decades. A word of caution, though: Companies can reduce or eliminate them at any time, without notice. In fact, during the long market slump we experienced, some companies did cut back on their dividend payments.

Not all stocks pay dividends, of course. In any case, if you're going to maintain a balanced portfolio, you'll also want to own other types of investments, such as bonds. But many bonds — along with other fixed-income vehicles, such as Certificates of Deposit — are not good "inflation fighters" because the fixed rate of return they offer simply may not keep up with inflation. However, if you built a "bond ladder" — that is, a group of bonds with varying maturities — you'd have more flexibility in combating inflation, because your longer-term bonds typically offer higher interest rates.

What about the so-called "inflation hedges," such as commodities and real estate? Actually, these "hedges" are extremely volatile and should be approached with great caution. You need look no further back than the bursting of the housing "bubble" to see that real estate, for instance, can go down just as fast as it goes up — and once down, it can take years to recover.

In your efforts to invest wisely for the future, inflation is only one of the variables you need to consider. But it can be an important one — so make sure you choose the investments that both address inflation and can help you make progress toward all your financial goals.

professional genealogist, and her Associate Barbara Manley Hemden, will be offering a series of four classes to lead a beginner, or more advanced researcher, through the process of finding their own family history.

Classes will be offered from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Ironton Congregational Church, 03582 Washington St., in Ironton.

Participants are encouraged to bring with them as much family history information that they already have.

Oct. 12 - "Full Speed Ahead ... Who am I?" — The first class is an introduction to genealogy, local and family history and how the three intertwine. The terms used throughout the course will be introduced and personal research for each participant will begin.

Oct. 13 - "Charting the Course ... Where do I go and what do I do?" — The second class will concentrate on a system of organization to maximize search results. Charts used for research will be explained and participants will begin to fill in their own records.

Oct. 21 - "The tools of the trade ... places to research." — The third class reviews the materials that the participant has assembled and then moves into all the many possibilities of places to research, the Internet being one of the tools. Time constraints for this class do not allow for detailed computer research.

Oct. 22 - "Branches and twigs ... adding the rest of the story." — The final class in this series discusses how to branch out in research to find the missing lines in your family tree. Interviewing and corresponding with family members and local residents are taught and the necessity of resource evaluation is evaluated. Lastly when to write up your family history and how is discussed.

The cost for all four classes will be $25 or $10 for an individual class.

Detailed handouts and charts to fill out are included and distributed with each class.

For further information or to register, please contact Carol at 231-582-7042 or e-mail to cgooden123@aol.com.

Also, a new genealogy, family, and local history study group is being organized. It will be called the "C.A.R.E." for Charlevoix Area Research Experience.

Study Group and will meet the second Tuesday of the month at the Ironton Congregational Church.

The first meeting will be from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Nov. 10.

This meeting and those to follow will give genealogists an opportunity to share their own research successes and frustrations and help will be given to all.

Projects of local interest will also be undertaken and developed along with the group's interests.

A meeting for anyone interested in telling the story of the Ironton area will be held at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 25.

Teacher contracts settled

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education passed new teacher and support staff contracts by votes of 6-1 on Monday Oct. 12.

Both sides agreed it was a long, tough journey fraught with heated rhetoric and missteps in the negotiation process, but concessions by both the teachers' union and school administration brought the 20-month siege to an end.

"I'm glad we have the contract settled because I think that is a huge step forward," said Charlevoix Education Association president and Charlevoix High School government teacher Annmarie Conway. "Obviously the financial issues are always going to be there, but I think if we can put a plan together ... where we know who's retiring three years ahead, not having to replace people who are retiring to a certain point."

Board member Valerie Snyder was the lone "nay" on both the vote for the support staff's contract and the teachers' contract, calling the contract a failure.

"We always said we need reform and savings now. This contract is a financial wash," she said. "I agree there are some long-term savings built into this contract, but ... this contract is for three years. These are terms the district cannot sustain."

Janik said, if you tally the East Park a 'Great Space'

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Often referred to as a jewel for its aesthetics and functionality, East Park has been officially recognized as a "Great Public Space."

The American Planning Association made the announcement early Wednesday Oct. 7, and Charlevoix city officials were elated.

"I'm absolutely thrilled," said Charlevoix Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. "Thanks to Mike Spencer (Charlevoix City Planner) for his hard work. This is more evidence of the community coming together for a project to bring this to fruition as far as something that's enjoyed by all."

He added, "And it's quite apparent that other people agree."

According to planning association communications director Mittie Rooney, the planning association singled out East Park for several reasons including the unwavering commitment of succeeding generations of town leaders and residents who, over a 70-year period, acquired the privately-held land used to build the waterfront park.

"APA (American Planning Association) also applauds this public space, which reopened in 2008 after undergoing a complete renovation, for its environmental best practices," Rooney stated in the Oct. 7 release. "APA Great Places offer better choices for where and how people work and live. They are enjoyable, safe, and desirable."

POLICE BUSINESS

PI accident
At 10:05 a.m. on Sept.

28, Beaver Island Sheriff's Deputy and EMS were dispatched to the intersection of Kings Highway and East Side Drive, Peaine Township for a Personal Injury Accident.

The accident investigation revealed that a southbound vehicle on Kings Highway, driven by Joshua Runberg, 25, of Beaver Island, at tempted to turn left on to East Side Drive and failed to yield to a northbound vehicle on Kings Highway.

Runberg's vehicle, a 2001 Ford F250 crashed head-on with the northbound vehicle, a 1987 Ford Crown Victoria driven by Rose Connaghan, an 83-year-old Beaver Island woman. Rose Connaghan and her passenger, Steven Connaghan, 53, were both injured in the crash.

Rose received serious injuries and was taken to the Beaver Island Medical Center.

Steven Connaghan sustained life-threatening injuries and was airlifted to Traverse City.

Alcohol was not a suspect in the crash. Non-use of safety belts was a factor in the crash.

National honor for East Park

They are places where people want to be — not only to visit, but to live and work every day."

Spencer said the planning association looked at neighborhood character, history of the property, architecture and the amount of community involvement in addition to unique features that distinguish the park from other public spaces.

"It's a recognition that the park is a great asset to the community," Spencer said.

"It was over six months and we made it through three rounds of cuts of over 300 applications from all over the United States."

City Manager Rob Straebel said this is a first for East Park.

Straebel

"I think this is just another feather in the city's cap that we build things with quality, with style and with environmental sustainability all taken into consideration," he said.

"It certainly sets the highest standards for the community."

Chosen along with 10 other "Great Public Spaces" by the planning association, East Park joins the ranks of honorees like The Grand Rounds, Minneapolis, Minn. and Lincoln Park in Chicago, Ill.

The seven other spaces awarded are as follows:

Virginia Beach Boardwalk, Virginia Beach, Va.
The Squares of Savannah, Savannah, Ga.

Central Square, Keene, N.H.
Queens Botanical Garden, Flushing, N.Y.

New Haven Green, New Haven, Conn.
The Green, Dover, D.E.

Central Market, Lancaster, Penn.
Previous honorees include New York's Central Park.

The city will likely have an official celebration of the honor sometime next summer with details to follow.

East Park timeline

1924 - A fire took out a building on the east side of Bridge Street. This opened the view to Round Lake.

1940s - Charlevoix Mayor Robert Bridge worked with council to acquire more tracts to increase the scope of the view corridor.

1982 - East Park was redesigned on paper, but the work would have to wait.

2001 - The park is once again redesigned on paper.

2007 - East Park reconstruction began.

July 20, 2008 - East Park opened for Venetian Festival.

May, 2009 - East Park is completed when the Interactive trout stream feature is finished.

Parking problem percolating in Charlevoix Township

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Civil unrest was the last thing on the collective minds of Charlevoix Township officials when they erected three parking designation signs at Stroud Hall.

However, according to some locals, they are unhappy with the decision by the township supervisor, clerk and treasurer to cordon off their own private parking spaces via metal signs.

"I think it's completely wrong," said township resident Richard Stangis. "I don't know when they're so busy they have to park right in front of the building."

Charlevoix Township Clerk Carol Martin said the reserved parking spaces are necessary.

"People often park in those spots in the morning and are there all day while they ride the trails," she said. "The officials have to carry boxes and brief cases and such items in and it makes things difficult (to park far away)."

Area resident and business owner John Haggard said he is concerned for the township's elderly who must transact business on a regular basis.

"I really think it's probably poor judgment on the part of the elected officials to take prime parking spots when handicapped people have to walk across the parking lot," he said. "I don't mind them reserving the spots on the (north end) of the parking lot and maybe turn their into handicapped parking."

According to Charlevoix Township Supervisor Dale Glass, the parking spaces closest to the building cannot be used for handicapped parking due to the high curb which would prevent wheelchair access.

"Why would anybody care about some parking signs?" Glass said. "We have lots of parking places there and we're not obstructing people."

Glass added that there is a van-accessible parking spot for the handicapped just to the east of the reserved parking spaces near the township hall.

Glass agreed with Martin's assessment that, between bicyclists and people involved with the soccer games at the nearby township field, finding a parking space near the building can often be burdensome.

"There are 150 parking places. It is hard for me to believe anybody is upset over this," he said. "We have a wheelchair ramp right up front and two more (handicapped accessible spots) across the lot."

The three metal signs cost a total of $90.30; posts were $35.98; miscellaneous hardware was $4.80 and labor cost the township taxpayers $24.44 for a grand total of $155.52 to erect all three signs.

"We just thought it would make things easier," Glass said. "If someone really has that big of a problem with it then I guess we can take out the signs."

He added, "It's not to inconvenience the taxpayer."

Stangis said he would like to see the signs moved to the east of the building or be removed.

Glass said not one township resident has come to the board with a complaint over the signs.

Board, union agree on labor terms

total expenditures versus savings in the contract, the school system comes out ahead. However, he could not say by how much.

Compensation and health insurance were the two major sticking points in the nearly 25 items that were up for negotiation.

The teachers accepted no across-the-board raise for the 2008/2009 school year. They will receive a 1.25 percent increase for both the 2009 2010 and 2010-2011 school years.

The raise will cost the school system $187,500 over the life of the contract.

The other major concession teachers made was in their prescription drug coverage.

Previously, teachers were reimbursed for all but .50 cents of each drug purchase. They will now be reimbursed for all but $5 on generic drugs and $10 on premium drugs.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools Chet Janik said the prescription drug concession will save the schools approximately $150,700 each year.

Teachers also conceded a major portion of their sick-day reimbursement. Previous to the newly ratified contract, teachers could be reimbursed for up to 90 unused sick-days upon their retirement. Reimbursement is now capped at 45 sick-days.

Another savings for taxpayers came in the decrease in the health insurance buyout.

Previously, teachers received $616.37 per month if they opted out of the insurance plan. That rate has been frozen for current teachers opting out and the rate for new hires will be $500 per month.

"For the first time in approximately 20 years there was actually intense, serious negotiations," Janik said. "The staff did make some sincere concessions ... and there is no question these concessions will have an impact."

Janik said the school will also move from semesters to trimesters in order to save the school an as-of-yet undetermined amount of money through decreases in staffing levels.

The school system is currently projecting a $1 million shortfall for the next budget year just as news the state would be cutting student aid by $165 per student.

Board member Beau Boss said he thinks the board, staff and administration can devise a solution to the apparent impending budget crisis if they "put their heads together."

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I found the well loved white box with the words J. L. Hudson (I don't remember the gold in gold staring back at me.

It was home to a nest full of letters banded together with ribbons and teardrops.

Opening this treasure evoked memories that were welcoming me like a home cooked meal. An almost spiritual event reliving the past and taking away from it lessons on how to live the next chapter of life.

There were letters and notes explaining where I've come from and an understanding of this life with renewed respect; imprints from pens that held their ink from a bottle where the tip had to be dipped or in later years a small lever drawn back and then carefully placed into the blue-black liquid drawing it in and then tapped to release its excess.

Writing letters was more than just a journal of notes on life but a respected art form. It was important to pick the right material; finding just the right pen to touch papers the likes of onion skin and others similar to fine linen; letters written years before I was even a heartbeat.

Personal notes shared between a man and a woman separated by war that kept them apart for a year.

This form of communication renewed the spirit and gave the reader time to reflect on every word.

How precious and special each letter was. It was not only the color of the paper and its texture but the scent it carried. It brought two people closer than any text, twitter or e-mail ever could.

Call me old-fashioned but, as I peruse my mail each day, it's the handwritten envelope that gets my attention first.

My mailbox is littered with shiny ads and typed labels that quickly find their next life in the recycle box.

As life moves in a quickened pace and I feel yesterday is actually today, I appreciate the task that it takes the right pen to touch papers the likes of onion skin and others similar to fine linen; letters written years before I was even a heartbeat.

Personal notes shared between a man and a woman separated by war that kept them apart for a year.

This form of communication renewed the spirit and gave the reader time to reflect on every word.

days, anniversaries, pregnancy, or someone's passing there is a volume of face book writers notifying the writer they care by texting a reply.

When having a bad day, the writer lets the world know about it and again well meaning responders reflect and reply giving immediate feedback.

Although this may be very helpful to many readers it will not replace the warm hug, face-to-face contact or thoughtful handwritten letter or note that leaves an imprint forever. Quick messages give instant feedback to our "life is too busy" generation. Albeit good for the moment but, in the long run, easily deleted and forgotten.

Handwritten letters are still the best and who doesn't have a sense of glee seeing a hand addressed envelope in their mail box.

Handwriting is quickly becoming a lost art of communication.

Mom saved those love letters from dad for over 50 years and they are still treasured today.

Letters re-read until they were worn and tear stained.

No chance to delete or cut and paste.

Written thoughtfully with full knowledge that saving them meant knowing they could be read by another generation.

Although some may argue, "Who has the time to do this?" there is nothing like getting a hand written personal note over a quick response in an e-mail.

With the ease of texting and twittering I feel communication in the form of personal notes has become a dying art.

An art it truly was.

Penmanship was stressed in third grade and neatness was important for the reader as well.

Calligraphy today is only saved for wedding invites and special occasions.

At the close of every wedding ceremony there is the signing of the wedding license.

It's my job to make certain everyone signs on the correct line provided.

My case in point with letter writing is I need to explain a signature or the term handwritten means.

What throws some of them is to print their name underneath their signature.

Many will respond with, "I've forgotten how to print, this task is difficult."

I was once told by a colleague that hunting is "part of our culture" and that I should not object when people insist on sharing disgusting hunting stories in the midst of our professional day.

Well, gratefully, having only lived in Northern Michigan for 35 years, that part of the culture has not rubbed off on me.

Perhaps I'm the only one who objects to these kind of photos being printed in our newspapers.

So be it.

Maybe you could put a warning on the front page saying something like, "Pictures enclosed may be disturbing to some viewers."

Then I could decide for myself whether or not to open your paper.

Or wait!

I could just ask to be removed from your distribution list.

Yeah, that's what I'll do. Marty Trubilowicz Charlevoix

Perils of penny pinching: A tale of product disloyalty

MORE OR LESS

Christine Gwilt

I never should have picked up a tube of hydrocortisone cream ended up in the Dental Care Drawer.

The Dental Care Drawer is exactly that; a separate entity dedicated to all things toothy.

Floss, spare brush heads for the electric toothbrush, bristly plastic toothpicks, rinse and tubes of Aquafresh toothpaste. Nothing else.

I like Aquafresh. I like the taste and the plucky assertion that it will "show your whole mouth with germ killing bubbles."

I like the reflective silver packaging that subliminally suggests that this is the dentifrice of the future.

It claims a "professionally developed micro-polishing system" that will result in a smile so dazzling that the user could presumably signal an airplane with a smile on a sunny day. And I appreciate a company that employs professionals when developing their product. It's comforting to know that I'm placing my consumer faith in something that hasn't been hodge-podged together by a group of miscreants.

Plus, it's ultra-minty and packs enough of a wallop to make my eyes water.

So why, with all of the obvious benefits that I have enjoyed through my years as a loyal Aquafresh customer, would I switch to another brand? I had a coupon.

Coupons are seductive. I have been induced to purchase items for which I have no use at all, simply because the deal was too good to pass up.

I'm not a tea drinker, but I have a couple of dusty boxes of Lipton

(two for one, with coupon) in my pantry, still bound in cellophane. I have a tub of off-brand laundry detergent - enough to pollute a small inland lake with frothy suds - that I cannot use due to my severe allergic reaction to something in its composition. (In fact, the resulting maddening rash is the reason that I have a tube of hydrocortisone in the first place.)

But it cost nearly one-third less than my usual brand of detergent. And, I had a coupon.

So when I found myself in possession of a scrap of paper that would allow me to skim $1 off of the cost of a competitor's toothpaste, I heeded the bait.

I bought the smallest tube permissible under the terms of redemption, took it out of the box and dropped it into the Dental Care Drawer.

When I grabbed the cheerfully blurred red, yellow and white tube and loaded my toothbrush that night, I registered mid-squeeze that the contents seemed somewhat depleted. Oh well, I thought, I must have picked up my husband's tube of enamel protecting toothpaste.

He'd mentioned that it tasted terrible, but I supposed I could handle one application, since I'd already squirted the stuff onto my brush.

Terrible would have been an improvement. It not only tasted like nothing I'd ever put in my mouth before in my life, but the texture was slick and oily. It coated my teeth and tongue like a mouthful of Janitor in a Dream Flavored Land.

I kept brushing. "Oh, yuck," I moaned around the electric hum of the vibrating brush. "How does he stand it?" I said it aloud, and it came out,

"Uh, uck, 'ow 'oes 'e 'and it'?"

I began to suspect that something was very wrong when my tongue went numb. I snatched my glasses from the countertop and glared at the tube.

I gargled and spat and scrubbed with the fury of a snakebite victim attempting to suck venom from a wound.

I rinsed and attached a new head to my toothbrush and repeated the process. Insensitivity, akin to a low dose of Novocain, permeated my mouth, along with a residual tang of industrial-strength disinfectant.

There is absolutely no indication that hydrocortisone cream will produce healthy gums, a blinding smile and fresh breath. However, I can testify that my teeth do not itch.

1959 reunion

The class of 1959, undefeated and unscored upon football team of fall of 1958, held their class reunion at the Argonne Restaurant on Saturday, Sept. 12. Thirty-nine members were in attendance. Ken Case from Montana came down with the Charlevoix flu and sent it to his wife and sister. Jim Verwey from the Los Angeles area was the farthest to attend, also with Allene (Arnold) Smith and Linda (Towale) Beebe from the state of Washington. Fun was had by all with a picnic on Sunday at Depot Beach. The next reunion is being planned for the 52-and-one-half in January 2012 in Montana.

CONSIDERING PLASTIC SURGERY? STOP. LOOK. LISTEN.

- STOP. Research the procedure. We recommend The American Society of Plastic Surgeons website: plasticsurgery.org or our site at tc-plasticsurgery.com.
- LOOK. Choose a plastic surgeon with the education and credentials that measure experience and skill.
- LISTEN. Results and reputation are essential; what are your peers/your physicians saying?

The staff at The Center for Plastic Surgery is dedicated to making your experience the best it can be. We also offer a scope of non-invasive treatments: Botox™ injections, injectable fillers, and permanent make-up. If you have any questions, or would like to meet with someone at the Center to discuss a procedure, call 231.929.7700.

OBITUARIES

Stuart E. Wood: Died Oct. 6, 2009

Stuart E. Wood, 83, of Charlevoix, and formerly of Bloomfield Hills, died Tuesday Oct. 6, 2009 at his home.

Beloved husband of Lois J. Wood; dearest father of Carol W. (David R.) Peterson of Birmingham, and Douglas N. (Lori J.) Wood of Troy; dearest grandfather of Sarah (Jason) McGovern, Stuart, Joseph, and Jacob Peterson;

Alyssa, Shannon, and Katelyn Wood. Visitation was 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Monday Oct. 12, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A memorial service will be held in the Detroit Metro area in early November; date and time to be announced.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, 220 West Garfield, Charlevoix, 49720; or The Salvation Army, any location; or The Charlevoix Food Pantry, 101 State, Charlevoix, 49720.

David Lyle Beaudoin: Dec. 20, 1944 - Oct. 7, 2009

David Lyle Beaudoin, 64, of Spring Lake, Charlevoix and Beaver Island Michigan, died Wednesday, Oct. 7, 2009 at his home in Spring Lake.

A memorial service is planned for 3 p.m. Thursday Oct. 15, at the Winchester Funeral home in Charlevoix.

David was born on Dec. 20, 1944 in Charlevoix, MI, the son of Lyle and Edith (Cooper) Beaudoin.

He spent his boyhood days in Charlevoix before moving to Birmingham, where he graduated from high school and then entered the Air Force.

In November 1968, he married Linda Kaye Taggart, who preceded him in death in 1975.

David worked a number of years for Anderson Pattern in Spring Lake, retiring in 2008.

An avid collector of many interesting items, David also enjoyed hunting, spending time at his cabin on Beaver Island, working with his hands and sharing his entertaining stories with friends and family.

He was a member of the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

David will be remembered as a friendly man with a big heart, ready to make conversation with anyone.

Dave is survived by his children, Bruce Daniel (Katie) Beaudoin of Charlevoix and Amy Lynn Beaudoin of Petoskey; grandchildren Jacob Daniel and Abigail Kate Beaudoin; brother Joseph Burt Beaudoin of Charlevoix; nephew Mark (Laura) Beaudoin of North ville, their children Haden and Marisa; niece Marcie (Brian) Sladics of Charlevoix, their children Reylin and Laina; and his longtime companion Edith DeLong of Spring Lake.

Dave was preceded in death by his parents; sister Sue (George) Lochner; sister-in-law Sandy (Joe) Beaudoin.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club.

Martina C. Starr: May 19, 1927 - Oct. 7, 2009

Martina C. Starr, 82, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, Oct. 7, 2009, at Boulder Park Terrace Nursing Home in Charlevoix.

A Rite of Christian Burial was 10 a.m., Saturday Oct. 10, at Saint Mary Church in Charlevoix, the Reverend Jerry Hunko officiating.

Interment will take place in Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Martina was born May 19, 1927, in Charlevoix, to Leo and Rose (McSawby) Tookolo.

She attended Charlevoix Public Schools, and was employed by Hoskins Manufacturing for over 25 years.

Martina was a member of Saint Mary's Church and the Little Traverse Bay Band of Odawa Indians.

She is survived by her daughter, Kathleen Lewis; grandson, Michael McCann; sister, Dorothy Dyer all of Charlevoix; many nieces and nephews.

Martina's sisters, Lillian Peters and Katherine Genia preceded her in death.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Salvation Army or to the Charlevoix County Humane Society.

Visitation was from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., Friday, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where the Rosary was recited at 7 p.m.

Senior trip

The Charlevoix Senior Center and commission on aging put together a fall color tour trip for seniors of Charlevoix County. Fourteen seniors from Charlevoix and 13 from East Jordan took the guided trip to St. Ignace, Moran, Trout Lake and White Fish Point. The overnight trip also included a stop in Sault Ste. Marie.

Costume cruise a terrifying trip

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Faculak

Celebrate Halloween early with the Breezeway Costume Color Tour.

Beginning at 11 a.m. on Oct. 17, at the Antrim Dells Golf Course in Atwood, participants will have the opportunity to dress in a Halloween costume, take advantage of a goodie bag filled with coupons to local merchants and enjoy the brilliance of autumn while cruising down the Breezeway.

"Everyone will enjoy this day — all ages, residents and visitors alike," said East Jordan Area Chamber of Commerce executive director Mary Faculak.

"It's one of those events where you pick and choose where you want to start and stop."

Stretching from Atwood to Boyne Falls, County Road 48 — now known as the Breezeway — is a 28-mile piece of highway through some of Northern Michigan's most rural areas.

The roadside is dotted with family farms, country cafes and, at this time of year, a slew of scarecrows.

"We are encouraging people to get out and explore the many businesses, great examples of agri-tourism, farms, restaurants, shops and eateries along the way," Faculak said.

At the end of the ride, folks may enjoy a free chair lift courtesy of Boyne Mountain.

Then, Faculak said, double back at 3 p.m. to East Jordan's Sportsman's Park where there will be prizes given for best costume.

Chair lift rides will be offered from noon until 9 p.m.

that day.

For a high-resolution version of the Breezeway map, go to www.ridethebreezeway.com.

"Costumes are encouraged, but not necessary," Faculak added.

Call (231) 536-7351 for more information.

The scarecrow contest is being sponsored by Northern Michigan Review Inc.
